STEEL TALKS RESUMED AT PRESIDENT'S REQUEST IN FINAL PEACE EFFORT

BUT HOPE IS DIM WITH TOMORROW MIDNIGHT STILL STRIKE DEADLINE

Eisenhower Keeping Watch on Situation —Confers With Nixon and Labor Secretary Mitchell.

NEW YORK, July 13 (AP)—Stalled steel negotiations got under way again today at White House bidding but with scant prospect of an agreement to avert a strike at midnight tomorrow.

The union promised to make "an All-American try" at negotiating a settlement to avert a strike.

R. Conrad Cooper, chief industry negotiator, threw cold water on settlement prospects and showed irritation in posing with union president David J. McDonald for photographers.

Cooper said there was only one possible way a strike could be avoided—for the union to again extend its contract.

However, McDonald ruled out any further delay in a showdown. The union earlier had granted a two-week truce but it expires at midnight tomorrow.

Injury Already Done.

Cooper said the union already has caused the industry injury by the fact that many firms have had to close down some facilities in the costly preparation for an orderly industry shutdown. Orderly shutting down larger mills requires about three days, for smaller plants a shorter time.

"We're not the aggressors in the situation," Cooper said. "We're not causing a strike."

Negotiations collapsed last night. President Eisenhower appealed to both sides this morning to resume talks in a last-ditch peace effort.

The White House said there was still time to reach a peaceful solution, McDonald agreed with this.

But Cooper told reporters as he went into session with McDonald that the time now is too short to deal with the many unresolved problems.

"Frantic last minute dramatics are not responsive to the long-term seriousness of the problems that we're talking about," Cooper said.

"These problems are of real consequence to all employes, all owners, and all the public.

"They can't be deliberated on and solved in a few short hours."

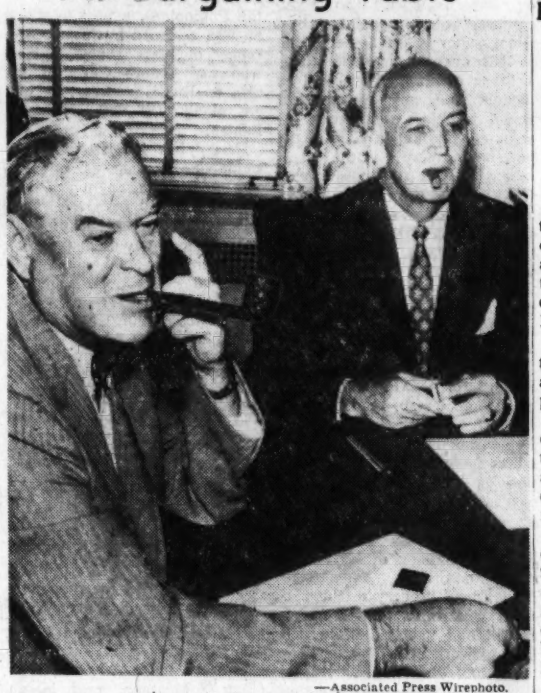

McDonald broke in to end the joint news conference:

"Let's cut the conversation and go to work. We can make an agreement in an hour."

After meeting for about an hour, union and management negotiators recessed so that McDonald could go before the

JENNER, SEAWAY FOE, TRYING TO PROFIT ON IT

Speculating on Land Near Harbor Expected to Be Built With Public Funds.

By SAM B. ARMSTRONG
National Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., July 13—William Ezra Jenner opposed the St. Lawrence Seaway as a threat to private enterprise and the American standard of living when he was a member of the United States Senate. Today, he has found in it, ironically enough, an opportunity for personal enterprise.

Even the name was accepted for his new company when Jenner, the isolationist, organized it with other top Indiana Republican politicians to speculate in land near a proposed new Indiana harbor which, the stock prospectus says, could be reached by 80 per cent of the world's shipping.

"The St. Lawrence Seaway Corporation" the prospectus goes on, "foresees great profit opportunities in the optioning, buying, selling, and development of desirable and strategically-located real estate."

President-Treasurer Jenner told the Post-Dispatch that sales of the 1,000,000 shares approved for offering to the public only a month ago at $3, had been "amazingly" brisk and that prompt action in Indianapolis and Washington to expedite construction of the harbor was expected.

The harbor, about midway in Indiana's meager 40-mile Lake Michigan frontage, would be built with public funds. The 1957 Indiana Legislature had voted $2,000,000 to be used to acquire a

COURT UPHOLDS POLICE BOARD IN FUNDS DISPUTE

Rules St. Louis Must Restore Money Asked by Commissioners to Run Department.

By BOYD F. CARROLL
Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 13—The Missouri Supreme Court today found in favor of the St. Louis Board of Police Commissioners in the board's suit to force the St. Louis city administration to restore funds sought for police operations in the current fiscal year.

In a decision by the court en banc, the judges held that city officials should restore to the police department $364,587 of the $640,000 demanded by the Police Board, plus that part of a $96,587 item representing salaries of civilian workers, exclusive of salaries of prison guards, matrons and school crossing guards.

The Board of Aldermen, in its appropriation for the 1959-60 fiscal year, gave the police $13,592,359, a cut of $640,000 from the $14,232,352 requested.

The Police Board filed a mandamus suit in Supreme Court, alleging that under state law it was obligatory for the city to make available the operating funds requested by the police.

The controversy began when the police board submitted a $15,732,715 budget for this fiscal year, a $2,263,884 increase over the previous year.

A court test of the Missouri statute requiring the city to appropriate all the funds the police department requests was suggested by Comptroller John H. Poelker.

The suit was filed after a long hassle between the police board and members of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, who maintained that the city was unable to meet the police board's budget demands.

Just One Spot After Another--- TV Show of Commercials Only

HOLLYWOOD, July 13 (UPI)—They said it couldn't be done but a local television station has done it—a half-hour show made up exclusively of commercials.

The show, which is being shown over station KTTV, brought only congratulations from listeners after its Saturday night debut, according to a station spokesman.

"Twenty-one calls were received in the first 10 minutes after the show," said the spokesman, "and they were all positive. We had no callers saying they didn't like it, as far as I know."

But, he noted, viewers were requested at the end of the show to write letters telling how they felt about the experiment, so a true sampling of the response probably will not be available until later in the week.

The show, entitled "Cavalcade of Spots," was made up of 15 commercials. Eleven came from abroad. Actor Richard Carlson sat in as a narrator, filling the gaps between commercials.

KTTV, listing the show as "entertainment," said one of the points it was trying to prove was that any show will sell—as long as it's entertaining.

"We are trying to answer persons who criticize commercials simply because they are commercial," said a spokesman.

Most of the commercials, which came from France, Japan, England, Italy and the United States, employed the "soft sell," using animated drawings or actors in amusing skits to put across the product without belaboring the point.

ST. LOUIS VOTES TOMORROW ON PROPOSED BOOST IN EARNINGS TAX

Request for 900 Absentee Ballots Indicates Interest Is Greater Than in April School Election.

St. Louisans will go to the polls tomorrow to vote on a proposed charter amendment that would authorize the Board of Aldermen to increase the earnings tax from one-half of 1 per cent to a full 1 per cent.

Polls will be open from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. The proposition requires a 60 per cent affirmative vote for passage.

Voter interest in tomorrow's election apparently is substantially greater than in the city and school election last April, on the basis of absentee ballots requested.

Harry Leitz, Democratic chief clerk of the Election Board, said 900 absentee ballots have been applied for, compared with only 554 for the April election. Requests for absentee ballots have been particularly heavy in the last four days, Leitz said.

The League of Women Voters has conducted a campaign urging persons who will be out of the city tomorrow to obtain absentee ballots.

In effect, the citizens tomorrow will be making a choice of whether to double the earnings tax rate or retain four other revenue raising proposals now on the books.

The latter are a 7-cent increase per $100 of assessed valuation in the general property tax, a half-cent increase in the city gasoline tax, a rise of 75 cents per $1000 of sales by merchants and manufacturers and an annual $8 per household charge for rubbish collection.

Automatic Repealer.

Each of the four revenue measures contains an automatic repealer that would terminate the tax in the event the earnings tax increase is approved. The measures were passed by the aldermen last spring and scheduled to go into effect Aug. 1.

One of the strongest arguments made for the higher earnings tax by Mayor Raymond R. Tucker and other proponents has been that one-third of the $4,500,000 which the higher earnings tax would produce in this fiscal year would be borne by non-residents who work in the city.

On the other hand, by defeating the earnings tax rise, St. Louisans would have to bear alone the full burden of the four stopgap measures which would produce approximately $4,465,000 in the same period.

Mayor's Statement.

In a statement issued today, the Mayor said: "If the voters go to the polls under the false impression they are voting only for or against taxes, I fear the proposal will be defeated.

"If the people vote with the full knowledge that the four alternate taxes will be replaced with an increased earnings tax, one-third of which will be paid by non-residents, I feel confident the proposal will be approved.

"The voters must keep in mind that the earnings tax proposal actually offers a 33 per cent cut in their increased tax load this year, and promise of further tax cuts next spring."

Because only one proposition will be on the ballot tomorrow, it was decided to use paper ballots rather than voting machines.

To vote in favor of the earnings tax increase, the voter should place an X in the square opposite the word YES. To vote

GROMYKO CALLS FOR GERMANS TO BE INCLUDED IN SECRET SESSIONS

His Unexpected Demand Blocks Tomorrow's Meeting and Causes Confusion Among Ministers.

GENEVA, July 13 (AP)—Russia's Andrei A. Gromyko unexpectedly demanded today that German advisers be included in secret meetings of the Big Four foreign ministers conference. The demand blocked agreement on a secret session tomorrow and threw the conference procedure into confusion.

The maneuver appeared to be a determined new bid to give greater recognition in the conference to East Germany. East and West German representatives have been sitting in the formal meetings as advisers but have been excluded from the informal secret meetings.

United States Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, who hadp roposed a secret session tomorrow, rejected Gromyko's demand to include the German delegations British and French foreign ministers sided with Herter.

Formal Session Wednesday.

Gromyko insisted on his proposal and the meeting today, which had opened with expressions of hope for agreement on the Berlin crisis, ended without any agreement on a session tomorrow. The meeting was set for Wednesday as a formal one at the Palace of Nations.

Before the plareup over German representation, Gromyko told the Western ministers Russia wants to avoid unilateral action against West Berlin and prefers "an agreed solution."

His statement on this point appeared designed to assure the Western powers that if they agreed to a Soviet-proposed moratorium in the Berlin crisis they would not forfeit any of their West Berlin rights.

"Our proposal provides for further negotiation" (after the maoratorium), Gromyko said. "It does not bear out the argument of those who try to distort the true attitude of the Soviet Union."

The Big Four conference resumed meetings at the Palace of Nations after a three-week recess, with Herter as chairman for the day. The meeting lasted 3 hours and 47 minutes. It was the longest since they began the first round of their conference May 11.

Herter For Closed Talks.

The opening session was formal, but Herter proposed an immediate return to the kind of secret diplomacy which dominated the first six weeks of the conference. He expressed belief that offered the best hope for making progress in ironing out East-West differences.

Although he expressed conviction that a satisfactory long-range solution to the problems of Germany and Berlin could eventually be found if the dangers of continued division of Germany were squarely faced, Herter concentrated most of his talk as the lead-off western spokesman on the Berlin crisis.

He recalled that during the first round of the conference the West and the Soviet Union had proposed plans for the future of Berlin and each side had rejected the other's proposal. He specifically cited Gromyko's proposal of June 10 for a one-year standstill agreement on Berlin and recalled that the time limit was later extended by another Soviet plan to 18 months.

Herter renewed western ob-

RUSSIA ANNOUNCES RECOVERY OF TWO DOGS FROM SPACE

LONDON, July 13 (AP) — The Soviet Union rocketed two dogs into space July 10 and brought them back to earth, Moscow radio said today.

The broadcast said the dogs were carried aloft in a ballistic rocket weighing 2200 kilograms (4850 pounds).

Quoting an official Tass dispatch, the radio said a quantity of equipment was also parachuted back to earth. The first announcement gave no details of the height attained by the rocket.

One of the dogs, Daring, was making its fourth ascent into space, Tass said.

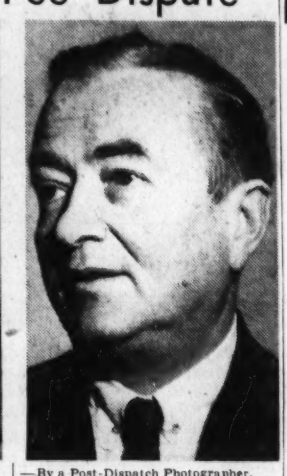

Daring, another dog named Snowflake and a rabbit named Marfooshka (Little Martha) were shot up in a 4009-pound rocket on July 2 and were recovered, the Russians announced a week ago.

LAWYER SAYS TEAMSTERS OFFERED $105,000 TO STOP HIS SENATE TESTIMONY

MONEY OWED HIS CLIENT FOR LEGAL FEES, HE TESTIFIES

Amount Was to Be Paid Godfrey Schmidt — Union Attorney Denies Charge.

WASHINGTON, July 13. (UPI)—A New York lawyer said under oath today that he was promised an immediate $105,000 payment for a client if the attorney failed to testify before the Senate rackets committee.

Bartley C. Crum, the attorney, told the committee that Edward Bennett Williams, lawyer for Teamster President James R. Hoffa, made the offer last Thursday.

Crum said the $105,000 was for legal fees which the Teamsters had refused for more than a year to pay Godfrey Schmidt for representing 13 anti-Hoffa rank-and-fire Teamsters. Crum was attorney for Schmidt in seeking payment of the fee.

Williams immediately denounced the charge as "absolutely, completely, unequivocally and unqualifiedly false." He demanded and got the right to answer what he termed "this false, vicious and contrived smear."

Crum testified earlier that two top officers of the West Coast Longshoremen's union had promised the same $105,000 for Schmidt since last July if Schmidt would resign as court-appointed monitor for the Teamsters Union.

Hard-Up Financially.

Schmidt flatly turned down the offer, Crum said, an dhas not been paid. He said Schmidt has become so hard up financially that the electricity has been turned off in his home because he could not pay the bills.

Committee members used the terms "pay-off" and "bribe" in connection with the offer, Crum, who said he had been proposed by Hoffa's longshoremen allies as Schmidt's successor, said there wouldn't have been anything wrong with it if Schmidt's resignation had not been involved.

Crum said he did not know how Williams learned that he had been called to testify about the money offer made by President Harry Bridges and Secretary-Treasurer Louis Goldblatt of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

Secret Ballot.

Crum told the committee that at one meeting with Hoffa a member of his (Crum's) law firm, Mortimer Feur, asked whether the problem wasn't one of getting a secret ballot in the Teamsters.

The witness said Hoffa turned to Crum and replied: "What's the matter with this fellow? Is he out of his mind? In the Teamsters' Union everyone stands up to be counted. God helps him who votes the wrong way."

Crum said he felt the proposal was an "improper attempt to obstruct the process of the court." He said he gave the proposal "serious consideration because the monitors could perform a fine public service. Hoffa stooge," he added.

He said Bridges called him last November to say he regretted that Crum would not become a monitor. "I told him that Hoffa wanted a stooge, not a monitor," Crum said.

He said he and Williams conferred a number of times about the proposal for him to take over for Schmidt as one of the three monitors appointed by United States District Judge F. Dickinson Letts to ride herd on Hoffa.

Crum said within the last two weeks he told Williams that he "saw nothing wrong with" paying Schmidt the $105,000 due him. He told the committee his only complaint was attaching the resignation as a condition.

"My last talk with Mr. Williams on Thursday of last week," Crum said. "Mr. Williams told me that Mr. Schmidt's fees . . . would be paid by Friday of this

5-DAY FORECAST CALLS FOR FAIR WEATHER WITH A CHANCE OF SHOWERS

GENERALLY fair weather is in prospect for the St. Louis area tomorrow through Saturday, with a chance of some rain Thursday through Saturday, the Weather Bureau said today in its extended forecast.

The five-day forecast: Fair with slowly rising temperatures through Thursday and little temperature change thereafter; chance of a shower or two Thursday through Saturday; temperatures will average near normal for the period; normal highs are around 90; normal lows around 70.

MERCURY DROPS TO 58 DEGREES, NEW LOW FOR DATE

St. Louis was like a vacation resort yesterday when temperatures dropped to 58 degrees at 5:30 a.m., a record low. This morning's low was 62 at 5:30 o'clock.

Yesterday's minimum replaced the previous low for the date, 59 in 1940. The Weather Bureau predicted slowly moderating temperatures for the next several days.

Meanwhile, the prolonged drouth continued here, with only a slight chance of some relief this week. The Weather Bureau said there is a possibility of light showers Thursday through Saturday.

Prayers for rain were said in all Catholic churches yesterday. Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter directed that prayers be continued until the drouth has been eased.

4 CUBAN AIRMEN FORCE PILOT TO FLY TO MIAMI

MIAMI, Fla., July 13 (AP)—A Cuban air force plane was taken over by four crewmen today and the pilot was forced to fly it to the Miami International airport. There were 17 Air Force personnel aboard when it landed here.

The four men who seized command of the plane asked for political asylum in the United States. The 13 others aboard said they wanted to return to Cuba.

The plane was on a flight from Havana to Camaguey in Cuba when the four took charge.

Japanese Satellite Plans.

TOKYO, July 13 (AP)—Japan is technically advanced enough to launch its own earth satellite, State Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone said yesterday. Nakasone, chief of the Scientific and Technological Board, told newsmen he hopes to start a five-year projocet for constructing and launching a satellite using a five-stage rocket.

CONVICTS HOLD 4, SAID TO OBJECT TO HOLIDAY WORK

Tennessee Mine Foremen Seized on Anniversary of Gen. Forrest's Birth.

PETROS, Tenn., July 13 (UPI)—Rebellious convicts, apparently angry because they were ordered to work on a state holiday, seized four hostages and holed up more than one mile deep in a coal mine at Brushy Mountain state prison.

Guards armed with shotguns and tear gas patrolled the mouth of the mine, its only exit. Twenty-five state troopers were sent to the prison to reinforce the guards.

About 116 prisoners seized the hostages, mine foremen employed by the prison, sometime after they went to work this morning. The convicts were believed to be protesting against having to work today because it was the anniversary of Confederate Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest's birth and a legal holiday in Tennessee.

By the Associated Press.

Warden Frank Llewellyn said the convicts released one of the foremen, Tom Jones, who brought out word of the seizure.

The prison operates three coal mines in the Cumberland mountains which produce coal for state institutions.

The warden said that so far as he knows the prisoners are not armed, except for picks and shovels.

The foremen go into the mines with the prisoners unarmed," Llewellyn said. "Their job is to make safety checks."

The warden said that two hours after the men were seized, the prisoners had issued no ultimatum.

"They haven't threatened the men—they're just holding them," Llewellyn said.

The prison is about 40 miles west of Knoxville. The mine is about three-fourths of a mile from the prison.

Prison guards patroled the outside mouth of the shaft.

On May 11, one hundred and fifty inmates of the Fort Pillow prison farm in West Tennessee seized two guards and held them hostage for 14 hours. The bloodless siege ended when the guards were released unharmed.

"The men won't talk to anybody until Keith Hampton, the state commissioner of corrections, comes in," Lewellyn said. The warden said Assistant Commissioner Pat Patterson was en route.

U.S. and Soviet Pilots Exchange Visits to Jet Liners in Geneva

GENEVA, July 13 (UPI) — American and Soviet jet pilots eyed each other's aircraft with restrained admiration mixed with intense curiosity. Curiosity won—they exchanged visits.

The American plane was the big United States air force VC-137A which brought Secretary of State Christian A. Herter across the Atlantic from Goose Bay, Labrador, in a little more than five hours.

The crew of the turbojet Ilyushin-18, which had flown Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko from Moscow, watched as Col. William Draper landed the military version of the Boeing 707 jet at Cointrin airport.

Once on the ground the American crew members noticed the big IL-18 preparing for takeoff and asked if they could look inside. The Russians said all right, provided they could peek inside the American machine. The deal was made.

Three Soviet pilots in light gray summer uniforms toured the American craft, noting particularly the amount of radar equipment it carried.

Chou's Demands for 40 Pct. Increase Criticized as Unrealistic —Quota Is 525,000,000 Tons.

TOKYO, July 13 (AP)—The Chinese Communist party virtually admitted today that it will fail to achieve its ambitious 525,000,000 ton grain production goal for 1959.

Without naming him, the party, speaking through its official organ, the Peiping People's Daily, criticized Premier Chou En-lai's demands last April that the country boost its agricultural production by 40 per cent over 1958.

The Communists have not published any figures on crop yields so far this year.

The 525,000,000-ton objective was 40 per cent more than the 325,000,000 tons Peiping claimed it turned out last year. The 1958 total in turn was 50 per cent more than in 1957.

Peiping radio monitored here said the paper's Sunday editorial "pointed out that in agriculture a 10 per cent increase in output each year was already a leap, a very quick rate of increase, beyond the normal rate. Twenty per cent was a big leap and 30 per cent an especially big leap."

It said nothing about 40 per cent.

"The paper said it was an unrealistic idea to say that grain output must be doubled every year," the radio reported.

The paper went on to observe that "there is a certain limit in the rate of increase in agricultural production, especially in China under the present economic and technical conditions."

This was a reversal of the Peiping line which heretofore has said that the sky was the limit in production and that China can handle any increase in its already record 640,000,000 population.

The implied admission of failure in the grain production goal was hidden behind claims of a bumper winter wheat crop with increases of 10 to 30 per cent in "per unit area yields" in some districts. The Communists made it clear, however, that the increases were not general and the over-all crop yield was below expectations. The Reds revealed last month that the country's 37 big cities are short of food and that the situation cannot be alleviated by the newly-formed peasant communes. Floods in south and central China have added to the problem, damaging more than 1,000,000 acres of rich farmland.

WEST BERLIN IS CALLED MOST IMPORTANT CITY

LOS ANGELES, July 13 (AP)—West Berlin for the moment is the most important city in the world and in a true sense is a city of our own, Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (Dem.) of Minnesota, said today.

"What we do about Berlin," Humphrey told the annual conference of mayors, "may be more fateful to us and our future than anything we do about any city of our own. And it does not lie in our power alone to determine what will happen."

Humphrey, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said "as Secretary Herter resumes negotiations with the Soviet Union, he speaks for a united American people in his determination not to abandon Berlin in the face of Soviet guile or bluster."

RED CHINESE SAID TO FIRE 138 SHELLS AT MATSU ISLE

TAIPEI, Formosa, July 13 (AP)—Artillery action flared at the northern end of Formosa strait yesterday. The defense ministry said Communist batteries on the Red China coast fired 138 shells at the Matsu islands, 100 miles northwest of Formosa.

LONDON, July 13 (UPI)—The Peiping radio said a United States Navy patrol plane violated Communist Chinese air space this morning by flying over the Yunghsing and Pei islands in the Hsisha islands group.

The radio said the Red Chinese Foreign Ministry has been authorized to make its fifty-sixth "serious warning against this (type of) military provocation by United States military aircraft."

EXPLORER I WILL REMAIN IN ORBIT UNTIL AUGUST 1962

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., July 13 (UPI)—The Army ballistic missile agency said today Explorer I, the United States's first earth satellite, would continue to orbit until August 1962.

The agency said latest estimates also show Explorer IV, the second Army satellite still orbiting, will re-enter the earth's atmosphere in September and burn up.

Explorer I was launched Jan. 31, 1958, while Explorer IV was placed in orbit July 26, 1958.

Kozlov Takes Off for Russia, Predicts Peaceful Solutions

By ALVIN H. GOLDSTEIN
A Staff Correspndent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, N.Y., July 13 — Soviet First Deputy Premier Frol R. Kozlov took off for home today after telling reporters that differences between Russia and this country "can and must be solved by peaceful means," without interfering in the domestic affairs of either nation.

In a brief message at the airport he said one of his chief impressions of his visit to the United States is that "the American people as the Russian people are striving for eternal peace between our two countries."

He expressed appreciation "for the warm welcome I received during my two-week trip around the United States." He arrived here June 28 to open the Soviet scientific and cultural exhibition.

He flew back in the same plane that carried him here, a four-engine jet-prop TU-114, the world's largest airliner. He was accompanied by the plane's designer, Andrei Tupolev.

Asked if Premier Khrushchev would visit the United States, Kozlov replied "it is difficult to say now."

Predicts Socialist U.S.

Yesterday Kozlov said he agreed with Khrushchev's prediction—made in a televised interview—that the grandchildren of present-day Americans would live in a socialist society. He said, however, that he believes the system any country adopts should be the internal business of its people.

Kozlov toured United Nations headquarters here yesterday after an hour-long press conference at the Soviet U.N. mission offices, where he gave reporters his conclusions resulting from visits to factories, farms, scientific and educational centers.

"If we were to speak of the cardinal point that impressed us most," he said, "this is the desire of the American people to preserve peace."

He "noted with satisfaction" that "expanding contacts" between the two ideologically opposed nations were promoting "better understanding." As to U.N. conciliation in the West Berlin dispute, Kozlov said he thought the problem should be settled in Geneva or if an impasse was reached it should be resolved at a summit meeting.

18 Months of Negotiations.

Kozlov recalled that the Kremlin had suggested an 18-month interval of negotiation between representatives of East and West Berlin toward unification. In the event that failed, he added, the foreign ministers now at Geneva should resume deliberations. When agreement was achieved, he said, U.N. machinery could be used to put them in force.

Emphasizing his belief in the need for expanded contracts between Russia and the West, Kozlov asserted that "we also believe that it would be useful for you to know the experience of the Soviet industry and our agriculture." He thought that particularly in the field of medicine, specialists should not only exchange views but "pool" research and accomplishment.

"We also proposed an exchange of parliamentary delegations in the interests of expanding contacts and ties between our countries," Kozlov continued. "I do not believe that there now exists any reason for delaying any longer the settlement of this question." He expressed the opinion that development of trade relations would stimulate "understanding and friendly relations."

AUSTRALIANS ORDER U.S. ACTOR'S YACHT NOT TO SAIL

CANBERRA, July 13 (AP)—Australian authorities today ordered American actor John Calvert's yacht not to sail again until proved seaworthy.

Shipping Minister Shane Paltridge sent a marine surveyer to Elcho island off north Australia to examine Calvert's yacht, the Sea Fox. The boat is undergoing repairs after leaking and having engine trouble in the Arafura sea.

The Sea Fox which had sent out distress calls, was found and escorted to Elcho after an air search that the government said cost more than $7000.

G.O.P. PRESENTS HOUSING BILL ON MODIFIED LINES

Eliminates Features That Led to Veto, Provides for Continuing Loan Insurance.

WASHINGTON, July 13 (AP)—House Republicans today introduced a new housing bill to carry out President Eisenhower's urban renewal and college housing program and to continue the Federal Housing Administration's ability to insure home mortgages.

Total loans and grants would be limited to $810,000,000.

The bill omits public housing projects, housing for the elderly, college classroom loans and other features which prompted the President to veto the $1.375,000,000 housing bill passed by Congress last month. Mr. Eisenhower termed that legislation extravagant and inflationary.

The authors of the new bill, Representatives Gordon L. McDonough of California and William B. Widnall of New Jersey, called it a bill "within sound budgetary limitations."

Specific Func Requested.

The measure calls for a two-year urban renewal and slum elimination program, authorizing $350,000,000 this year and $250,000,000 next year. The vetoed bill carried $900,000,000 for this purpose.

The new bill would provide $200,000,000 for college housing loans, $10,000,000 for urban planning assistance and an immediate authorization of five billion dollars for FHA mortgage insurance plus an additional five billions later.

It also would increase the mortgage ceiling on single-family homes to $25,000. It would raise the interest rate on rental and co-operative management housing to 5½ per cent and on co-operative sales housing to 6 per cent.

In its principal features, the bill is patterned closely to proposals made by the Administration and unsuccessfully supported by House Republicans.

Democrats Silent.

Democratic leaders still have not announced whether they will attempt to override Mr. Eisenhower's veto of the previous legislation. When it passed, the bill did not receive the two-thirds majority in each house which would be necessary to overcome a veto.

In a statement, McDonough and Widnall said: "This bill will stimulate the home building industry because of its provisions for liberalized down-payments for building homes for the elderly and for the continuation of the urban renewal and college housing programs."

HONDURAS PUTS DOWN REVOLT, 100 ARE KILLED

600 Rebels Captured, Many Wounded in 15-Hour Battle Led by Army Ex-Chief.

TEGUCIGALPA, July 13 (AP)—President Ramon Villeda Morales put down a revolt of right-wing forces in this Honduran capital Sunday after a 15-hour fight in which 100 were killed. A government statement today said "many" were wounded and 600 rebels captured.

The rebelts, made up of members of the national police led by Col. Armando Velasquez Cerrato, former chief of the army general staff who led an unsuccessful revolt in May, gave up at 11 o'clock last night after attacks on them by army troops aided by armed students and civilians.

The rebels seized the national penitentiary and other strategic buildings in a morning attack. Before giving up, the rebels set police headquarters afire and the spreading flames destroyed a square block in Tegucigalpa.

The rebel police, aided by followers of former dictator Tiburcio Carias Andino, had seized the government's communications building, the Tegucigalpa electric plant, the government military academy and other buildings.

The rebels failed in an attempt to capture army barracks and the presidential palace. Guards drove the rebels out of the penitentiary and troops recaptured the other buildings, including the flaming police headquarters.

The rebels also seized the town of Comayagua, 60 miles from Tegucigalpa. Villeda Morales announced today that his troops were moving against the revolutionaries there. In a radio speech last night, the president said order had been restored everywhere except at Comayagua.

Troops patrolled Tegucialpa streets today but the government said it had not found it necessary to declare a state of siege, a modified form of martial law.

Velasquez Cerrato and two of his principal lieutenants, Ruben Bulnes and Calixto Carias, took asylum Sunday night in the Costa Rican embassy. Government sources indicated they will be granted safe conduct to leave Honduras.

The fire at police headquarters still was smouldering this morning and a cloud of smoke arose from the building and others destroyed by the blaze.

In Washington, the State Department quoted the United States embassy in Tegucigalpa as saying that the attackers had some field artillery.

A Honduras government radio broadcast blamed the revolt on a "black army of civilians and Cuban Communist mercenaries."

Veleasquez led an attack by 500 rebels last May 11 on Gracias, a state capital in western Honduras. Those rebels were driven into the mountains and Veleasquez reportedly took refuge in Costa Rica. The agreement ending yesterday's fighting permits him to leave Honduras again.

The Honduran government of President Ramon Villeda Morales has been hit by sporadic revolts and terrorism since it was elected to office 20 months ago. The President was named for a six-year term as the candidate of the Liberal party.

The elections followed a 1956 bloodless military revolt which overturned the dictatorship of Julio Lozano Dias, established in 1954.

The Government has reported in recent months what it called an alarming infiltration by Communists in the country of 1,800,000 persons, but said the armed forces were ready to battle the Reds.

Storm Brewing Among G.O.P. Senators Over Job for Bohlen

His Possible Appointment as Herter's Adviser on Russia Stirs Up Dispute.

By DANA ADAMS SCHMIDT
© New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON, July 13 —A small storm is blowing up among Senate Republicans over possible appointment of Charles E. (Chip) Bohlen as special adviser on Russian affairs to the Secretary of State.

Although Secretary of State Christian Herter said last Thursday that no decision had been made, and the job is in any case not subject to Senatorial confirmation, there was considerable Senate reaction.

Senator Burke B. Hickenlooper (Rep.), Iowa, who voted against Bohlen's appointment as Ambassador to the Soviet Union in 1953, acknowledged Bohlen as a "man of ability" but said he thought the new appointment would be "just the wrong assignment for him in view of the part he has played in the past."

Senator Barry Goldwater (Rep.), Arizona, who voted against Bohlen in 1953, said on the other hand that he had, in the meantime, changed his views.

"I wrote him a couple of years ago that I had made a mistake in opposing him in 1953," Goldwater said.

Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, G.O.P. policy committee chairman, and Senator Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, Republican leader, were reported to have expressed their opposition to the assignment in conversation with Herter before he left for Paris Saturday.

Another Republican Senator, Milton R. Young of North Dakota, described Ambassador Bohlen as a "sneery sort of person" who was "vastly overrated" and "not suited to that kind of work at all."

Senator Homas H. Kuchel (Rep.), California, was enthusiastic in his indorsement of Bohlen.

"Ambassador Bohlen," he said, "is one of the few American diplomats who is skilled in Russian affairs. I very much hope the abilities he has demonstrated over the years are not lost to the American Government."

Senator Henry Dworshak of Idaho, another of the Republicans who opposed Bohlen's Moscow assignment, indicated that he had revised his opinion.

"I visited him in Moscow in September 1953," he noted, "and I thought he was doing a good job. If Herter wants him, he's entitled to have him. I wouldn't be pro or con."

Bohlen is now ambassador to the Philippines, a post to which he was assigned by former Secretary of State Dulles. Dulles, who had strong views of his own on Russian affairs, did not get along well with outspoken Bohlen.

Herter has indicated that he would like to make use of Bohlen's abilities as a top-ranking specialist in Russian affairs.

Republican opposition to Bohlen developed out of his part as an interpreter and adviser to President Franklin D. Roosevelt at the Yalta conference. Questioned about the Yalta agreements before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Bohlen defended them as "good." The only trouble with them, he said, was that the Russians did not keep their side of the bargain.

State Department officials understand that Bohlen is tired of the controversy over his role and would like to retire from the Foreign Service to a more remunerative private job. Having had more than 30 years of service, he is entitled to retire with nearly top retirement pay whenever he chooses.

By the Associated Press.

Senator Mike Mansfield (Dem.), Montana, said in an interview today it will be a shame if Republican objections block the appointment of Bohlen as a Herter adviser.

TREASON COUNTS IN CHINA REVIEW CASE DISMISSED

SAN FRANCISCO, July 13 (UPI)—Treason charges in the Powell-Schuman case were dismissed today because the Government has failed to obtain grand jury indictments.

The sedition indictment is still pending.

The defendants were John W. Powell, 40 years old, a former Missourian, and his wife, Sylvia, 39, of San Francisco, and Julian Schuman of New York City, who put out a Communist-line magazine—the China Monthly Review in Shanghai during the Korean conflict.

They were accused of treason in complaints filed Jan. 30 when sedition proceedings against them ended in a mistrial. At the time, then United States Attorney Robert Schnacke predicted that the treason case would go to trial within 60 days.

United States Commissioner Joseph Karesh dismissed the complaint when the Government failed to present two eyewitnesses of an overt act of treason in order to establish a probable cause for the complaint. He noted the complaints were filed five months ago.

However, United States Attorney Lynn Gillard said that an investigation of treason aspects of the case are continuing and will continue. He pointed out that new treason complaints could be filed at any future time.

The Constitution says treason requires two eyewitnesses to the same overt act. Gillard said possible witnesses are scattered all over the world and many are still in Red China.

The Department of Justice in Washington has given Gillard no authorization to seek an indictment, he said.

The Powells and Schuman were indicted originally on April 25, 1956, for sedition after a congressional investigation of the case. Two Senators had urged treason charges, but the Justice Department chose to prosecute the lesser charge.

AIRPORT ACCUSED OF 'CONFUSION' AS CRIPPLED JET AIRLINER LANDED

Unruly Crowd of 4000 Lined Foam-Coated Runway, Blocked Rescue Equipment—50,000 Were at Field.

NEW YORK, July 13 (AP)—"Ignorance and confusion" ruled at Idlewild airport while a crippled jet airliner with 113 persons aboard circled the field, New York Fire Commissioner Edward F. Cavanagh Jr. said last night.

City firemen got little or no co-operation from Port of New York Authority personnel who run the airport, he charged. Instead, he said, they encountered an arrogant attitude.

The Pan American World Airways plane, which dropped part of its landing gear just after taking off for London, circled the field for four hours Saturday night before making a safe emergency landing.

Port Authority Denial.

Austin J. Tobin, executive director of the Port Authority, responded hotly to Cavanagh's criticism. He said the fire commissioner had made an attempt "to besmirch a magnificent feat."

Tobin said: "Our men, in the face of grave danger, do an almost impossible job to prevent the loss of life and property and the record shows the results through the years have been extraordinary."

The rescue efforts were severly hampered by thrill seekers, who thronged to the airport. They went to the field by car and on foot. Some tramped across the meadows. Some went across Jamaica bay by boat.

Airport authorities said there were 50,000 of them. They knocked over barriers, spilled onto the field, jammed roads so fire equipment could not get through.

Circled to Burn Fuel.

Meanwhile, the pilot circled, a mile up, to burn up fuel—lessening the fire danger—and to give firemen time to spread anti-fire foam over the runway.

He didn't know it at the time, but a greater danger awaited him on the ground. At least 4000 persons lined the runway.

Officials said that the 200 airport and city police on hand were helpless. "It would have taken 10,000 policemen to keep the field clear," an airport authority said later. At one point hoses were turned on the crowd, and they were sprayed with foam.

Traffic backed up bumper to bumper. All roads leading to the airport were tied up. The jams stretched for miles.

"People decided to make a Roman holiday out of it," said James B. Leggett, chief of city detectives.

Firemen Delayed.

City firemen, with 40 pieces of apparatus, finally reached the scene, but were delayed half an hour getting out on the field.

(In Washington, the Federal Aviation Agency said it would ask for a "full report" to find out who was responsible for letting crowds swarm about the airport and runway.)

When Capt. Edward Sommers finally brought the big jet lower and approached the runway, he saw the crowds and delayed landing. Later he was bitter, saying they were the "biggest menace" of the ordeal.

He said rescue equipment could not have reached the plane in time, and that there was danger that the big ship would go off the runway and kill hundreds of the spectators.

As it was, he brought it in in a shower of sparks, as he had expected, and had to fight the controls to keep the ship from slewing off the runway.

Sommers, a 44-year-old grandfather from Brookside, N.J., is a veteran of 20 years with Pan American. He was notified immediately after takeoff that part of the landing gear had dropped off.

The jet has 10 wheels altogether. Two are in the nose, and four together under each wing. Later it was determined that two wheels of the plane's left group had dropped off, bounced over the field, and disappeared into Jamaica bay. They were later recovered.

The wheels apparently dropped off because a hollow metal shaft in the wheel assembly snapped. The shaft is attached at right angles to the vertical main landing gear strut, and the break came about two inches from the main strut. The front two wheels of the assembly, which remained attached to the plane, apparently snapped off when the aircraft touched down.

Federal authorities have impounded the defective landing gear in an attempt to determine if the break was the result of a manufacturing flaw or if it developed later and was not discovered in the course of regular inspections.

The 102 passengers aboard the plane were served roast beef, salad, pie and coffee while the plane circled.

One man turned on his portable radio and heard a news report that a jet was in trouble over Idlewild.

Then the intercom came on, and the passengers were calmly informed that the plane had lost two wheels and would try an emergency landing after most of the fuel was used up.

'Smooth' Landing.

The landing was described as smooth. Three women suffered minor injuries sliding down escape chutes after the plane stopped.

Only 11 hours later, a sister ship took off from the same runway, another Boeing 707, and headed out over the Atlantic for London.

At the controls was the same pilot, and on board were 87 of the same passengers. Another 10 passengers booked other flights.

The pilot was greeted in London by his wife Mary.

She said she knew nothing about her husband's exploit until several hours after he had landed.

"I was glad it was all over and that I hadn't known before," she added.

Mrs. Sommers and two of her children, Carol, 16, and Steven, 12, had arrived in London Wednesday for a two-month vacation.

Film producer Otto Preminger, who was aboard the crippled jet and continued on to London with Sommers, said that the crew used "great psychological skill" in keeping the passengers calm.

Preminger said that he never considered not making the rescheduled flight.

"Flying by plane is a part of modern life, like riding an automobile," he said.

"When they gave us dinner, there was a slight touch of irony to it," commented Laurence Harvey, British actor, who stars in the movie, "Room at The Top." The meal was "a sort of last supper, you might say."

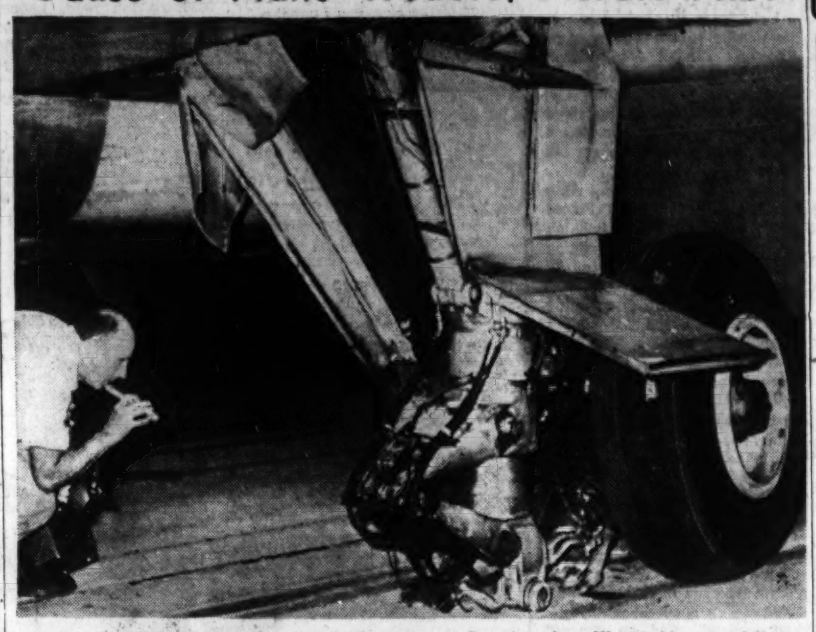

He added, "this is certainly one of the most marvelous experiences of my life. I have never known such general calm under such circumstances and I think it can be attributed to the wonderful pilot and crew. . . ."

BOY PLAYING WAR SHOT AND WOUNDED BY FRIEND

Lemon Bass Jr., 15 years old, was shot and seriously wounded Saturday when he and a friend, Harrison Williams, 14, were playing a war game at the Williams home, 1931 Trendley avenue, East St. Louis.

Police said the Williams boy had obtained his father's .38 caliber revolver and had slipped one shell in a chamber. The weapon failed to discharge when he aimed it at targets and pulled the trigger several times.

The boys began re-enacting a scene from a motion picture about war which they had seen on television. The Williams boy, standing inside the front screen door, fired at young Bass, who was standing on the porch. The gun discharged and the bullet struck the Bass boy in the chest. Young Bass, who lives at 2044 Market avenue, East St. Louis, was taken to St. Mary's Hospital.

DANGER FORESEEN IN NEW CITY JAIL LAW

A new state law giving a prisoner credit on his sentence for time in jail will create problems for City Jail here, Circuit Attorney Thomas F. Eagleton said today.

By adding more and more men convicted of serious crimes to the prisoner population, the chances are increased for an attempted breakout from the jail, Eagleton said.

Nine long-term convicts currently are being held at the jail while their appeals are under consideration.

The State Supreme Court ruled that convicts may stay in jail pending disposition of their appeals. Under the old law, they were given no credit for this time, Eagleton said.

Unless the court changes the rule, Eagleton said, more and more convicts will choose to stay in jail. He added that some short-timers would spend their entire sentences in jail.

Eagleton has asked the Supreme Court in a letter to change its rule. The Court is expected to consider the matter this week.

Warden William Boeger said he thought the possibility of a breakout from the city jail is remote. He said that an alarm button was accidentally touched once and "100 policemen were at the jail in a minute and a half."

He pointed to the proximity of Central District Headquarters of the Police Department and said that an attempted break would bring "200 policeman to the City Jail within two minutes after an alarm is sounded."

30 Hurt When Trains Collide.

BILBAO, Spain, July 13 (UPI)—Two passenger trains collided near a suburban station here today. Thirty persons were injured, 13 of them seriously.

COUNTY WOMAN KILLED, 5 HURT IN 2-AUTO CRASH

She Was Passenger in Vehicle That Collided With Another on Highway 67.

Mrs. Louis H. Mueller, 11285 Old Halls Ferry road, St. Louis county, was killed when the automobile in which she was riding collided with another car Saturday night on U.S. Highway 67, one mile north of Lindbergh boulevard.

Five other persons were injured in the accident, two seriously.

Mrs. Mueller, 57 years old, and her husband were passengers in a car driven by Joseph Fischer, a farmer, of Florissant. The Highway Patrol reported that Fischer pulled onto the highway from a side road and collided with a southbound machine operated by Edgar G. Borcherding, 120 Fenwick drive, Ferguson.

Borcherding's mother, Mrs. Louise Borcherding, 10152 Cabot drive, Bissell Hills, and Mrs. Bernice Meyer, of Florissant, were passengers in his car.

Mueller, 65, was taken to St. Louis County Hospital with seven broken ribs and a broken collar bone. His wife was dead on arrival at the hospital. Mrs. Borcherding, 65, was transferred to Deaconess Hospital after being treated at County Hospital for a brain concussion and severe head cuts.

Fischer, Borcherding and Mrs. Meyer were treated at County Hospital for cuts and bruises and released.

Mrs. Charles Herzog, 7736 Rock Hill road, Affton, died yesterday at Deaconess Hospital of injuries suffered Friday when the car she was driving went out of control and struck a fence and two trees.

Mrs. Herzog apparently stepped on the accelerator instead of the brake as she turned left from Gravois road into Philo avenue, St. Louis county, police reported. The car ran off the road, struck a fence and then struck two trees.

Mrs. Herzog, 70, suffered a lung injury and four broken ribs. Her husband, a passenger in the car, was treated for cuts of the face and right knee.

Richard C. Banfield of Hamilton, O., suffered cuts of the head, shoulder and leg early yesterday when the car he was driving collided with another machine at Chippewa street and Hampton avenue. A traffic signal and a fire hydrant were knocked down by Banfield's car.

Banfield was driving west in Chippewa when his car collided with one being operated north in Hampton by Robert F. Loeffler, 8404 Jennings road, Jennings. Each driver claimed the electric traffic signal was in his favor. Loeffler was not injured.

FEDERAL JUDGE ORDERS END TO C. & E. I. STRIKE

Temporary Restraining Edict Issued Also Against Picketing of Rail Depots.

Striking engineers of Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad were ordered back to work today by a United States District Court judge in Chicago.

Judge Michael L. Igoe also issued a temporary restraining order against picketing the railroad facilities, including freight depots at East St. Louis and nearby Mitchell, Ill.

A hearing on motions for a temporary injunction against the striking employes, members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, was set for July 22.

A spokesman for the line in St. Louis said crews would be called back to work "as soon as possible." Operations were expected to resume late today if the restraining order is obeyed, the spokesman said.

$1,000,000 Suit.

In addition to the injunction, the company also filed suit for $1,000,000 in damages against the union.

The court's ruling was based on the fact that the walkout came "without notice" and that a federal mediator had offered to talk over what the union called "contract violations," Judge Igoe explained.

The back-to-work order was issued on the assumption that all parties in the dispute would attempt to settle differences before the hearing date, the judge said.

Operations of the Railroad have been at a standstill since midnight Saturday because of the strike.

The line, which serves southern and eastern Illinois and parts of Indiana and Missouri, operates 24 trains, including eight passenger trains. It has only freight service to East St. Louis, however.

Called a Surprise.

In Chicago, David O. Mathews, president of the railroad, said the work stoppage came as a "complete surprise." He said he was sure wages were not an issue and assumed the cause related to "minor grievances."

Roy E. Davidson of Cleveland, an official of the brotherhood, said the strike is unauthorized. The union is attempting to get members to return to work, he said.

He said the strike might have been caused by the abolition of some jobs by the company and the firing of five engineers for "disciplinary" reasons.

A picket at the East St. Louis freight depot, 2001 Bowman avenue, told a Post-Dispatch reporter that picketing was ordered by a local and regional official of the union.

The railroad employs about 2500 persons. About 50 per cent of its freight tonnage is coal hauled from southern Illinois mines.

The line operates freight service to Chaffee, Mo., where it connects with the St. Louis-San Francisco (Frisco) Railroad.

Besides the two East Side facilities, picket lines were reported at Danville, Ill., the Chicago area, and Evansville, Ind.

COURT REJECTS TAX DEDUCTION FOR DEAD TREES

Any drouth losses claimed as income tax deductions must be proved beyond a shadow of a doubt, a ruling by the United States Court of Appeals at St. Louis indicated today.

The court affirmed a ruling by the United States Tax Court in denying $12,500 in losses for 17 trees of James E. Kemper of Kansas City and assessing an additional $10,300 for the tax year of 1954.

A botanist testified for the Government. He said it would take several years for drouth to kill a tree adapted to the Kansas City area. It would be necessary to make microscopic examinations and analysis of roots and trunks of trees to determine if drouth caused the loss, he said. The expert also said there was no evidence the water table level in 1954 sank below the reach of roots adaptable to the area.

Kemper's expert was a man who takes care of his trees. He gave an opinion that drouth killed the trees, but his examination was only superficial and he had not seen all of the trees, the court declared. Kansas City and that section of the state was declared a drouth disaster area in 1954.

DELIVERYMAN SAYS ARMED MAN ROBBED HIM OF $1028

Cubie Hendricks, a deliveryman for the Aldo Self Service Supermarket, 3969 Easton avenue, was robbed of $1028 today by a man armed with a pistol, he told police.

Hendricks said the man was crouched behind the front seat of the supermarket station wagon when he returned after a delivery in the 1400 block of North Vandeventer avenue. The man pointed a pistol and said, "This is a stickup," Hendricks told police.

Hendricks said he gave the robber a bag containing the cash and $668 in checks, receipts from the grocery. The deliveryman was to have deposited the money at Lindell Trust Co., 2745 North Grand boulevard. Hendricks said the rober fobrced him to drive a circuitous route in north St. Louis streets before he got out near Goodfellow boulevard and Ridge avenue. The robber, a Negro, ran east in an alley, he said.

INTRUDER SHOT AND KILLED BY HIS EX-STEPSON

Younger Man Says He Fired When Figure on Porch Failed to Identify Himself.

Walker Anderson, a truck driver, died last night at Homer G. Phillips Hospital of gunshot wounds suffered early yesterday when he was shot by his former stepson.

Jerome Cannon, a welder, told police he was awakened at 2:15 a.m. by a noise in his home, 1115A Montgomery street. Obtaining his shotgun from a closet, Cannon, 22 years old, went to the kitchen and observed a man on the enclosed rear porch.

Cannon said he did not recognize Anderson and called repeatedly to the man to identify himself. When the man refused to answer, Cannon fired. The charge struck Anderson in the abdomen and thigh.

At the hospital Anderson, 36, told police he entered the home "because I knew some people there." He lived at 926A Benton street.

MAN SHOT BY WOMAN IN DISPUTE OVER DOGS

Oliver Page, 28 years old, was shot and seriously wounded last night by a woman with whom he became involved in a dispute over two dogs, police reported. The shooting occurred in the 5000 block of Enright avenue.

Page, 5175 Enright, was shot by Mrs. Leona Lewis, 5078 Cabanne avenue. She told police Page came to her house and walked off with the animals, which Page had given her two years ago to take care of.

Mrs. Lewis followed Page, ordering him to release the dogs. When he refused, she fired a pistol at him, the bullet striking him in the back. Page was taken to Homer G. Phillips Hospital. Mrs. Lewis was booked suspected of assault with a deadly weapon.

site near Burns Ditch, a drainage project emptying into the lake.

The appropriation section was inserted in a pending bill and enacted without a public hearing in an overtime legislative session after the clock had been stopped. It provided that the funds might be used only after the Army Corps of Engineers had approved the "economic feasibility and justification for a public harbor or terminal" on the Burns Ditch site.

Another complicating factor was the opposition of the Save-the-Dunes Council which sponsored a bill offered by Senator Paul H. Douglas (Dem.), Illinois, to set aside 5000 acres along the lake shore, including the Burns Ditch site, as a national monument. The Dunes long have been a recreational area for students of nature and wildlife and thousands of Chicago residents.

Residents of two lake front residential areas, Ogden Dunes and Dune Acres, were active in behalf of the preservation of the Dunes since most of the land had been bought by two large steel companies which planned to build new plants there.

Senator Douglas's bill, bitterly opposed by the harbor promoters and the steel companies, suffered an all but fatal blow last week when a Senate Interior subcommittee failed to approve it.

This made St. Lawrence Seaway Corp. stock look even better. But there remains the matter of getting approval of the project from the Army Corps of Engineers so the $2,000,000 Indiana appropriation for the site acquisition may be used.

Steel Firms Pleased.

The steel companies, naturally interested in a harbor conveniently at their front door—providing cheap water transportation for ore, coal and other materials as well as shipment of finished products—likewise had cause for elation at the state of the Douglas bill.

The companies are Bethlehem Steel Corporation, which owns some 4000 acres, and Midwest Steel Company, a subsidiary of National Steel Corporation, headed by former Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey, which has about 850 acres. Humphrey did much to change the attitude of big business toward the St. Lawrence Seaway project after it appeared that the Midwest steel industry's survival within a few years might depend on water-borne ore from rich new iron deposits in Quebec and Labrador.

The Burns Ditch harbor site lies partly in the Bethlehem Steel tract and partly in the adjoining acreage of Midwest Steel. The companies have approved sale to the Indiana Board of Harbors and Terminals of 500 acres at a discount of 25 per cent from the amount they paid for the land, or a little more than $2000 an acre. This is contingent on Army Engineers' approval of the Burns Ditch site and agreement by Indiana not to condemn any other lakeshore land which they own.

Efforts of the harbor promoters to authorize the Harbor Board to issue $36,000,000 in bonds for port development failed both in the 1955 and the 1957 Legislatures. The bill was held up in the House Ways and Means Committee after there had been talk of land speculation, although Jenner's friend, Gov. Harold W. Handley, supported it just as Gov. George N. Craig had done in 1955.

Private Port Charged.

Chief opponent was Representative John F. Shawley of Michigan City, who contended a harbor surrounded by steel company property would not be a public harbor. He said Indiana taxpayers were being asked to pay for a private seaport for the benefit of the steel companies.

Revised plans now call for a request for federal funds to build the harbor on the site paid for by the State of Indiana.

Jenner's hopes for high profits may appear to be justified by the history of land speculation in the Indiana Dunes area.

In the 1920s the waste land could be bought for $50 an acre. Clint W. Murchison, Dallas, Tex., oil man and financier with varied interests, had bought large tracts after he had acquired control of the Consumers Co. of Chicago which sold sand, gravel and cement. The Dunes provided materials which Murchison correctly thought would be in demand with the expansion of highways and other construction in the area.

After sand and gravel had been sold, there remained the land which Murchison considered well suited for industrial sites. Consumers Co. officers and directors incorporated Consumers Dunes Corp. in Indianapolis on Sept. 23, 1954, to speculate in Dune acreage, a report to the Securities and Exchange Commission said.

Consumers Co., a Delaware corporation which could not deal in Indiana real estate, "spun off" 1100 acres of Dune land to Consumers' Dunes Corp. for 31,000 shares of stock valued at $10 a share. Consumers Dunes Corp. obtained a $77,500 bank loan to add another 100 acres to its holdings and later issued 7750 additional shares of stock at $10 par to repay the bank loan.

Stock for Sale.

Offering this stock for sale to Consumers Co. stockholders, Consumers Dunes Corp. explained:

"There has arisen very recently and since this corporation was formed a great deal of interest in our property from two sources. One has been on the part of the State of Indiana . . . relating to harbor improvement. A group has approached us with a program in connection with which they would like to acquire the land.

"The opinion of your board is that whether it is months or years before the prospect becomes a reality, the stock should be worth a great deal more than $10 a share."

The registered address of Consumers Dunes Corp. was the Indianapolis office of the law firm of White, Raub, Craig & Forrey. Craig, then Governor of Indian, had said he had severed his connection with the firm when he took office in 1953.

Site of the harbor proposed by the Craig Administration was the land owned by Consumers Dunes Corp. The House Ways and Means Committee sat on the bill and nothing happened.

Consumers Dunes Corp.'s prospect was the Lake Shore Development Corp. of Indianapolis, incorporated May 6, 1956, by Lester Irons, a lawyer, and two secretaries in his office. It was organized to buy land for Bethlehem Steel Co., which planned an expansion program.

Profitable Sale.

Consumers Dunes Corp. sold its 1200 acres to Lake Shore Development Corp. on July 3, 1956. Carried on its books at $383,331, about $300 an acre, it brought $3,326,500 or about $2750 an acre.

Last year, Consumers Dunes Corp. was liquidated and the holders of its $10-a-share stock received $85 a share.

Jenner said he hoped to keep the profits from the golden Indiana dunes among his Indiana stockholders instead of letting them go to Texas.

Asked why he had decided not to be a candidate last year, the political disciple of the late Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin said that he was "tired of carrying on the fight for conservatism by myself."

Not since he called Gen. George C. Marshall "a front man for traitors" and "either an unsuspecting stooge or an actual conspirator" of a "treasonable array of political cutthroats," has the boisterous Hoosier attracted so much attention.

And not since he later made his way into President Eisenhower's campaign train in 1952 and obtained his indorsement for re-election has he attempted so bold a promotion.

against it and keep the four revenue measures in effect, the voter should place an X in the square opposite the word NO.

The razing of homes for the Mill Creek Valley urban redevelopment project has resulted in a reduction of 11 voting precincts. Ten precincts in the Sixth Ward and one in the Seventeenth Ward have been eliminated. The present total of precincts is 775.

Despite the importance of the election both to the individual citizen and to the city's financial stability, election officials predicted a light turnout. Only about 85,000 to 90,000 ballots are expected, which would be 27 to 29 per cent of the total registration of 309,819.

An intensive campaign for the higher tax has been made by a citizens committee appointed by Mayor Tucker. There has been no organized opposition. Most party ward organizations have indorsed the proposition and it has had the approval of religious, business and labor groups.

Meanwhile, the earnings tax proposal received indorsements today from the Rev. Mr. G. E. Nitz, chairman of the St. Louis Lutheran Pastoral Conference, and from 15 neighborhood associations.

"The earnings tax allows the non-resident who works in the city to share in the expense of running the city government, which provides the services and facilities available to non-residents as well as residents of the city," the Rev. Mr. Nitz said.

Neighborhood associations indorsing the proposal today were: Chouteau-Lindell Improvement Association, Compton Heights Association, Holly Hills Improvement Association, Central West End Improvement Association, North Pointe Improvement Association.

Northwest Improvement Association, O'Fallon Park Protective Association, Rosedale-Skinker Improvement Association, Russell Place Improvement Association.

Thornby Place Association, Union Boulevard Association, Washington Heights Neighbors, Waterman Boulevard Improvement Association, Waterman-McPherson Improvement Association, and Westminister Place Association.

jections to the Soviet proposal on the ground that Russia would retain freedom of action against West Berlin once the time limit had expired. And he charged Gromyko had seemed to be saying that in making a standstill agreement the Western powers would in fact be agreeing to the ultimate liquidation of their rights in Berlin.

However, during the recess of the conference here, Herter noted, Gromyko made a statement on June 28 implying that Western rights would not be abrogated by the agreement. Gromyko said Russia had proposed that new negotiations on West Berlin should follow expiration of the agreement and that this fact should "speak for itself."

Herter declared the purpose of international agreements is to avoid reliance on facts that speak for themselves. The aim of the Western powers now, he said, is to try to reach understandings with Russia which can be put into written form and thus reduce the danger of later disagreement over what they mean.

France, Britain Backs U.S.

French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville and British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd indorsed Herter's call for secret talks in brief statements.

Gromyko renewed the Soviet proposal for an 18-month suspension to the Soviet Threat to West Berlin, during which a committee of east and west Germans would try to work out a program for German unification and a peace settlement.

Gromyko argued this still offers the best basis for a stopgap Berlin agreement and in effect urged the Western powers to accept it as a basis for negotiation.

Gromyko said the West's "present system of using the lines of communication with Western Berlin might be maintained" during an interim period of 18 months if the West agreed to reduce its West Berlin forces to token size, stop "subversion and hostile propaganda" in West Berlin and refrained from deploying atomic and rocket weapons there.

The Soviet proposal provides that during the moratorium a committee of East and West Germans should be established to promote greater contacts between the two parts of Germany, to prepare for German reunification and to consider a peace treaty. If this committee succeeded in workout out a unification plan, there would be no further Berlin problem. But Western governments are very skeptical of such a result and it is for this reason that they want to make sure of continuing their rights in West Berlin before they seriously consider further the Soviet proposition.

And they want the proposed moratorium to run for at least 30 months instead of 18.

West Less Pessimistic.

During the conference recess the Western ministers have shed much of their pessimism about finding a way out of the Berlin stalemate. Their cautious optimism apparently grew out of Soviet denials that the Gromyko proposals for a standstill agreement was a trick to deprive them of their rights in Berlin when the agreement expired.

"Although I do not come here with high hopes," Herter said on his return yesterday, "I believe it is possible, with good will on both sides, to reach an agreement."

Couve de Murville declared "this time perhaps it will be possible to arrive at a limited concrete arrangement on the problems before us."

"I have always believed," said Lloyd, "that it is possible to reach agreement on a certain number of points. I still believe this, and in that faith I will address myself to the work of the conference."

West Germany Demonstratees With Work Stoppage.

FRANKFURT, Germany, July 13 (UPI)—West Germany staged a demonstration today to let the world know it desires peace and reunification with the rest of the fatherland.

Work throughout the nation stopped for two minutes today at noon, less than three hours before the Big Four foreign ministers resumed talks at Geneva. The government sanctioned the demonstration.

Public transportation came to a standstill. Workers at their machines and lathes stood idle and silent, radio stations interrupted their programs, and news agencies ceased transmitting in the massive demonstration.

TWO SENATORS URGE RESHAPING DEFENSE PLANS

WASHINGTON, July 13 (UPI)—Two Senate Democrats said today that Congress should reshape the Administration's defense program before it is too late.

The call for action came from Senators Henry M. Jackson of Washington and Stuart Symington of Missouri as the Senate began debate on the $39,594,339,000 defense appropriation bill for the fiscal year which began July 1. The measure provides $346,139,000 more than President Eisenhower requested and $746,000,000 more than the House voted.

Jackson said the bill "falls far short of the kind of defense program needed by the nation." He urged that more be provided for ballistic missiles, a modern army, anti-submarine defenses and military research and development. He said the President's approach of applying an arbitrary budget ceiling is "an ideal device to obscure the real requirements of survival."

Symington said Congress should use its appropriation power to "force the administration to reorganize its defenses on the basis of the progress incident to this nuclear age, instead of continuing to let them drift in tradition."

He said Congress should "appropriate on the basis of functions to be performed, rather than on some pre-determined split of a given amount between the services."

Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen said President Eisenhower "has his hackles up" over the bill's proposal to increase Marine oCrps strength.

Dirksen said the President was concerned with the plan to boost the Marine Corps strength from 175,000 men to 200,000 because such a mandatory floor on forces would involve continuing cost increases.

Senator Allen J. Ellender (Dem.), Louisiana, considered offering a proposal for a 900,000-man regular Army instead of the budgeted 870,000-man strength. He was unsuccessful with the proposal in the Appropriations Committee and its military subcommittee.

As approved by the Appropriations Committee, the Senate bill would build up both nuclear retaliatory punch and the nation's ability to fight so-called "limited" wars.

Army—870,000 men in the regular Army, 400,000 men in the National Guard and 300,000 men in the Reserves. About $400,000,000 in new and reallocated money is provided to modernize guns, tanks, vehicles and other Army hardware.

Navy—630,000 men in the regular Navy, 135,000 in the Naval Reserve. The Navy would be allowed to start building its second nuclear-powered aircraft carrier at a cost of $380,000,000, build four nuclear-powered submarines and order the long-construction-time elements of a fifth.

regular Air Force, 60,560 in the Reserve and 74,500 in the Air National Guard. Funds would continue purchases of strategic jet bombers and buy jet training planes.

Marines—200,000 instead of the 175,000 budgeted force which was approved without change by the House, 42,000 in the Marine Corps Reserve.

Missiles—Boosts Mr. Eisenhower's budget by $167,000,000 to provide funds for speeding development of ballistic missiles. In addition, the bill allows liberal transfer authority to exploit possible "breakthrough" in the missile field.

Air defense—Finances most of the Administration's air defense plan, including a $137,000,000 increase over the budget for development of the Nike-Zeus anti-missile misslie.- The Senate bill restores about $80,000,000 of the $162,000,000 cut by the House from the Air Force Bomarc missile program.

As it went before the Senate, the bill contained $9,428,505,000 for Army activities, $11,262,503,000 for the Navy and Marines, and $17,530,106,000 for the Air Force. It also carried $1,373,225,000 for projects controlled by the office of the Secretary of Defense.

Yesterday, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, who recently retired as Army chief of staff, said there had been no over-all reappraisal of defense forces since shortly after President Eisenhower took office in January 1953.

LUTHERANS UNVEIL PLAQUE MARKING SITE OF CHURCH

A plaque commemorating a Lutheran church landmark was unveiled in a ceremony yesterday on the Servco building, 318 Lombard avenue. The first Lutheran church building was dedicated there Dec. 4, 1842.

Principal speaker at the ceremony was the Rev. Gerhard Nitz, chairman of the St. Louis Pastoral Conference and pastor of Grace Lutheran Church. Also participating were Prof. Elmer E. Foelber, president of the local chapter of the Concordia Historical Institute, and the Rev. August R. Suelflow, director of the institute.

Services in the brick building were conducted until 1865, when Trinity congregation built a new church on Eighth and Soulard streets. Classes of Concordia Seminary also were held there briefly from December 1849 to December 1850.

ARRESTS RISE IN FIGHT AGAINST PORNOGRAPHIC MAIL

WASHINGTON, July 13 (UPI)—Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield says the Post Office is "making headway" in its war against peddlers of pornographic pictures and literature.

Summerfield said yesterday that there were 293 arrests for sending smut through the mails last year, a 45 per cent increase above the 136 arrests in 1954.

However, he said, the problem has grown to one that "staggers the imagination." He said the Post Office got 70,000 complaints in the first six months of 1959 compared with 50,000 for all of 1958.

Steelworkers' 171-man wage-policy committee.

Opposing Stands.

The industry has insisted on obtaining more management control over various operations to cover any pay or other concessions that might be offered.

The union has refused to yield on this subject. It said the industry has refused to make any specific wage increase offer.

McDonald, after receiving word of the White House request, met briefly with his union executive committee.

He rushed out to a hotel corridor telephone and, in the sight of reporters and photographers, called Cooper to arrange the new negotiating resumption.

In a short statement McDonald said:

The union agrees with President Eisenhower that there is opportunity and time for settlement to be reached before the strike deadline.

"We are notifying the industry's negotiators that we are prepared to resume negotiations at once for this purpose."

In response to a prior White House bid the union granted a two-week strike truce postponing the contract deadline from July 1 until tomorrow night.

The industry, prior to today's developments, had already started banking furnaces and slowing production.

Mr. Eisenhower's appeal was voiced through his press secretary, James C. Hagerty.

Hagerty said the President had conferred today with Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell regarding the threatened strike. He gave no details regarding those separate conferences.

As for the President's views, Hagerty read this statement to newsmen:

"There is opportunity and time for settlement to be reached before the strike deadline set by the union.

"In the interest of union members, the steel companies and the public, the President hopes that the union and the industry will continue to work for a settlement."

Hagerty then volunteered that Mr. Eisenhower and Mitchell had conferred regarding the steel situation for about 25 minutes this morning. Hagerty added that the President and Nixon later met for about 45 minutes. He said that conference dealt with many things, and that the steel strike threat was one of them.

In reply to a question, Hagerty said Mr. Eisenhower had not been in direct communication with either side in the dispute.

Watching Situation.

Asked whether the President plans any new move to avert a strike, Hagerty replied only that Mr. Eisenhower would be watching the situation with a great deal of interest.

The time is too short for President Eisenhower to invoke the emergency procedures of the Taft-Hartley law to avert a walkout at midnight Tuesday by 500,000 workers in plants accounting for 90 per cent of the national steel production. Such procedures involve appointment of a fact-finding board and an investigation before a court injunction against a strike could be sought.

The desperate nature of the bargaining became clear after an exchange of industry and union proposals yesterday. None of them was accepted by the other side.

The argument boiled down to (1) industry insistence that it must have relief from union work practices that the industry says have saddled it with unnecessary costs since 1947, and (2) union demands that workers are entitled to new wage and benefit boosts.

YOUNG BOONVILLE INMATE ADMITS ATTACKING WOMAN

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOONVILLE, Mo., July 13 — Walter Russell, 17-year-old inmate of the Missouri Training School for Boys, has admitted criminally assaulting a Boonville woman in her home early Saturday, Deputy Sheriff Bill Hughey reported today.

Hughey said Russell who was committed from St. Louis, admitted he left the training school, unlocked a basement window and entered the woman's bedroom. The woman said he threatened her with a knife and told her he would harm her young daughter if she resisted. Her husband was away from home.

The youth told Hughey he returned to the training school in time to join his morning work shift. It was believed he was gone less than half an hour. A preliminary hearing was scheduled to be held for Russell today.

PIPELINE FIRM EXPLAINS OUTPUT ABOVE 'CAPACITY'

By THOMAS W. OTTENAD
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 13—Steps by which Mississippi River Fuel Corp. increased its deliveries of natural gas above the estimated capacity of its pipeline system were described today at a Federal Power Commission hearing.

Harold O. Ziebold, general superintendent of the pipeline firm, said gas supplied to a number of industrial concerns was curtailed to meet a demand for increased fuel for residential heating during extreme cold weather in St. Louis last winter.

In addition, he said, gas was cut off entirely from some firms whose operations switch from natural gas to alternate fuels in periods of extreme cold.

Other measures that Ziebold said were taken a meet peak demands included withdrawal of gas from Mississippi's underground storage field near Waterloo, Ill., and high-speed operation of compressor stations of two pipelines bringing natural gas to the St. Louis area.

Laclede Seeks Increase.

The FPC hearing which began June 30, is investigating a complaint by Laclede, alleging it has been unable to obtain increased supplies of gas from tion for expanded gas supplies is being opposed by both Mississippi and 10 of Mississippi's industrial customers, as well as the Alton District Manufacturers Association.

Witnesses for Mississippi have testified that any increase in gas allotments to Laclede would mean reduction in supplies for industrial use. About 35 industrial concerns in the St. Louis area purchase gas directly from Mississippi. Laclede resells, chiefly to residential customers, gas it purchases from the pipeline concern.

Periods described today by Ziebold included eight days last December and 11 in January. Temperatures were below freezing much of the time and below zero on a number of days.

Most of the time, the witness said, daily gas deliveries by Mississippi exceeded 524,000,000 cubic feet, the pipeline firm's estimate of the sustained capacity of its pipeline system.

Dispute on Capacity.

There has been a sharpe dispute during the hearing between attorneys for Mississippi and for Laclede as to the capacity of the system. Laclede representatives have claimed the pipeline's capacity is at least 540,000,000 cubic feet daily.

In support of this view, they have pointed out that last winter average peak daily deliveries amount to 3561,000,000 cubic feet.

Spokesmen for Mississippi have countered with the explanation that the sustained capacity of the line can be exceeded for short periods by measures such as those Ziebold described. They have warned, however, that these measures are temporary in nature and cannot be counted on for increased deliveries over extended periods of time.

Other executives of the pipeline firm scheduled to be cross-examined later this week are William G. Marbury, chairman of the board; Glenn W. Clark, president; and Charles A. Quinn, assistant sales manager.

The basic question which the FPC must answer is, in effect, in the public interest, how much gas should be allocated to industrial use and how much to Laclede and other distributors for resale to residential and other customers.

Laclede, Mississippi and its industrial customers all have an important economic stake in how the question is answered.

For Laclede, more gas means more customers and more revenue. The firm has a waiting list of 27,000 applicants seeking gas for residential heating. It estimates that 129,000 families not now using gas for heating would be potential customers if sufficient fuel could be made available. Addition of these customers would increase Laclede's present domestic market by about two-thirds.

For Mississippi, the prospect of taking gas from its industrial customers is an unhappy one. Its industrial rates are not subject to FPC regulation and are generally higher than those charged Laclede and other distributors, which are subject to FPC jurisdiction. So shifting gas from industrial to resale customers could cut into Mississippi's revenues. The effect would be compounded if the FPC drastically revised the penalty charges paid by utilities when their use of gas exceeds stated demands.

For industrial firms, gas is a cheap fuel. Witnesses testified that their costs of production will rise if they are forced to shift to other fuels. Some said it would be difficult to continue operating with any fuel but gas.

Representatives of Laclede have brought out that many industrial firms have been using far more gas than is authorized in their contracts with Mississippi. Unlike Laclede, industrial users do not pay a penalty for excess quantities of gas.

A spokesman for Laclede told the Post-Dispatch the amount of gas used by industrial customers of Mississippi in excess of their contract authorizations last winter would have enabled Laclede to supply gas to "thousands of residential customers."

The hearing has brought out that both Mississippi and Laclede are planning increased use of underground storage reservoirs in an effort to increase the availability of gas supplies for the St. Louis area. Mississippi has plans for a field near St. Jacobs, Ill., about 18 miles east of St. Louis, and Laclede has plans for one near Columbia, Mo.

Laclede already operates an underground reservoir in north St. Louis county and Mississippi operates a similar field near Waterloo, Ill. A representative of Mississippi said the Waterloo field has been unsatisfactory because of gas leaks and water seepage.

CALIFORNIA'S GOV. BROWN IN AUTOMOBILE COLLISION

LOS ANGELES, July 13 (AP)—Gov. Edmund G. Brown was involved in an automobile collision yesterday, but apparently escaped injury.

Police at first said the Governor was taken to a hospital for treatment of an arm injury, but a nurse at the hospital said Brown stopped only to drop off his chauffeur, who suffered a strained neck and minor head contusions.

The Governor was driving to a television studio for an appearance on a panel program when the accident occurred.

FLEMMING OPPOSES MEDICAL CARE BILL

WASHINGTON, July 13 (UPI)—The Administration urged Congress today to reject a proposal to provide free medical care for the aged by boosting social security taxes.

Arthur S. Flemming, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, said extension of social security benefits to provide compulsory hospital and surgical insurance was an unsatisfactory and "very unwise" solution to the problem.

He told the House Ways and Means Committee that enactment of the controversial legislation would have "far-reaching and irrevocable consequences." He said it would stifle and probably ultimately eliminate programs, of voluntary insurance, which now are expanding.

Instead of adopting a compulsory program, Flemming said the government should seek a [illegible]y' of promoting broader voluntary medical insurance for the aged—possibly including subsidies for those who cannot afford the premiums.

The proposal is backed by organized labor, but has been rejected by members of the medical profession, who have termed it "socialized medicine."

Flemming said his department was now studying alternative plans and he hoped to have some recommendation ready for Congress next year.

Flemming was lead-off witness as the committee began a full week of hearings on the controversial plan sponsored by Representative Aime J. Forand (Dem.), Rhode Island, second-ranking committee Democrat.

Although no action is expected this year, enactment of the legislation before adjournment in 1960 is one of organized labor's top objectives. Defeat of the bill is the No. 1 legislative aim of the American Medical Association which contends that "government-controlled medicine" is "bad medicine."

The Forland bill would provide hospitalization, surgical and nursing home benefits for all retired persons and their spouses already receiving social security benefits. The eligibility age is 65 for men and 62 for women.

Social security taxes, which apply to the first $4800 in annual earnings, would be boosted one-fourth of 1 per cent for covered workers and their employers and three-eighths of 1 per cent for the self-employed. This would mean tax increases ranging up to $12 a year for workers and $18 a year for the self-employed.

Inflation may look too big for you to hold down. But lots of people, working together, can pin inflation to the ground.

There is a way to hold down inflation

You can probably remember when, on week-end shopping, you couldn't lift all a five-dollar bill could buy. Today, as you know, money doesn't go that far. That's inflation.

And it isn't only in one department or store. Inflation makes everything cost more.

Even fatter pay checks have a tough time keeping up with rising prices. Just since the end of the war, this "cruelest tax of all" has cut 32¢ from the dollar.

One of the reasons your dollar is worth less and less is excessive government spending. Some people urge their representatives to spend and spend even when it means borrowing from the future. But these people overlook that spending tomorrow's money today is merely postponing payment and adding to inflation.

This is where you can play an important part. You can tell the government what you want instead of leaving the field to pressure groups who never fail to tell the government what they want. You can also spend your family income with an eye to getting your money's worth and saving something, too.

HOW YOU CAN HELP STOP INFLATION

1. Write to your senators and congressmen and tell them you favor tightening up on expenditures which can be reduced, postponed or eliminated altogether. Many of them believe exactly as you do, but if they hear mainly from pressure groups who demand more spending, it is hard for them to hold the line against inflation. That is why you and others need to make it clear that you expect the government to live within its income.

2. Your state and local representatives also may appreciate being reminded that you favor tightening up on state and local expenditures. A good way to keep yourself fully informed on how your representatives are voting is through your newspaper.

3. Whenever you shop, don't be afraid to be price-conscious. You have a right to receive full value for the money you spend.

4. When you buy wisely, you will find it easier to build a nest egg which will give your family that extra protection you want them to have. And as many of us add to our nest eggs, we will be providing the capital for more jobs and greater opportunity for all.

A strong and prosperous America depends on a strong and stable dollar.

Brought to you in the interest of every American who is concerned with preserving the value of the dollar.

$3773 IN LOOT STOLEN FROM 2 UNION OFFICES

Two union offices one block apart were looted by burglars, it was discovered yesterday. Cash, negotiable Government coupons and whisky with a total value of $3773 were stolen.

At Carpenters Hall, 1401 Hampton avenue, 20 cases of whisky and 180 bottles of assorted liquor were hauled away from the Chip Room, a tavern in the building. The liquor was valued at $1750. The combination was knocked off a safe, but the safe was not entered.

Negotiable coupons from Government bonds, valued at $1940, and $83 cash were stolen from a safe in the offices of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union, 1330 Hampton avenue. The safe apparently was opened by means of the combination, police reported. Entrance to both buildings was gained through windows.

Truck Driver Robbed.

William Wright, Clinton, Tenn., was robbed of $495 and his wristwatch early yesterday by three young men who pulled him from his truck, he told police.

Wright said he was sleeping in the cab of the truck on a parking lot at Sloan's Moving & Storage Co., 950 Hodiamont avenue. He awakened after the men pulled him from the cab, he reported. The robbers fled across the parking lot.

When Patrolman Joseph Dunnington, Penrose District, passed the rear door of the Regent Tavern, 2826 North Fourteenth street, early yesterday he heard the clink of bottles, and found the door ajar.

Entering the tavern, Dunnington arrested a man who was placing bottles of liquor in a carton. The man said he was Isaac O'Bryant, a former convict living in the 2500 block of North Ninth street. He told police he unlocked the rear door when drinking in the tavern earlier in the evening, and returned to steal liquor and cigarettes.

Intruder Arrested.

Investigating a report that a man had been seen on the fire escape at the Curlee Clothing Co. factory, 2033 Locust street, early yesterday, police searched the building and arrested a former convict who was hiding in a packing case on the sixth floor. The prisoner, Robert Plant, admitted, police said, that he forced a window to gain entrance, after climbing the fire escape. Police said he has served sentences in the workhouse and the penitentiary.

Grady Green, 4209 Washington boulevard, and Paul Douglass, Jefferson City, reported they weer strongarmed and robbed early yesterday by two men who assaulted them in the 1300 block of Broadway, East St. Louis. The robbers obtained $20 from Green and $100 from Douglass. The victims refused medical treatment.

Theft of $127 from Hampton Cleaners & Laundry, 3463 Hampton avenue, was reported to police today. The money was taken from a cash drawer and a desk.

There was no sign of forced entry. Mrs. Charles Koenig, manager, who discovered the theft, said entrance might have been gained with a duplicate key.

60 PIGS, 2 BULLS TRAPPED WHEN TRUCK TURNS OVER

Sixty pigs and two young bulls were trapped for more than four hours early today when a tractor-trailer overturned at Lindbergh boulevard and Manchester road in Kirkwood.

Thomas E. Moore, Perry, Mo., the driver, said the truck turned on its side when the load shifted as he made a left turn into Manchester. Eleven pigs were killed in the crush.

Eleven Kirkwood, Glendale, county and state policemen helped two officers of the Animal Protective Association and livestock men to extricate the animals and transfer them to two trucks supplied by the Independent Packing Co. Moore, who was on his way to National Stockyards, was unhurt. A companion, Donald Hoit, also escaped injury.

week if I did not appear as a witness before this committee."

Williams, sitting two rows back with Hoffa, shook his head vigorously as Crum said this, and committee chairman John L. McClellan warned Crum "this is a pretty serious charge."

"It's the truth," Crum replied. "I'm well aware that I'm under oath."

Resigned June 26.

(Schmidt resigned as a monitor June 26 to devote all his time to the case brought by the rank-and-file group.)

"Mr. Bridges said the Long shoremen's union now had a direct interest in the Teamsters union and the Longshoremen's union was not satisfied with the way in which Mr. Schmidt acted as a monitor," Crum said.

"Bridges said the Longshoremen had completed arrangements for a merger with the Teamsters union to form a giant transportation union in the United States, Hawaii and Alaska. . . Mr. Schmidt had written a letter objecting to a union of these two tremendous trade union forces."

Hoffa scheduled to testify later today in his fourth appearance before the committee, sat sternly two rows back while Crum testified. Schmidt sat in the front row.

When Crum said that part of the deal for Schmidt's resignation would be payment by the Teamsters of $105,000 in legal fees which that union had refused to pay up to then, Senator John F. Kennedy (Dem.), Massachusetts, interjected:

"This is another example of the Teamsters union and Mr. Hoffa playing fast and loose—attempting in a sense to corrupt justice . . . with a pay-off to Mr. Schmidt if he would accept it."

Wells Outvoted.

Crum said that Bridges and Goldblatt wanted him to succeed Schmidt, thinking that since he was an old friend he would "go along" with the Teamster-appointed monitor, L. N. D. Wells Jr. He pointed out that Wells had constantly been outvoted 2-to-1 by Schmidt and monitor chairman Martin O'Donoghue.

Successor Sworn In.

(A New York labor lawyer, Lawrence T. Smith, was sworn in today as the monitor replacing Schmidt.)

Crum said that the $105,000 in fees had been ordered by a federal district court and a Teamster appeal was pending at the time of the ILWU offer. He said the Teamsters later won the appeal in circuit court.

SCIENCE DISCOVERS WAY TO "WIPE OUT" ATHLETE'S FOOT
New saturated pads wipe athlete's foot fungi out of cracks between toes with prescription type, quick drying lotion. Regular use effectively checks re-infection

New York (N. Y.) (Medical Special). Now you can actually wipe out the fungi that cause itching peeling athlete's foot with a new kind of throw-away pads. The pads are saturated with a prescription type lotion that kills Athlete's Foot fungi on contact.

The active ingredients in the lotion are a combination of those prescribed by doctors, but until now not available in one formula. No messy creams, hit or miss powders and burning liquids. Just one wipe between cracked peeling toes and the cause of itching, peeling, and discomfort is literally wiped out. Then you throw the pad away. Painful stubborn cases begin to heal instantly.

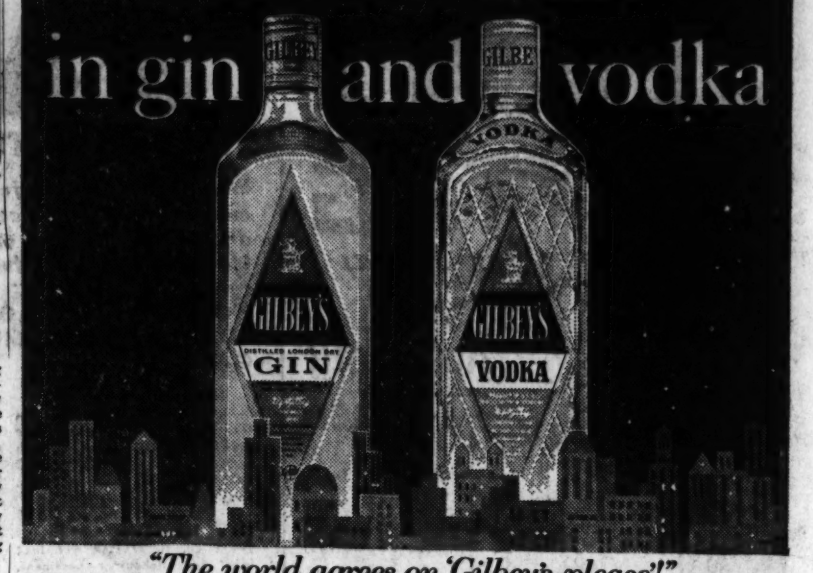

Your feet feel cool, comfortable clean. When used regularly after healing, re-infection is effectively blocked. This new way to wipe out Athlete's Foot and keep it away is called Athlex. New Athlex foot pads are now available at all drug counters without prescription.

The Choice Is Up To YOU!

VOTE YES ☒ TUESDAY, JULY 14

PAY LESS CITY TAXES!

Do You Want To Pay ALL The City Tax Increase,

. . . Or Just PART Of It?

THE VOTERS' CHOICE

St. Louisans will make an important choice July 14 on the type of taxes they will pay to run their city. The outcome of the election will affect their pocketbooks.

The Board of Aldermen has already enacted four new taxes sufficient to raise about $4,500,000 to balance this year's budget.

However, the city has delayed collection of these taxes. Why? To give St. Louisans the opportunity to choose between those four taxes and an increase in the earnings tax from one-half of 1 per cent to no more than 1 per cent.

PAY IT ALL OR ONLY TWO-THIRDS

If the increased earnings tax is approved by 60 per cent of the voters, St. Louisans will pay only $3,000,000 of the new revenue needed—because non-residents working in the city pay one-third of the earnings tax. If the earnings tax fails, the four new taxes will be collected. St. Louisans will pay ALL of the $4,500,000.

With the earnings tax, St. Louis residents pay only about 65 cents out of every dollar collected from this source. With any other tax program, St. Louisans pay the entire dollar.

THE ALTERNATE TAX PROGRAM

★ Another one-half cent increase in the city's gasoline tax, bringing the total to 2 cents per gallon.

★ A new $8 annual charge per household for rubbish collection. ($4 for rooming house units.)

★ A 75-cent increase (from $1.75 to $2.50) per $1000 on sales of merchants and manufacturers. (You will pay this tax through higher prices on goods.)

A "YES" VOTE WILL ELIMINATE THE 4 TAXES

If the earnings tax rate increase fails, these taxes will be collected without any further Aldermanic action. But if the earnings tax increase is approved, the four taxes will be eliminated. The ordinances enacting these four taxes contain "repealer" clauses which automatically kill these taxes if the earnings tax rate goes up. This is not merely a promise—it is a guarantee written into law.

REDUCED TAXES NEXT YEAR

The present earnings tax of one-half of 1 per cent on wages, salaries, commissions and on net profits of business (before income taxes) produces about $10,000,000 annually. An increase to a flat 1 per cent, therefore, would produce about $20,000,000.

The flat 1 per cent, along with already existing taxes (except the four emergency bills) would produce more money than would be needed to balance the 1960-61 city budget next spring.

Therefore, approval of the earnings tax increase would do more than simply eliminate the four new taxes. It would PAVE THE WAY FOR REDUCED TAXES NEXT YEAR.

Such a tax reduction could be approached in various ways. Property taxes and/or certain other taxes such as those on gasoline and cigarettes and the like could be reduced if the earnings tax remained at a flat 1 per cent. Or the Board of Aldermen could change the earnings tax ordinance next spring to provide some type of exemptions.

RETIRED RESIDENTS WILL BENEFIT

Older citizens on social security or pensions would gain by passage of the earnings tax increase. Income from these sources is not subject to the earnings tax.

However, if the earnings tax fails they will be forced to pay the four emergency taxes already levied despite their limited, set incomes.

RENTERS PAY LESS, TOO

Defeat of the earnings tax will increase your rent. Why? Because landlords will have to pass on the increased property taxes and new rubbish collection fee to their tenants. Whether you own your own home or rent—the earnings tax is your best bargain.

And don't forget: Passage of the earnings tax will lessen your tax load. One-third of the earnings tax comes from non-residents who work in the city and use your city facilities and services.

REMEMBER, IF YOU LIVE IN THE CITY YOU PAY LESS TAXES IF YOU VOTE YES ☒

SELASSIE GETS $100,000,000 SOVIET CREDIT

MOSCOW, July 13 (AP)—Premier Khrushchev sent Emperor Haile Selassie flying back toward Ethiopia today with a 400,000,000-ruble credit (about $100,000,000) to help industrialize his underdeveloped nation.

The Soviet Premier and President Klementi Voroshilov accompanied the Emperor to Vnukovo airport where an honor guard, bands and members of Moscow's diplomatic corps saw him into a plane after his two-week stay.

The Soviet TU-104 jet airliner took the Ethiopians to Prague for a five-day visit.

A joint communique said the credit would be available on a low-interest, long-term basis. It will be used not only for industrialization but also to improve agriculture.

Voroshilov, as official host, made a brief farewell speech wishing the Emperor success and happiness. The President praised the "courageous and industrious" people of Ethiopia and noted that the agreement on trade and cultural exchanges signed during the visit is designed to strengthen relations between the two nations.

In reply, Haile Selassie praised the "compassion and kindness" of the Russians toward his country.

"We are greatly impressed by the genius of your leaders, their ability and their industrious work which have brought the future into the present," he declared.

A Tass report confirmed Khrushchev's acceptance of an invitation to visit Ethiopia but said no date yet had been settled.

Khrushchev Arrives in Poland Tomorrow for 9-Day Visit.

WARSAW, July 13 (UPI)—Premier Khrushchev arrives by air tomorrow for a nine-day visit to Poland, it was officially announced today.

The visiting Russian and his government delegation will be welcomed by the leaders of the Polish Communist party and government, presumably including First Secretary Wladyslaw Gomulka, Chairman of the Council of State Aleksander Zawadzki, and Premier Cyrankiewicz.

(Western diplomats are calling the tour a reconciliation visit aimed at wiping out memories of Khrushchev's hurried call in October, 1956, when he vainly tried to slow the pace of de-Stalinization and prevent the ouster of Soviet-Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky as Poland's Defense Minister.)

FIVE KILLED WHEN PRIVATE PLANE CRASHES IN COLORADO

IGNACIO, Colo., July 13 (AP)—Five persons were killed yesterday when a two-engine private plane crashed high in Colorado's southwestern mountains, setting off a forest fire.

Bodies of a Chicago industrialist and an Iowa woman and her three children were found. The dead were identified as Kenneth B. Ross of Chicago, president of the Ross Manufacturing Co.; Mrs. Betty Mink of Washington, Ia., and her son and two daughters.

Ross and Mrs. Mink, believed to be an employe at his company plant at Washington, Ia., were in Durango to purchase mineral specimens. The company which Ross heads makes television parts.

PRESIDENT SEEKS FUNDS FOR SEA WATER CONVERSION

WASHINGTON, July 13 (AP)—President Eisenhower today asked Congress for $1,550,000 to be used for construction of the first demonstration station for conversion of sea water to fresh water.

This request for the Department of the Interior's office of saline water was one item in a total of $3,435,000 asked for by Mr. Eisenhower.

Other items included $1,050,000 for the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor statistics to expand its studies of productivity and wage statistics. Mr. Eisenhower also requested an extra $685,000 for Senate expenses. That would be charged against the budget for the fiscal year which ended June 30.

Butler Asserts Religion Could Hamper Presidential Candidate

WASHINGTON, July 13 (AP) — Paul M. Butler, the Democratic national chairman, said today he regretfully feels that being a Catholic would hamper the chances of a presidential candidate.

Senator Thruston B. Morton of Kentucky, the Republican chairman, agreed that might be so, but added he is "hopeful it wouldn't be."

Both Butler and Morton, answering questions on a television show (NBC "Today"), shied away from predicting their parties' 1960 presidential nominees.

If he ventured a choice, Butler commented, the "sound and fury" that has whirled around him the past week "would be as nothing."

Butler has been in hot water with some party leaders for suggesting Democrats would stack up better for next year's elections if they adopted more aggressive tactics in Congress.

'True, Sadly Enough.'

Asked whether Catholicism would be a handicap, Butler replied:

"As a Catholic, and one who has been in politics 33 years, I certainly do believe that would be true, sadly enough."

Butler said, however, he also believes the public attitude has changed since the late Alfred E. Smith, a Catholic, was the Democratic candidate in 1928 and lost to Herbert Hoover.

One of the Democrats' potential 1960 nominees, Senator John B. Kennedy of Massachusetts, is a Catholic.

Kennedy's name was not mentioned on the program in connection with a candidate's religion, but was used among a group of possible contenders for Butler's appraisal. Butler refused to venture an opinion as to which would be the most effective.

"I really would be in trouble if I answered that," he said.

Nixon or Rockefeller.

Neither would Butler say whether Democrats would rather run against Vice President Richard M. Nixon or New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller. He did express the belief that Nixon "has more experience at the national level and is more astute."

Butler prophesied that the principal issues in 1960 would be "lack of aggressive leadership by the Eisenhower Administration, the economic situation and Administration fiscal policy."

Morton, in party chairman tradition, likewise declined to choose between Nixon and Rockefeller.

"It is a fact that the Vice President has had more experience on the national political scene," Morton said, "but they both would be hard to beat. They are both vote getters."

Control of Convention.

Butler said that some Democrats want to replace him as national chairman with a member of Congress so they can contol the party's 1960 convention. He does not think they will succeed.

In a press conference Saturday and in a television interview yesterday on ABC's "College News Conference," Butler insisted he is only reporting the sentiment he finds and not directly criticizing such party leaders as Senate majority leader Lyndon B. Johnson and House Speaker Sam Rayburn, both of Texas.

He said yesterday there are reports his Capitol Hill critics already have agreed to support a Western Senator as his successor. He declined to name the Senator. Others discounted his report.

Any ouster move probably would come up at a mid-September meeting of the Democratic National Committee. Butler said he has no plan to resign unless a majority of the committee thinks he should quit. The party committee, not its Congress members, selects the national chairman.

Butler said yesterday that only two of the committee members from whom he has heard have criticized his stand. He named them as Senator Theodore Francis Green of Rhode Island and Byron Skelton of Temple, Tex.

A third member spoke out yesterday. In St. Louis, Mark R. Holloran said he thinks Butler should resign for the good of the party.

"I think Butler is wrong and is stirring up a lot of unnecessary trouble," said Holloran, national committeeman from Missouri. He added he would vote for a resolution asking Butler's resignation, if "the motion were not tied with something else."

"There is something behind his action. Maybe he is working with some candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination to take some control away from the Southerners."

Beer Blast Kills Bartender.

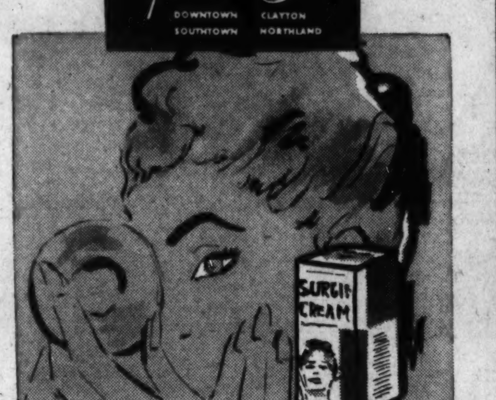

BALTIMORE, July 13 (AP)—A bartender at a wedding reception was killed by an exploding beer keg Saturday night. He was Walter A. Kropkowski. The keg exploded as he and another bartender were cleaning up after the party.

$200,000 SCHOOL VOTED IN ST. CHARLES COUNTY

A proposed $200,000 bond issue for a junior high school in Reorganized School District No. 5, in northern St. Charles county, was approved by voters, 346 to 33, at a special election Saturday.

Proposed site of the new school is on Highway 94 near Orchard Farm. The district, composed of 15 rural districts, was formed early this year. Senior and junior high school students in the area now attend school in St. Charles.

DIRKSEN URGES EISENHOWER TO VETO TVA BILL

WASHINGTON, July 13 (UPI)—Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois recommended yesterday that President Eisenhower veto another act of the Democratic-controlled Congress.

Dirksen said in an interview that if he were President he would feel "absolutely compelled" to veto the pending Tennessee Valley Authority self-financing bill because it sidesteps regular budgetary control.

"If I were President," said Dirksen, "I'd reach for the biggest blue pencil there was and say, 'This is not for me.'"

Mr. Eisenhower already has vetoed four major bills this session—the big Democratic housing measure, legislation to strip Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson of his power over rural electrification loans and two bills to overhaul the wheat and tobacco programs.

The TVA bill, which would allow the agency to issue up to $750,000,000 worth of its own bonds to finance power plant expansion, has passed the House and the Senate and gone to a conference committee. Dirksen was defeated in an effort to give the President more direct control over TVA spending proposals.

Dirksen said he was certain that Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson and Budget Director Maurice Stans would recommend a veto of the measure if the budgetary problem is not corrected. He noted that two Hoover study commissions recommended executive control of the budget.

Mr. Eisenhower's most recent veto of the housing bill still has congressional Democratic leaders up in the air on their strategy.

Senator Allen J. Ellender (Dem.), Lousiana said in a weekend radio program that the President was "trying to usurp congressional powers" by heavy use of the veto.

He said that while pro-civil rights legislators insist that majority rule should prevail in Congress, the President in effect imposes two-thirds rule by use of the veto. It takes a two-thirds vote of both houses to override a veto.

Roof Falls, Two Killed.

MEXICO CITY, July 13 (AP)—An old tenement roof collapsed yesterday, burying two of the 32 families living in the building. Two persons were killed and three seriously injured.

Florida Couple Begins 2-Week Honeymoon in Bomb Shelter

MIAMI, Fla., July 13 (AP)—The nation's first bomb-shelter honeymooners kept house today in fortress-like privacy 10 feet underground in Miami.

Melvin Mininson, 28 years old, and his bride, Maria Rodriguez, 27, of Tampa, hope to spend two weeks in their room-sized, steel and concrete bower to publicize bomb shelters and civil defense. If they stick it out, sponsors of the stunt promised them a second honeymoon in Jamaica.

The Mininsons inched down a hatchway ladder into the shelter about 5 p.m. yesterday. At 9:30, telephone callers reported, they were asleep and none too happy over being awakened for a check on their well being.

Cecil O. Barnard, president of Bomb Shelters, Inc., which arranged the subterranean honeymoon, said Mininson reported the shelter's temperature had dropped appreciably from 89 degrees registered before they climbed into it. "It's cooling off. We're feeling very comfortable," Mininson said.

"Have the people all gone?" Pretty, dark-haired Mrs. Mininson wanted to know. She was told they had.

There were people galore—including pickets—topside as the couple recited their vows in wedding finery and went underground.

Five placard-carrying women identified themselves as members of the Greater Miami Committee for Sane Nuclear Policy. One said the underground honeymoon was "a promotion for financial gain that prepares people psychologically for war."

The newlyweds' quarters are eight feet wide, 14 feet long and seven feet, seven inches high, equipped with cooking and toilet facilities, food, electricity and a telephone—unlisted. They have a radio but no television set.

Chiang's Gen. Hsu Dies.

TAIPEI, Formosa, July 13 (UPI)—Gen. Hsu Yung-chiang, who was present at Japan's surrender aboard the battleship Missouri, died yesterday of tuberculosis. He was 73 years old. At the time of his death, Hsu was a senior adviser to President Chiang Kai-shek. He was minister of military operations in World War II.

Cantaloupe Cooler for a Midsummer Day

Cool as a pool and beautiful to behold is this fruit platter of cantaloupe, white grapes, strawberries and cottage cheese. A number of combinations for cantaloupe salads are given in the story below. Suggested Menu for a Summer Luncheon: Hot Cream of Shrimp Soup, Crisp Crackers, Baked Ham or Chicken Salad Sandwiches; Cantaloupe and Cottage Cheese Salad; Iced Tea or Coffee.

By DOROTHY BRAINERD
Post-Dispatch Food Editor.

Know of a nicer way to start a July day than with a chilled cantaloupe half for breakfast? Know of a more refreshing luncheon than a luscious melon salad? Or a more welcome dessert than melon balls in wine, or gingerale melon cups? When temperatures soar, cantaloupes, fragrant and delectable at any hour, are a delightful way to prod lagging midsummer appetites.

There is more to a cantaloupe than its delightful flavor, too. One-half of a medium-sized (five inches in diameter) deep-colored melon furnishes more than the total average daily requirement of vitamin A, and three-fourths of the daily requirement of vitamin C.

When you shop for a cantaloupe use both the sense of sight and the sense of smell. Look for a bold, well-defined netting; experts claim that the more sharply the netting stands out, the better the flavor. The scar at the stem end should be smooth and slightly sunken, showing that the melon was ripe enough to slip easily from the stem. For immediate eating, the melon should have the fragrance of ripeness; if you do not market frequently it's smart to pick out a few firm melons for future enjoyment and let them ripen at room temperature.

A cantaloupe should, of course, be chilled before serving. However, many epicures feel that while watermelon and its muskmelon cousin, the honeydew, are at their best after intense chilling the bouquet of cantaloupe is more delightful if served only moderately cold. (This is, however, a matter of personal preference.)

As reported in the marketing column in last Thursday's food section, cantaloupes from the West are now at their very peak, superb in flavor and texture. Homegrown ones will be coming in the near future, so better save this page of suggestions for serving cantaloupes in ways that will add interest to your menus during the weeks ahead.

Cook Turnovers Easy Way, in Electric Frypan

Have an automatic electric frypan? Then do use it to cook these flaky, tender turnovers.

Don't let the rather lengthy list of ingredients frighten you. Actually, this is a very simple recipe. It's just a matter of making pastry, preparing the filling and putting together the sauce, which is a simple combination of cream of mushroom soup and evaporated milk.

The pastry (made with evaporated milk soured with lemon juice) fries to a golden brown in the deep fat.

Chicken Turnovers.

Pastry:

One jar boned chicken (5½ oz.)
Three tablespoons butter or margarine..
Two tablespoons chopped green pepper.
One-half cup finely chopped celery.
One teaspoon instant minced onion.
One tablespoon dried parsley flakes.
Two tablespoons flour.
One-third cup water.
Two-thirds cup evaporated milk.
Salad oil for frying.

Prepare pastry as directed below, but do not roll out. Cover lightly with waxed paper.

Drain chicken and cut into small pieces. Melt butter in saucepan. Add green pepper, celery, onion and parsley flakes. Cook gently over low heat about five minutes. Remove from heat and blend in flour. Add water gradually, stirring to keep smooth. Blend in evaporated milk. Cook over low heat until mixture thickens.

Stir in chicken and continue cooking until chicken is heated through, about three to five minutes. Remove from heat. Roll and cut pastry squares as directed below.

Spoon equal portions of the chicken mixture onto pastry squares, keeping mixture toward one corner. Dampen edges of pastry squares with cold water. Fold pastry over filling to form triangles. Dip the tines of a fork into cold water and crimp edges of pastry to seal.

Pour salad oil into electric frypan to depth of about one inch. Set control at 400 degrees. When temperature is reached, lift turnovers carefully with a pancake turner or wide spatula and slide into hot fat. (Fry two turnovers at a time.) Fry three minutes on one side, then turn and fry two more minutes. Remove from frypan and drain on paper toweling.

Turnovers may be kept hot in a warm oven until ready to serve. Serve hot with Mushroom Sauce.

Pastry.

Two cups sifted flour.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One teaspoon baking powder.
Two-thirds cup shortening.
One and one-half teaspoons vinegar or lemon juice, plus evaporated milk to make one-half cup.

Sift flour with salt and baking powder. Blend in shortening with pastry blender until particles are about the size of peas.

Add liquid all at once, then stir into flour mixture quickly but thoroughly with fork. Gather mixture together in ball. Place on floured board or pastry cloth and roll into a rectangle 12x18 inches, then cut into six squares.

Mushroom Sauce.

One can condensed cream of mushroom soup (10½ oz.),
One cup evaporated milk.

Place mushroom soup in small saucepan. Blend in evaporated milk slowly, stirring to keep smooth. Heat over low heat until hot. Serve with Chicken Turnovers.

Chicken Livers, Italienne

Good cooks always have a few superb dishes in mind that can be prepared from ingredients at hand. This one may well become the specialty of the house.

From the freezer you'll need a package of frozen chicken livers; from the pantry, canned spaghetti sauce with mushrooms and noodles or rice or spaghetti.

Thaw the package of chicken livers (eight-ounce size) as directed. Brown lightly in two tablespoons of butter or margarine. Then stir in two cans (10¾ ounces each) of spaghetti sauce with mushrooms. Heat over low heat about five minutes. Serve over hot spaghetti, rice or noodles. Yield about three and one half cups of sauce.

Versatile Nectar Lemon Cream

This Nectar Lemon Cream is versatile indeed. Try it as an interesting accompaniment to cold meat platters; serve a scoop on top of fruit salads or add to fruit punches.

Blend apricot whole fruit nectar, light cream, sugar and finely chopped lemon; turn into refrigerator tray and freeze. One beating after the mixture reaches a firm stage insures smooth texture.

Nectar Lemon Cream.

One lemon.
Two-thirds cup sugar.
Few grains salt.
One and one-half cups apricot whole fruit nectar.
One cup light cream.

Rinse lemon, slice thin, remove seeds and chop slices. Add sugar and let stand about 30 minutes.

Blend in remaining ingredients. Turn into refrigerator tray, place in freezing compartment with control set at lowest temperature and freeze until firm. Remove to chilled bowl, and beat with rotary beater until smooth and fluffy.

Return to freezing compartment and freeze to desired consistency. Reset temperature control to normal.

Quickies for Campers' Menus

Are you elected camp cook on the family outing? Take along a good supply of canned meat, and you need not spend all of your time over a hot camp fire.

For a barbecue-in-a-hurry, chop a small onion into a saucepan and cook in butter or margarine, along with a can of corned beef and a cupful of catsup; serve on toasted buns.

For a quick jambalaya, cook canned green beans, tomatoes, quick-cooking rice and a little salt in a skillet. After 20 minutes top the rice mixture with drained canned brown-and-serve sausage and add a topping of grated cheese. Continue cooking five or 10 minutes to heat the fully cooked sausage and melt the cheese.

Or cut both ends from a can of corned beef hash and cut it into fourths. Heat the hash in a skillet with an egg dropped into the center of each round of hash; cover the frying pan for a few minutes.

For hot sandwiches, top bread with slices of canned meat and toast with the help of a hinged broiler; close the sandwich with thin slices of onion, cheese or pickle relish and another slice of toasted bread.

Melons

Combine cheese spread with sour cream and salt; chill. Cut cantaloupe in half; remove seed and rind; cut melon into bite-size chunks. Turn lettuce into chilled bowl, add cantaloupe and dressing and toss lightly to blend. Serve on chilled salad plates.

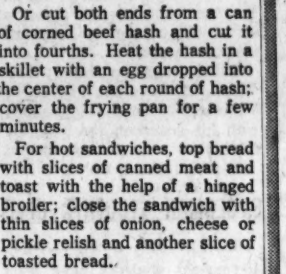

Yield: Five or six servings.

Here is a good threesome for a warm day—fruit-filled cantaloupe half, poppyseed sticks and cream cheese balls.

Cut a chilled cantaloupe in half, using a zigzag motion to make a "frilled" edge. (A pencil line drawn around the melon will help make this operation easy.) Remove the seeds and fill each half with an assortment of fresh fruits (cantaloupe and watermelon balls, strawberries, blueberries, for example). Garnish with fresh mint and a slice of lemon or lime.

with melted butter or margarine and poppyseed; place under the broiler until just golden brown.

To make the cream cheese balls, form softened cream cheese into small balls, roll in chopped nuts and chill until ready to serve.

Colorful fresh melon balls make a summer dessert that's both beautiful and refreshing. Pink watermelon, golden cantaloupe and pale green honeydew balls in wine lightly flavored with fresh mint and lime juice—there is a summer dessert to serve with pride to the most discriminating guest.

Chill the melon balls in the wine at least a half an hour so that the fruit absorbs the delicate wine flavor. Serve in sherbet glasses or shallow fruit bowls with glasses of dessert wine.

Melon Balls in Wine.

1 tablespoon fresh mint leaves
1 teaspoon grated lime rind
¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup white port wine (or other white dinner wine)
¼ cup fresh lime juice
1 quart melon balls (cantaloupe, watermelon and honeydew)
Fresh mint leaves for garnish

Crush mint leaves with lime rind, sugar and salt. Add wine and lime juice; stir to dissolve sugar and salt and let stand 15 minutes. Strain over melon balls and chill 30 minutes or longer. Garnish with mint leaves.

Yield: Six servings.

Note: More sugar may be added to taste, if desired.

Step Up Milk Drinking With Sirup

Wish the youngsters would drink more milk? Add two tablespoons of this deep-flavored cholocate sirup to each cup of milk, and your wish will be fulfilled. Put four squares of unsweetened chocolate and 1 and ¼ cups of hot water in a saucepan. Cook and stir over low heat until thick and well blended.

Add one cup of sugar and one-quarter teaspoon salt, and boil two minutes, stirring constantly. Add one-half teaspoon of vanilla.

Cool, then turn into a jar, cover tightly and keep in the refrigerator.

This is also an excellent sauce for ice cream.

Vegetables Still Need Blanching

Events of the past 30 years have drastically changed many practices and ways of life. But the practice of blanching vegetables before freezing remains a requirement for preparing high-quality products.

In the summer issue of Illinois Research, Frances O. Van Duyne, in charge of foods and nutrition in the department of home economics at the University of Illinois, reports on recent studies that compared the results obtained when vegetables were blanched before freezing and when comparable lots were not blanched.

It was found that blanching (or scalding) not only kept broccoli, peas, snap beans and spinach palatable, but also retained the largest possible amounts of vitamin C, or ascorbic acid.

In commenting on the palatability tests, Miss Van Duyne said that after nine months of freezer storage, blanched vegetables rated good to high-good. After cooking, the broccoli, peas, snap beans and spinach were bright green and tender and had a good flavor. No off-flavors were detected.

On the other hand, unblanched samples stored for only one month rated fair to poor. Strong off-flavors developed in these samples, and they lost color during the first month of freezer storage.

After three months, frozen unblanched peas were faded in color, while snap beans were slightly gray. Broccoli was rated tough in texture and strong in flavor.

After six and nine months of freezer storage, unblanched vegetables were considered inedible.

In discussing retention of vitamin C, Miss Van Duyne reported that except for broccoli that had been stored for one month, all samples that had been frozen after blanching and cooling contained more ascorbic acid than did the samples frozen without blanching.

For specific information about blanching procedures and times, write for the circular, "Freezing Fruits and Vegetables," 110 Mumford Hall, University of Illinois, Urbana.

Raspberry Shrub Refreshing Cooler

Summer weather calls for fruit coolers.

Raspberry Shrub is an appealing blend of frozen raspberries, orange juice and wine. Either a red or white dinner wine may be used in making this beverage. Chablis or Sauterne are good choices for white dinner wines; a "vino rosso" or Burgundy or Rose for a red or pink type.

Raspberry Shrub

One (10-ounce) package frozen raspberries.

One (six-ounce) can orange juice concentrate.

One cup water.

Two cups red or white dinner wine.

Place raspberries, concentrate and water in blender; blend at high speed until smooth. (If blender is not available, defrost and puree raspberries.) Add wine, blending until smooth.

Yield: about five cups.

LONG SAYS HE MADE $300,000 OIL PROFIT

(Picture in Everyday Magazine)

FORT WORTH, Tex., July 13 (UPI)—Gov. Earl Long of Louisiana said today that a "long shot, wildcat oil well" has presented him with a $300,000 fortune.

Long, who has been in and out of three mental wards since May 30, said that the main reason for his coming to Texas was to get straight in his own mind who the "scalawags" are in his administration.

"Hell's going to break loose," he said.

Long arrived in Fort Worth Saturday night with a pillow case over his head, violently cursing reporters and photographers who pursued him. He apologized later for his profanity.

Long held a news conference today in his hotel suite where he told about his travel plans and announced that he will call a special session of the Louisiana Legislature Aug. 10.

He said he plans to leave Wednesday for El Paso. He hopes before Wednesday to be invited to address the Texas legislature. From El Paso, Long expects to go to Monterrey and Acapulco in Mexico.

Although he has not been invited to address the Texas legislature, Long is already working on his speech. He said that one of the topics he will discuss is the peril of an old man taking a young wife.

Internal Revenue Service agents have been looking into his income especially into reports that he has hidden away unused funds from his last campaign. In regard to the investigation, Long said:

"It never dawned on me you'd owe income tax on gambling money, because all my life my losses were greater than my gains.

"And that's true with the average American who is sucker enough to try to beat the horses and bingo and the lottery and slots."

He said that Mrs. Long, whom he is suing for legal separation, had "taken him" for "several hundred thousand."

But because of his wildcat oil well, he said he has $300,000 left.

Long disclosed that he had "dishired" his physicians and psychiatrists because he doesn't take their advice anyway. He has had as many as six at a time.

HOT ROD AUTO HITS HOUSE, DRIVER AND BOY, 4, KILLED

SEATTLE, July 13 (AP)—A homemade hot rod automobile crashed into a Seattle home yesterday, killing the driver and a four-year-old boy.

Police said the powerful, cigar-shaped car ran out of control on busy Beacon street, swerved some 150 feet across a dirt dividing strip and smashed into the house.

Killed were the driver, Don Wheat, 22 years old, and Lance Williams, who had been walking with his sister on the sidewalk in front of a neighboring house. The girl, Julie, 2, was not hurt.

E. GERMAN STUDENTS HELD

BERLIN, July 13 (AP)—Three 18-year-old students have been sent to prison for circulating anti-Communist leaflets in East Germany.

Lausitzer Rundschau, a Communist party newspaper, said today the three were given sentences ranging from one to two years at hard labor by the district court at Cottbus, their home town. The three were identified as Siegbert Fischer, Henning Neuendorf and Klaus Wilke.

KENTUCKY POLICE ARREST 6 IN DYNAMITING OF MINE

HAZARD, Ky., July 13 (AP)—State police have arrested six men in connection with the dynamiting of a non-union mine in eastern Kentucky's stricken coal fields yesterday. One of the six, Arnold Whitaker, told police he was a member of the United Mine Workers.

The blasts did a reported $90,000 damage at the Chavies Mining Co., owner R. M. Johnson said.

Mine guard Earl Specer said three men held him and a companion at shotgun point and planted one case (50 pounds) of dynamite on the mine's coal-voring auger and another on a mechanical strip-mining shovel. He said when his companion started to reach for a rifle a shotgun blast forced him back. The men then lit the fuses and ran, he said.

Police said they arrested five men on charges of destroying private property after tracking them four miles through the wooded hills. They identified them as Charlie Stacy, 31 years old; Wallace McIntosh, 34; Walter Lee Turner, 49; Rufus Wooton, 30, and Tolbert B. Campbell, 37.

PRAVDA LECTURES RUSSIANS ON GRAFT, BRIBES, IDLENESS

LONDON, July 13 (AP) — The readers of Pravda got a lecture yesterday on how to be good Russians and good Communists.

"Socialism has put an end to political, social, national and racial inequality of people," said Pravda, Soviet Communist party mouthpiece in an article broadcast by the Moscow Radio.

Pravda acknowledged that "intolerable remnants" of the old days still linger—such as graft in high places, bribery, idleness and drunkenness—and all this "must be resolutely stamped out."

HARRIMAN URGES GIVING EAST ZONE DE FACTO STATUS

© New York Times News Service

NEW YORK, July 13 — W. Averell Harriman said yesterday that the Berlin crisis could be solved by limited Western "acceptance" of the East German Communist regime without giving it diplomatic recognition. He declared that he considered control of nuclear weapons the vital issue and Berlin largely a diversion.

The former governor of New York said the American people "must get rid of the idea that we can get rid of tensions" and must learn to cope with them.

"Conditions may improve, but not unless we make an effort," he said. "We must not give the American public the idea that they can relax."

Harriman's statements were made in a television interview. He discussed impressions left by his recent talks with Premier Khrushchev on his tour of the Soviet Union.

Harriman expressed doubt that substantial achievements would emerge from the foreign ministers' conference, which reopened in Geneva today. He said Khrushchev "never did want the foreign ministers' meeting, and he made it clear that Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko was only there as a mouthpiece, not to negotiate."

As his suggestion for an accord at the Geneva meeting, Harriman said:

"I think that in some ways it might be of value to give the East German regime a little more acceptance, a de facto acceptance, not recognition in the diplomatic sense, and then perhaps there would be a development in East Germany along the lines of Poland."

Harriman apparently was referring to the fact that Poland has considerably more autonomy in the Soviet bloc than the East German government, which is considered under the firm control of the Soviet Union.

He said he had told Khrushchev that the West was committed to protect the interests of the 2,000,000 West Berliners, and that the Soviet Premier must recognize that. Khrushchev, the former Governor said, expressed willingness to see that, but said the occupation of Berlin must end as "an anachronism."

The impression left, Harriman said, was "that we might come to some sort of agreement but perhaps not a permanent one."

Urges Visit by Khrushchev.

Harriman stressed, as he had before, the importance of bringing Khrushchev to the United States, so "he would learn the vigor of our economy, the strength of the our democracy."

He voiced the fear that Gromyko and Anastas I. Mikoyan, a Soviet first deputy premier, had not reported fully to Khrushchev on the capabilities of the United States.

Gromyko served in the United States from 1943 to 1949, first as ambassador to Washington and later as delegate at the United Nations. Mikoyan visited the United States last January.

Asked whether he felt that Khrushchev was ready to risk war over Berlin, Harriman replied: "No," of course he isnt, but the danger of the situation is that he may overplay his hand."

RISE IN RADIOACTIVITY OF LAKE MICHIGAN NOTED

SAN FRANCISCO, July 13 (UPI)—H. H. Gerstein, assistant chief water engineer for Chicago, said today that increases in the radioactivity of Lake Michigan water have "in general, paralleled the accurence of nuclear bomb tests conducted in various parts of the world."

Speaking before the seventy-ninth annual conference of the American Water Works Association, Gerstein said the highest radioactivity in the lake water occurred in the summer months of 1957 and from March through May of this year.

He said the Chicago water system was among the first to institute routine monitoring of its lake water supply. Tests were started in 1950 to determine the level of radioactivity in Lake Michigan water, and rainfall samples have been collected since the high radioactive fallout which occurred after the beginning of the 1951 series of nuclear bomb tests.

BRITAIN REJECTS RED PLAN FOR NUCLEAR-FREE BALKANS

LONDON, July 13 (UPI) — Britain today rejected the Soviet proposal for a nuclear weapons bar in the Balkans.

John Profumo, Minister of State for foreign affairs, told the House of Commons that the Soviet plan lacked a necessary "adequate system of inspection." He said Britain's formal rejection was handed to the Soviets today.

The United States, France, Italy, Greece and Turkey already have rejected the Moscow suggestion.

Matador Procuna Gored.

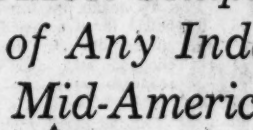

TIJUANA, Mexico, July 13 (AP) — Matador Luis Procuna was gored by a bull yesterday. The 36-year-old idol of Latin American fullfight fans is under treatment at a private clinic. His condition was described as not dangerous.

STOCK MARKET FALLS SHARPLY ON STEEL NEWS

NEW YORK, July 13 (UPI)—In the excitement of an indicated breakdown of steel negotiations with the result a prolonged strike, Wall Street forgot its old axioms and sold stocks all around, notably the steels.

Losses piled up higher as the close approached. The whole stel section registered lossees running to more than 3 points. The coppers broke sharply. Special issues were hard hit in many instances.

Selling drove down the automobile division after it had tried to show a strong spirit. Rails joined the drop with losses ranging to 2 points in Norfolk & Western.

The glamour issues — electronics, space issues, and the like—gave ground easily. Chemicals were hard hit so were electrical quipment, tires, farm issues, cameras, and coppers. Aluminums stood out as the one bright spot with several of the issues in new high ground.

The drop in steels surprised the market experts who had looked for adherence to the old market axiom. The steel losses set off selling in other sections of the list.

The axiom, oft-repaated in financial circles says: "Never sell on strike news." Today the action of the steel shares—with declines ranging to nearly 3 points in the bluest of the blue chips, U. S. Steel—was the reverse of what market men had anticipated.

The Associated Press said that of 1235 issues traded, 692 declined and 343 advanced. There were 51 new highs for the year and 16 new lows.

Volume was 3,360,000 shares compared with 3,600,000 on Friday.

OLIN MATHIESON CHEMICAL HEAD SEES GOOD 2D QUARTER

NEW YORK, July 13 (AP)—Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp. will have second quarter increases in sales and earnings similar to the first quarter, Stanley J. Osborne, president said today.

Osborne noted that the company's chemical operations, which last year accounted for 34½ per cent of the sales total, were doing especially well. He said fertilizer sales in particular were outstanding.

Olin Mathieson reported first-quarter earnings of $6,400,000 equal to 48 cents a share, up from $4,500,000 or 33 cents a share in the 1958 first quarter. Sales for the period were $159,900,000 vs. $127,600,000.

Osborne predicted that the Squibb Drug Division, which accounted for 18 per cent of 1958 sales, should make up the effects of a recent 40-day strike by the end of the year.

COPPER PRICE IS CUT

NEW YORK, July 13 (AP)—Kennecott Copper Corp., the nation's largest producer of the metal, Monday cut its price 1½ cents a pound to 30 cents a pound, effective Tuesday.

The move reverses an upward trend in producer prices ever since June 1958, which had carried the metal up from its recession low of 25 cents a pound.

Custom smelters of copper have been reducing their price for several weeks, cutting to 29 cents a pound earlier Monday. The producer price had held at 31½ cents a pound since March 9.

Heavy supplies of copper held by both fabricators and producers of the metal are behind the weakening price structure. Fears of a strike when miners' contracts expired June 30 had led consumers to build up their inventories this spring, but miners have continued working since the expiration date while negotiations progressed on a new contract.

SAY STEEL USERS READY FOR ANYTHING

CLEVELAND, July 13 (AP)—With the July 14 steel strike deadline approaching, steel users are ready for anything—a contract extension, a settlement or a strike, "Steel" magazine said today.

"A majority of metalworking companies have adequate inventories, or are confident they can get what they need from the warehouses," the weekly magazine of metalworking said.

A two-week contract extension agreed to by the United Steelworkers in negotiations in New York helped steel consumers remedy inventory shortages, "Steel" said.

"Steel stocks today, estimated at more than 21,000,000 tons, are some 4,000,000 under what they were at the start of the 1956 steel strike," the magazine said, "but inventories are in better balance than they were three years ago."

Steel mill operations dropped 1.5 per cent last week to an estimated 82.5 per cent of rated capacity, "Steel" said. Production was 2,336,000 ingot tons.

The 10-point drop in operations since June, the magazine said, reflects a tapering off in demand for steel, the banking of furnaces for maintenance and repairs, labor unrest, strike preparations at some mills, lower efficiency because of hot weather and vacation shutdowns.

The magazine's scrap price composite last week rose $1.17 to $38 a gross ton, highest since March.

LONDON MARKET QUIET

LONDON, July 13 (AP)—Reports of unfavorable labor conditions in the United States brought a quiet lethargy to the London stock market today.

Government securities kept steady, and there were some good features in motors and textiles, but elsewhere prices closed easier.

Profit-taking hit the industrials, which closed generally lower. Oils were subdued too.

Gold shares and coppers were lower and idle, but dollar stocks held firm and higher levels were reached in Canadian issues.

SHARP REACTIONS TO CROP REPORTS

CHICAGO, July 13 (AP)—The Government's July crop report had a strong bullish influence in soybean futures today on the Board of Trade and imparted moderate strength to all grains except corn.

Soybeans galloped ahead as much as 6¾ cents a bushel on the January contract at the opening of trading but quickly fell back on a burst of profit-taking which trimmed about 2 cents of the best gain.

Wheat was ahead by about a cent at its best time.

Issue Concerns Proposal to Purchase Any Government Securities in Open Market Operations.

By William H. Kester
Post-Dispatch Business Correspondent.

The Federal Reserve System is once again at loggerheads with some members of Congress. This time it is about a proposed amendment to a bill which would give the President the right to ignore for the next two years the present 4¼ per cent interest ceiling on bonds maturing in five years or more. The amendment would encourage the Federal Reserve System to "bring about needed future monetary expansion by purchases of United States securities of varying maturities." The system's general practice in recent years has been to confine open market operations to the short-term sector of the market, primarily to Treasury bills, except to correct disorderly conditions.

Open market operations are the chief method of controlling the money supply of the economy. Purchases of securities are made when the System wants to expand the money supply; sales of securities contract the supply of bank reserves and act to reduce the money supply.

W. H. Kester

Objections by the Federal Reserve System to this amendment bring to memory the internal fight about whether open market operations should be conducted in short-term securities or in all lengths of maturities. Allan Sproul, former president of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, was the leading exponent of the broader concept of open market operations; William McChesney Martin, Jr., chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, was in the opposite camp. The "bills only" doctrine was adopted in 1953 on the recommendation of a special System committee, which made an exhaustive study of the System's relations to the securities market. But the policy has been the subject of much discussion since, both within the System and outside, and there is no agreement yet, judging by the continuation of the argument.

'Bills Only' Doctrine.

Fundamentally, the present policy was adopted by a Federal Open Market Committee which chose to minimize the control of the System over the operation of the Government security market. This was probably a natural reaction to the conditions during the war and postwar years to 1951, when the System was a vassal of the Treasury and was maintaining security prices within narrow ranges. The present "bills only" doctrine assumes that the System's responsibility is to determine the volume of the money supply, but to let the money market forces allocate this money supply to the various credit users. The System does not support any pattern of prices or yields of Government securities, yet, their trends and levels are of vital importance in the workings of the economy.

Open market operations in Treasury bills are communicated to the longer term securities by the process of arbitrage and the substitution of maturities by both borrowers and lenders so as to obtain the most advantageous terms. But the process is often imperfect or sluggish. For example, during the last recession, the System had to make vast purchases of short term securities, which forced bill yields to less than 1 per cent, in order to obtain a slight reduction in the yield on long term bonds. This latter was considered desirable in order to encourage investment activity.

Probably the real intent of the proposed amendment suggesting the System's purchase of all maturities is to reduce its independence from the Treasury. Dealing in long-term securities could impose some responsibility for their price. Lower long term yields would be achieved by purchase of such maturities but it would be at the expense of higher rates in the shorter term market.

Short Term Market.

The confinement of open market operations to the short term market was designed to foster a stronger Government security market, but it failed to prevent a disorderly drop in prices in the early summer of 1958. The level of interest rates continued to rise sharply despite supporting purchases of $600,000,000 by the Treasury and $1,300,000,000 by the Federal Reserve System.

Unfortunately, the political aspects of the problem cloud the economic arguments on the "bills only" thesis. The shibboleth of the System's independence is raised to meet the argument of buying long term bonds. And the merits of the economic grounds are never given a fair hearing.

COPPER PRICE CUT TO 29C BY CUSTOM SMELTERS

NEW YORK, July 13 (AP)—Copper prices weakened further today as the custom smelter price was trimmed another one-half cent to 29 cents a pound.

The slash puts the smelter quotation 2½ cents below the major producer price of 31½ cents a pound, the highest quotation in the world. It also puts smelters back where they started the year, before demand fueled by fears of a strike pushed the price as high as 34 cents a pound this spring.

Strike fears abated as miners continued to work past the contract expiration date of June 30 and world prices weakened. Copper opened on the London Metal Exchange today at the equivalent of 26¼ cents a pound, unchanged from Friday close.

Saupe, general manager of the large Steam Turbine Generator Dept., said reductions range from $1 per kilowatt for units producing 200,000 kilowatts up to $4 for units producing 600,000 kilowatts. Saupe said the reduction was due to design innovation and improved manufacturing techniques.

There was further bidding for print cloths for delivery in second half of the year. Offerings were tight and generally held at levels above prices bid by converters. The 45-inch 64x60 4.65 yard print cloth sold at 18¼ cents a yard, up ¼ cent a yard.

COOK PAINT & VARNISH CO. reported net income for six months ended May 31 of $727,379, equivalent to $1.52 a common share, compared with $452,461 or 89 cents a share for the like 1958 period.

SKELLY AND TIDEWATER OILS IN MERGER DISCUSSIONS

NEW YORK, July 13 (AP)—Executives of Skelly Oil Co. and Tidewater Oil Co. have been meeting to discuss a merger of the two major integrated oil firms, George F. Getty, Tidewater president, said today.

Getty said no contract currently exists between Skelly and Tidewater for the merger.

The only agreement, he said, is a set of ground rules for evaluating oil and gas reserves and other assets of the two companies to assist in arriving at a mutually acceptable ratio of exchange.

The proposed merger would bring together all phases of operations, involving widespread activities throughout this country and abroad, Getty said.

"A merger would give the combine a better balance between crude supply and refinery crude requirements," Getty said. "Skelly has a greater crude oil producing capacity than required by its refineries, while Tidewater has refinery capacity in excess of its crude oil production."

Committees from each company on manufacturing, marketing, land and reserves, transportation and accounting are working with technical experts and outside appraisers to evaluate assets in each field of operation.

NORTHEAST CAPITAL CORP., MACK TRUCKS MERGER PLAN

NEW YORK, July 13 (AP)—Directors of Northeast Capital Corp. and Mack Trucks Inc. have agreed in principle on the merger of Northeast into Mack.

The companies said the terms provide for an exchange of 7-10 of a share of Mack common for each share of Northeast common held. In addition about $12,000,000 of Mack 5¼ per cent preferred stock, par $50, would be issued with a 10-year warrant to purchase one-half share of Mack common at not less than $60 a share.

About 11-50 of a share of this new preferred stock would be issued for each share of Northeast common held.

The proposal is subject to the execution of a formal merger agreement and will be submitted to stockholders for approval in September. Approval also must be obtained from banks and insurance companies participating in Mack loan agreements.

Northeast, which held 29 per cent of Mack common stock outstanding at the end of 1958, said it plans to convert into cash all of its assets other than its holdings of Mack common stock and subordinated debentures.

U.S. FURNACES POUR RECORD TONS OF STEEL IN HALF-YEAR

NEW YORK, July 13 (AP) — United States furnaces poured a record 64,278,569 tons of steel in the first half of the year, the American Iron and Steel Institute said.

This topped the previous first-half mark of 62,607,000 tons, set in 1956, and was up 70 per cent over production of 37,752,487 tons in the recession-ripped first half of 1958. The highest second-half production was 59,830,000 tons in 1955.

Output of 33,790,501 tons in the April-June quarter also set a record, topping the previous high of 32,400,000 tons in the fourth quarter of 1956. In 1958, only 18,961,630 tons were poured in the second quarter.

ROBUST RECOVERY TOPS 1954-55

By J. A. Livingston

It's official. Better times are incontestably here. Men and women again have money to buy freedom from one another.

Prothonotary D. Barlow Burke, of Philadelphia, has wrapped America's complex economic indicators into a single, rounded statistic: In the first six months of this year, 23 per cent more divorce suits were started in Common Pleas Court than in the corresponding period of 1958.

J. A. Livingston

Divorces are "fairly expensive forms of litigation," says Burke. When times are "bad," as in the first half of 1958, people can't afford them. But when payrolls rise, traffic in the divorce court picks up.

The economic data rolling in from Washington, Detroit, Pittsburgh, and retail stores everywhere support Burke's conclusion. The recovery is "surprisingly robust," says one high Washington official. It could become too robust and boom. His problem: To stretch out prosperity and avoid a peak-a-boo-boo.

Better Than 1954-55

The advance has now outdistanced the 1954-55 recovery. Yet, a month ago that could not have been said. Moreover, the advance is broadly based, whereas the 1954-55 advance was propelled primarily by automobiles.

To be sure, a 110 per cent jump in steel production gave strong impetus to the current recovery, as users "bought protection" against a strike. This suggests some flattening out in the next few months. But employment, housing, and consumer spending are now strong. Even the auto industry has picked itself up from the 1958 floor. The per cent gain in auto output is actually greater than in 1954-55, but the rise began from a much lower level.

The following table compares the respective gains during the first 13 months of the two recoveries. In nine out of 14 items, the 1958-59 improvement has been greater:

Indicator	Gain 1954-5	Gain 1958-9
Industrial Output	15%	21%
Personal Income	9	8
Retail Sales	11	11
Employment	4	5
Unemployment	—34	—33
Housing Starts	5	36
Steel Output	48	110
Auto Output	65	89

Consumer Credit	19	7
Carloadings	22	33
Business Failures	—10	—22
New Incorporations	22	47
Wages	9	12
Stock Prices	56%	38%

The willingness of consumers to go into debt as well as into the divorce court further attests to the robustness of the recovery. In May, consumer credit amounted to $45,800,000,000, a new top. This reflects the rise in personal income to a new high. Installment credit accounts for thirty-five billion dollars of this. Automobile installment debt, though rising, is still $600,000,000 below the September-October, 1957 peak. In the 1955-56-57 auto sales boom, automobile installment debt rose 60 per cent.

Inflation—1960 Issue?

The recovery is reflected in tendencies of prices to rise in clothing, textile and metal markets. Hence, President Eisenhower's assertion that inflation will be the big 1960 campaign issue. Is a new inflation round in the making?

Government bonds imply so. They have fallen to new lows. Yields of 4.5% are now obtainable on some issues. Short-term Treasury securities are creeping up on the long-term rates. Indeed, yields on one-year bills are higher—4.8%.

Why? The business recovery makes investors more avid for stocks. They want a hedge against inflation. They fear that bonds purchased today will yield decreased buying power tomorrow. They're re-convinced that higher earnings of corporations will ultimately bring higher dividends, and so narrow the 1.5-point differential between the yield on industrial stocks, now 3%, and high-grade bonds.

New Highs Versus New Lows

Wall Street's optimism is reflected in the undertone in the stock market. Recently, the number of stocks making new highs has far exceeded the number making new lows. Also daily advances have exceeded declines. During most of June, it was the other way around.

Lichty had a recent cartoon applicable to the present mood. The president of the Gimmicks Products Corporation complains to his directors that people are buying the company's stock instead of the company's product. This isn't happening in the United States as a whole, as retail sales indicate — up 11% since the recession low.

But it is happening in investment markets as money goes into stocks rather than bonds.

Effect: You and I will find it more costly to finance purchases of homes, automobiles, refrigerators. State and local governments, even as the federal government, will have to pay higher rates on their borrowing. So will corporations. This could slow up capital expenditures. But when? Evidence of a slowdown is yet to appear.

U.S. TREASURY BOND PRICES ARE HIGHER

NEW YORK, July 13 (AP)—United States Government bonds continued to improve late today with some gains running out to 10-32 of a point. Trading, fairly brisk earlier, quieted in the afternoon.

Over the counter dealers quoted intermediates steady to plus 6-32 and long range treasuries ahead 2-32 to 10-32.

Some dealers said the rally stemmed from the market's having been oversold recently. Others speculated that the threat of a steel strike may have shunted some investors out of the stock market into government securities.

The corporate market switched narrowly over to the plus side after opening slightly on the downside. Trading was quiet.

Investment quality issues and rails perked up somewhat. Industrials were steady while utilities eased.

STEEL OUTPUT OF 91.4 PER CENT IS LOCAL FORECAST

Steel production in the St. Louis area this week is estimated at 35,793 tons, equal to 91.4 per cent of weekly capacity, the Federal Reserve Bank reported. Actual tonnage produced last week was 33,809 or 86.4 per cent.

NEW YORK, July 13 (AP)—The American Iron and Steel Institute, in its weekly routine estimate of steel production, today said output would total 2,344,000 tons, or 82.8 per cent of capacity this week.

The Institute, a steel trade group, took no recognition of the possibility of a strike in the industry.

This compared with actual production last week of 2,252,000 tons, or 79.8 per cent of capacity. Mills turned out 2,620,000 a month ago and 1,481,000 tons a year ago.

STABILITY NOTED IN WHOLESALE PRICE LEVELS

© New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON, July 13 — Economists here are taking heart from a period of stability in industrial wholesale prices that has lasted for three months.

With farm products and processed foods included, over-all wholesale prices have been declining. The index for last week was exactly the same as a year earlier, and down nearly 1 per cent from the peak reached in April.

This "industrial" part of the index—often a harbinger of inflation at retail—rose persistently from last July until April. The total rise in that period was from 125.3 on the index to 128.3, using the 1947-49 average as 100.

This rise of 2.5 per cent was even more rapid than had occurred in the recovery from the 1953-54 recession. It was cited repeatedly by Government officials in public comments as evidence that inflation was still threatening, despite the general stability in consumer prices as a whole.

Then in April the rise stopped. The wholesale index of "all commodities other than farm products and processed foods" last week was 127.9, down slightly from the April peak of 128.3.

Part of the explanation is weakness in "sensitive" raw commodities — rubber, copper, lead. With ample productive capacity, many of these items have shown price weakness, despite generally strong demand.

Some processed and semi-processed items have shown price declines as well. This has been true of many oil products, some lumber products, some chemicals and a few building materials.

There have been increases, too, notably in textiles and leather goods, but the combination has produced stability and even some decline in the "industrial" average.

The farm and food part of the index has shown persistent weakness. The farm product index was 88.8 last week, down from 95 a year ago. The processed foods index was 107 compared to 112.7 a year earlier.

With the new-found stability of industrial prices, this has meant a decline in the over-all index since April. At that time it was 120. Last week the index read 119.2, the same as for July a year ago.

No Drouth Relief in Sight

FORECAST
—Associated Press Wirephoto.
Low temperatures and areas of precipitation expected tonight.

Fair and warm weather is expected to continue in the St. Louis area tonight and tomorrow, with the high temperature tomorrow again in the upper 80s.

Skies were generally clear in Missouri and Illinois yesterday, except for a few scattered showers in western Missouri and northern Illinois. No relief from the drouth is expected in the two-state area for at least two more days, with only scattered showers forecast for restricted areas in western Missouri and northern Illinois.

Yesterday morning's low temperature reading of 58 in St. Louis was a new record low for July 12 in the area, the Weather Bureau reported. The previous record low for that date was 59, set in 1940.

Hot weather continued in the southwest and most of the Plateau region yesterday. It was warm and humid in the south Atlantic states. Fairly pleasant temperatures were reported in most other sections.

Most of the shower activity yesterday was confined in a long, narrow belt from the Gulf Coast eastward to Florida and northward along the Atlantic coast through parts of New York, Pennsylvania and New England. A few light sprinkles were reported in Nevada and Montana and in the central and southern Plains.

Outstanding American Loans To Nations Total 31 Billions

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON, July 13 (AP)—Suppose Uncle Sam turned his foreign loan accounts over to a bill collector and demanded immediate payment on all loans made since World War I. Suppose all the debtor nations paid their bills.

With all the I.O.U.'s made good, how much money would go into the United States till? Could the Treasury lay off domestic taxpayers for a year? Two years?

Well, not quite. Total repayment of all foreign loans now outstanding would bring the United States $31,000,000,000. That's only enough to run the Government at its present pace for a bit more than four months.

Actually, there is no chance of collecting a big chunk of the $31,000,000,000 any time soon. The debts are scheduled for steady repayment over many years. If they continue to be paid off at last year's pace it would take about 50 years to collect everything.

Still Lending.

And that assumes there's no new borrowing. But Uncle Sam continues to make new loans each month. In 1958, new U.S. credits totaled $1,200,000,000.

There is still another flaw in any such dream of repayment. Even if all $31,000,000,000 was repaid tomorrow, Uncle Sam wouldn't have any use for part of the money. That's because several billion dollars lent during the cold war is repayable in local currencies — rupees, pesos, etc. Uncle Sam would have more foreign currency than he could spend over many, many years.

Most of the $31,000,000,000 is repayable in dollars or other "hard" currency, however. This is true of all the debts dating from World War I. They total $18,500,000,000.

Of the remaining $12,500,000,000 lent in the last 25 years, most is repayable in hard currency though a major fraction is on the soft side. An exact breakdown isn't available.

Chances of Repayment.

What are the chances these billions will be repaid?

The record of repayment on World War I debts is dismal. But most countries are making regular payments on at least some of the billions borrowed during and since World War II.

During 1958, only $400,000 was collected on World War I debts. By contrast, 62 countries paid back $636,000,000 borrowed since World War II. In addition, they paid $290,000,000 in interest.

Finland is the only nation receiving a bill for World War I debts—because the Finns are the only ones who pay regularly. (Their payment accounted for practically all the $400,000 collected last year on World War I debts.).

The accounts on World War I debts are kept meticulously up to date. Uncle Sam doesn't want to give anyone the impression they've been forgotten or forgiven.

Bills Filed Away.

Once a year, a Treasury clerk prepares statements for each country showing how much is owed and when payments are due. The bills are sent to the State Department, where all but Finland's are quietly filed away.

The State Department has been pigeon-holing these statements so long that officials say they aren't sure why the practice was adopted. They assume there was a high-level decision that regular billing was a waste of time.

World War I debts originally totaled about $10,000,000,000. The amount has grown steadily because of interest charges piling up on past-due installments. Most countries, including Britain, stopped paying in 1933. France stopped even earlier.

Only three countries have paid off their World War I obligations —Cuba, Liberia and Nicaragua.

Britain is the biggest debtor from the first war, owing $8,500,000,000. Others at the top of the heap are France, $5,750,000,000; Italy, $2,250,000,000; Belgium, $612,000,000; Russia, $573,000,000; Poland, $400,000,000, and Czechoslovakia, $235,000,000.

Total delinquencies on the $12,500,000,000 World War II and cold war debts come to $133,000,000 spread among 14 countries. Sixteen million has been written off as uncollectable.

Delinquent Debtors.

Among the delinquent debtors from World War II, Nationalist China leads the parade. It is $49,000,000 behind in payments of principal and interest. Next come Russia, $30,000,000; Iran, $23,000,000; the Philippines, $16,500,000; Hungary, $3,000,000; Poland, $2,000,000 and Indonesia, $1,500,000.

Britain, France, Germany and the other major western European nations are up to date.

U.S. officials have an explanation for the sharp contrast between the repayment records for the debts growing out of the two great wars.

After World War II, they say, the United States erased huge debts. For instance, it excused all lend-lease debts where the war goods provided actually were used during the war. It figured this money was well spent in a common cause and that to demand repayment would put an impossible burden on the war-torn economy of the world.

After World War I, on the other hand, the United States demanded repayment of every nickel. The world economy couldn't shoulder this burden and, officials here say, the result can be seen in the default record.

Even so, they hold out some faint hope that someday even these accounts will be settled.

NAVAJO—THE LANGUAGE NOBODY SEEMS TO KNOW

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., July 13 (AP)—The Flagstaff Daily Sun wanted a translation for one sentence written in the native Navajo language.

The newspaper sent the sentence to its Washington reporter. He took the sentence to the Bureau of Indian Affairs. There were no Navajos employed there.

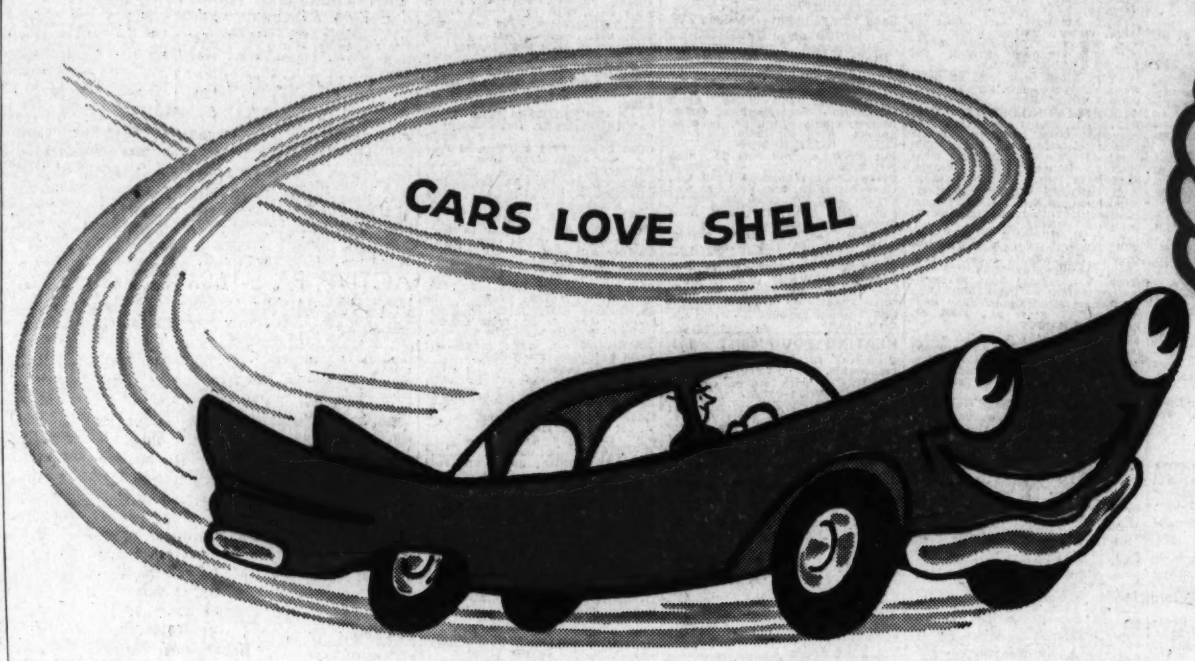

Nor were there any Navajos working in any of the eight offices of the New Mexico and Arizona Congressional delegations. Finally, the reporter found a Navajo in the United States Health Service. He couldn't speak Navajo.

Geneva Talks Narrowing Down To Issue of Whether Russians Meant to Give West Ultimatum

Some Observers Say There Will Be Summit Parley After All If Moscow Agrees to Put 'No Threats' Principle in Writing.

By JAMES RESTON

GENEVA, July 13.

THE SECOND HALF of the Big Four foreign ministers conference is being narrowed down ever so slowly to a single major question.

This is whether the Soviet Union intended, in the first half of the conference here in May and June, to present the Western powers with an 18-month ultimatum to settle the Berlin question on Soviet terms.

When the four ministers recessed here three weeks ago, the West insisted that this was precisely what Moscow was doing. Andrei Gromyko denied it then, has denied it publicly ever since, and is concentrating on denying it in private here now.

Coincidentally Frol R. Kozlov repeated in the United States what Gromyko has been saying here since he arrived, namely, that an effort should be made to reach agreement on Berlin within 18 months, and that, if this cannot be done, the Big Four foreign ministers would meet again to discuss the situation.

This may not be the actual Soviet position, but the fact is that the dialogue is changing, the Soviets, either for tactical or substantive reasons, are now saying that they intended no threats, and this has increased the hope, at least for the time being, of a limited accommodation on Berlin and a summit meeting here in the autumn.

Ambiguous Language.

The "misunderstanding" of the Soviet offer on Berlin—if that's what it was—is not hard to explain, for Gromyko's explanation of his government's proposals last June 19 was highly ambiguous.

At one point he said: "What we proposed was to work out an agreement on a temporary settlement of the West Berlin question which would remain in force for a definite period."

He added: "The Soviet government is proceeding from the premise that it is impossible to delay a peace settlement with Germany and to preserve the occupation regime in West Berlin ad infinitum."

In the same statement, however, he said: "The question of a time limit of that agreement is a matter neither of principle to us. If during the agreed period no solution of the questions of a peace treaty with Germany and the unification of Germany can be reached within the framework of an all-German committee or otherwise, then the participants of the Geneva conference of foreign ministers of 1959 could resume the consideration of the West Berlin question."

Confronted with the statements that the agreement was of a "temporary" nature for a "definite period" and that it was "impossible" to "delay a peace settlement," the Western powers chose at the end of the first session of the conference last month to assume that the Soviet Union was renewing its threats to do what it liked about Berlin if it did not get what it wanted within the 18-month period.

Herter's Tough Reaction.

After that Secretary of State Herter returned to the United States and made a tough speech emphasizing that no progress could be made as long as the Soviet Union threatened to tear up its international agreements if it did not achieve its objectives within a stated time. This started, or at least was followed, by a series of Soviet reassurances that the West's rights would continue in Berlin, even if no agreement was reached in the 18-month period.

In particular, Gromyko made a statement June 28 answering Herter, which was being regarded by United States officials here as a key to the conference starting today. At that time the Soviet foreign minister said:

"Critics of the Soviet proposals go as far as to try and ascribe to the Soviet Union the intention to swallow West Berlin and deprive its inhabitants of freedom. Strange assertions of this kind were contained in particular in the speech made by Mr. Herter on the radio on his return to the United States from Geneva. Is it necessary to say that such arguments do not contain one grain of truth?

He went on to say that if the Soviet Union had intended to embark on a course of its own in Berlin after the 18 months, it would not have proposed new negotiations with the other Foreign Ministers at the end of the period.

A Measure of Progress.

Accordingly, the conference will deal primarily on this point. The Western ministers have no objection to trying to reach an agreement on Berlin in 18 months, or 18 weeks, for that matter, just so the Soviet Union agrees that their rights in Berlin continue if no agreement is reached within the stated period.

Movement is therefore apparent in these long and tedious negotiations. It may be almost glacial in its slowness, but a gradual accommodation is being worked out, not on the major questions of the future of Germany and the security of Europe, but on the narrow issues of a temporary settlement on Berlin and a meeting at the summit.

The Russians threatened last Nov. 27 to throw the West out of Berlin in six months. The six months passed and the time limit was increased to a year, then to 18 months, and now the theme is that the time limit is not important but merely a date at which the foreign ministers will renew their talks if no agreement is reached.

Since then, moreover, the Soviets have acknowledged the West's legal rights in Berlin, and the West, in turn, has made several concessions to Moscow.

The East German regime has been given a place in this conference, for example, and the West has accepted the principle of the East Germans having control over transportation into Berlin, as agents of the Soviet Union. An offer has been made to limit the West's troops in Berlin and reduce the West's propaganda and intelligence activities in that city.

Thus, concessions of a limited nature are being made on both sides, and the guess here last night was that if the Soviet Union will put its "on threats" principle in writing, there will be a summit meeting on the larger issues after all.

Chinese Reds Aim Propaganda Drive at Latin American Nations

By SPENCER DAVIS

WASHINGTON, July 13 (AP).

UNITED STATES officials said yesterday Communist China is intensifying its wooing of Latin American nations to the point of a major propaganda campaign.

Experts analyzing the daily propaganda output of the Peiping radio said there has been a sharp increase in propaganda items beamed in Spanish, English and Portuguese the last six weeks to Central and South America.

To these sources, the Chinese Communist objective appears threefold:

1. To call the world's attention to the fact that Peiping considers itself not simply an Asian power, but a world power even though it is not a member of the United Nations.

2. To emphasize what Communist China considers its correct role under Marxian theory to act as the revolutionary leader of countries still in a semi-feudal stage of development. Since Peiping has pictured the Latin American nations as among the underdeveloped countries not far removed from feudalism, it is asserting leadership in efforts to spread Communism in the area.

3. To embarrass the United States by operating openly at its doorstep and attempting to undo United Sttaes efforts to improve economic conditions among its neighbors.

Communist China has seized on the Cuban revolution, disaffection in the Caribbean, and financial difficulties in Brazil and Argentina.

The planned establishment of a new Chinese Communist newspaper in Havana in the near future is regarded by United States officials here as part of the stepped-up Peiping campaign.

How successful the paper in the Chinese language will be was open to question here.

Every Latin American republic recognizes the Chinese Nationalist government. Not one recognizes the Peiping government.

The Chinese community in Latin America was estimated at about 75,000 some five years ago. How much it has grown since then is not accurately known.

If Peiping has any intention of converting these Chinese into its potential tools, officials here think the effort will fail.

Chinese throughout Latin America are regarded as pro-Nationalist inclined. They are judged far less interested and politically exposed to the homeland than the 13,000,000 or more Chinese living in southeast Asia. Chinese in Latin America are regarded as politically oriented on the conservative side.

Cuba has the largest number. The Cuban community now is estimated to number about 30,000.

Among other Chinese concentrations, Peru has more than 15,000; Jamaica, 13,000; Mexico, 12,000; the Guianas, 3000; Brazil, 1000 or more. According to China Yearbook figures, Canada has in excess of 32,000 and the United States more than 117,000.

FOREIGN AID CUT WON'T HURT, SAYS C. OF C. COUNCIL

WASHINGTON, July 13 (AP)—The Council of State Chambers of Commerce said yesterday that based on experience President Eisenhower's foreign aid request can be cut without damaging America's interests.

Eugene F. Rinta, the council's research director, said in a statement:

"It would seem that Congress should hardly be more liberal with the mutual security request for 1960 than it has been with past requests.

"If the Congress should do no more than reduce the new appropriations request of $3,900,000,000 by the 11-year average cut of 18.9 per cent, the reduction would amount to $743,000,000. If it should reduce the request in proportion to the cuts in the six post-Korean war years, the reduction would be $857,000,000, or 21.8 per cent."

The Senate last week passed a foreign aid authorization bill for $3,543,320,000, about 10 per cent under the $3,909,400,000 Mr. Eisenhower requested, but more than the $3,542,600,000 voted by the House. The difference is expected to be worked out in a Senate-House conference committee this week.

Housing Veto's 2-Way Impact On Democrats

It Could Unify Party or Lead to Revolt Against Johnson.

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON.

PRESIDENT Eisenhower probably didn't mean to play his cards that way, but he has just handed the Democratic congress an issue that will either tear the Lyndon Johnson Democrats and the liberal Democrats into two fiercely divided camps or unite them in harmony. The issue is his veto of the housing bill.

The story developed in the privacy of senate cloakrooms:

Development No. 1—Senator Clark of Pennsylvania has been showing other Democratic senators a chart of how Lyndon Johnson has failed to support the Democratic party.

In case after case, Clark's chart shows, the man who was elected leader of the Democratic Senate has failed to vote with the Democrats. Clark maintains that Johnson doesn't deserve to serve as Democratic leader.

Development No. 2—Johnson is weeping on the shoulders of his Republican friends over the ingratitude of President Eisenhower. He is calling the President an "all-or-nothing man," a man who doesn't appreciate compromise. He tells Republican Senators that he has stuck out his neck with Democrats to try to give Mr. Eisenhower compromise legislation approaching what he wanted, whereupon Mr. Eisenhower vetoes it.

The veto of the housing bill has made Johnson especially angry. This bill was scaled down on Johnson's specific orders to meet Mr. Eisenhower's approval. It was cut by Senate-House conferees from $2,675,000,000, as passed by the Senate, and $2,100,000,000, as passed by the House, to only $1,375,400,000. Slum clearance (urban renewal) alone was scaled from the Senate figure of $2,100,000,000 over a six-year period to $900,000,000 over a two-year period.

Now in the face of the veto, Democratic rebels are saying: "We told you so. Why compromise in the first place? If the President is going to veto John-

GALLUP POLL

Only 44 Pct. of Voters Indicate Preference for Republican Candidates — 60 Pct. Once Did.

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J., July 13.

G.O.P. CONGRESSIONAL FORTUNES have sunk to a new record low point in the traditional heartland of Republicanism, the Midwest. In this 12-state region, where Republican candidates have polled as high as 60 per cent of the vote in years past, the G.O.P. share of the congressional vote in Gallup Poll surveys is below that they received in the Democrats' big year of 1936.

In 1936, Republican Congressional candidates polled 46 per cent of the Midwestern vote. Today only 44 per cent of Midwestern voters indicate a preference for G.O.P. candidates.

The sharpest decline in Republican strength since the November Congressional elections has come in the Midwest.

If the elections for Congress were being held today, which party would you like to see win in this state—the Republican party or the Democratic party?

Results, June, 1959:

Democratic	59%
Republican	41

The relative standing of the two parties has been unchanged since April. The Republicans' present support represents a drop-off in strength since the November elections when the Democrats won their most sweeping victory in over 20 years:

Results, Nov. '58 Election:

Democratic	58.5%
Republican	43.5

During the same period, this has been the course of Mr. Eisenhower's popularity:

	Today	Nov. '58
Approve	62%	52%
Disapprove	22	30
No Opinion	16	18

The G.O.P. losses at the Congressional level since November have come primarily from two major regions of the country—the Midwest and the East.

The Democrats took 68 of the 129 seats at stake in the Midwest last November for an increase of 22 seats over the total they had from that area in the previous Congress.

Since that time, this has been the trend:

	Dem.	Rep.
Nov. Elec.	53%	47%
TODAY	56	44

In the New England and Middle Atlantic states of the East, where the Democrats took 72 out of the 129 seats at stake last fall, this has been the trend:

	Dem.	Rep.
Nov. Elec.	53%	47%
TODAY	55	45

In the South and Far West, the situation has seen little change since last November's election. With the Democrats taking a total of 143 out of the 178 seats at stake in these two areas, however, the fact that there has been little change since November is not likely to be good news to Republican strategists.

In the 13 Southern states, the Democrats won 111 seats last fall or about the customary number they pick up there.

In the 12 states of the Far West (including Alaska), the Democrats won 32 of 58 seats in November.

This has been the trend in these two regions since the 1958 election:

Southern States

	Dem.	Rep.
Nov. Elec.	80%	20%
TODAY	80	20

Far Western States

	Dem.	Rep.
Nov. Elec.	57%	43%
TODAY	58	42

MINORITY PARTIES SAY THEY WON'T SUPPORT BEN-GURION

JERUSALEM, Israel Sector, July 13 (AP) — The left-wing parties Ahdut Avoda and Mapam said yesterday they will not support any minority government led by caretaker Premier Ben-Gurion.

They told President Izhak Ben-Zvi, however, they would accept the present caretaker government until elections Nov. 17.

Ben-Gurion last Sunday resigned after four Cabinet members from the two left-wing parties refused to support the sale of Israeli arms to West Germany. He demanded that the dissenting ministers resign or support the arms deal. When they refused the Premier quit.

LONDON, July 13 (AP) — A Soviet delegation left Moscow by plane yesterday to attend Baghdad celebrations marking the Iraqui uprising that took place a year ago tomorrow. The Moscow radio said the group was headed by First Deputy Foreign Minister Vassily V. Kuznetzov.

Brown Thought That He Needed No Will

BROWN thought that upon his death all of his estate would go to his wife and since this was what he wanted, he needed no will.

But he overlooked a number of important things. His estate consisted of marketable securities which amounted to $60,000 and if he died without a will his estate would go in equal parts to his wife and two young children. This arrangement would not give his wife the income from all his estate which she required, but would give her one-third of his estate. Furthermore, since he had no will he could name no executor and if Mrs. Brown were appointed administrator she would have to furnish a bond and this would be an expense he could avoid under a will. In addition, since his children were minors, it would be necessary to appoint a guardian.

The guardian would have to provide bond at the expense of the children. The guardian would be restricted by out-moded laws severely limiting what a guardian may invest in. Then when each child attained age 21, the child would receive his or her share outright even though the child lacked maturity of judgment and even though both children were still living with their mother and she would need the entire income plus portions of the principal for the support of the family.

When Brown talked to his lawyer he learned that his estate would not automatically go to his wife in the event of his death and he learned the various disadvantages of having no will. Brown now has provided the best protection for his family by leaving his estate in trust under his will and providing that the income go to his wife and that the trustee be given the power to supplement the income by payments from the principal when necessary. He has provided that after his wife's death the trust continue in equal shares for his children until they are old enough to attain maturity of judgment as well as legal age. The trustee has been given the power to use the income and principal for the benefit of the children when they are minors and thus there will be no need of having a guardian with the needless expense and other disadvantages involved.

To protect the financial future of your family, leave your estate in trust and name Missouri's oldest trust company as executor and trustee.

Comptroller's Reply

In your letters column last Wednesday, seven St. Louis county residents stated that the owner of city property assessed at $5000 would pay more taxes to the city if the earnings tax rate is increased ½ of 1 per cent than he would under the alternative to that increase—higher taxes on property, gasoline and the sales of merchants and manufacturers, and the $8-per-year-per-household charge for collecting rubbish.

As the Comptroller of St. Louis, I want to explain why this is simply not so.

The city resident — be he real property owner or renter—will pay less rather than more taxes to raise a given amount of money with the increased earnings tax than he would with the four alternate tax increases.

What Mr. Gish and his county co-signers to the Wednesday letter did was to compare a full year's return from the extra ½ of 1 per cent earnings tax with that from the four alternate tax increases.

The comparison is not valid because they ignore the effect of next year's tax reductions—whether they be reductions in the earnings tax itself by exemptions for dependents or reductions in other city taxes, such as those on property or cigarettes or gasoline.

For a full fiscal year the higher earnings tax would produce $10,000,000 more than it does now, but the four alternative taxes in a full year would bring in only $5,850,000, leaving a difference of $4,150,000.

No responsible city official can say at this time what form tax reduction next spring will take if the earnings tax amendment is passed. However—by way of example only—let me point out that if the entire $4,150,000 difference were available for property tax reduction, it would mean 30 cents off the property tax rate next year in addition to avoiding the 7-cent increase this year.

In that case, Mr. Gish's typical property owner would save $3.50 in property taxes this year but he would save $18.50 in property taxes the following year, provided the earnings tax is increased—besides savings on rubbish collection, on gasoline and in the price of the goods he buys in the city.

Comptroller,
City of St. Louis

Hokum by the Ruble

If our foreign aid program is as worthy as its advocates claim, why must they resort to hokum to enlist support?

Communist foreign aid in the amount of $2,400,000,000 in credits and loans since 1954, the State Department says, is a strong argument for pouring $3,900,000,000 more into our aid program. Undoubtedly many have been impressed by this argument, but there is plenty of hokum in it, and the hokum was made in Moscow.

A Kremlin expert, by a calculation no American needs to bother about, made the dictum: Four rubles equal a dollar. Thereby was perpetrated a fraud. Outside the Red world exchange rates are not made by government fiat. They are the results of evaluations by traders in the free world's currency markets. Here the accepted rate has not been better than 24 rubles to the dollar.

Nevertheless the State Department, ignoring the free-market rate, took the Kremlin's in arriving at the $2,400,000,000 estimate of Soviet aid. Adjusted to the market rate, the figure boils down to $400,000,000. But since only 38 per cent of the aid has been taken by recipient nations, the net amount comes to approximately $152,000,000.

Drivers Are Responsible

A former New York traffic chairman says that the National Safety Council does a serious disservice to traffic safety by placing emphasis on individual responsibility for accidents. He is wrong. And he does an even greater disservice to the cause of traffic safety by suggesting that federal control of Detroit is the answer.

The picture I get from that philosophy is a nation of drivers merrily passing trucks on hills while waiting for Washington to tell Detroit to give us safe cars.

It is true, of course, that automobiles should have a maximum of built-in safety, and it may be that some legislation in that direction is desirable. But when this machine is put into the hands of ordinary people like you and me, it seems pure folly to suggest to them that they have little or no responsibility for what may happen.

Check the Pension Bill

A major piece of veterans pension legislation is pending in Senator Harry F. Byrd's Finance Committee where it ought to be the object of adequate hearings, followed by informative debate on the Senate floor. The pension measure needs free discussion in the Senate particularly because it passed the House, 226 to 34, under special procedure that permitted only 40 minutes of debate and allowed no amendments whatever.

Before the bill passed the House, it was reported that its revision and elaboration of pension schedules would save 12 billion dollars over the next 40 years. Since then Representative Teague of Texas, chairman of the House Veterans Committee, has said that there would be no saving and that instead over the same period of time the pension cost would go up by 10 billion dollars.

The chief effect of the new bill would be to extend to veterans and dependents of World War II and the Korean war the benefits that now go to veterans and families of World War I. Veterans of World War I receive pensions on "the basis of need" and without regard to whether their disabilities are service-connected or non-connected. The estimate is that this would add 200,000 dependents to the pension lists. It is this which Representative Teague says would keep the bill from saving taxpayers 12 billion dollars by the year 2000.

One of the major troubles in this situation is that the Eisenhower Administration, after creating the President's Commission on Veterans Pensions and placing Gen. Bradley at the head of it in 1955, has yet to come to grips resolutely with the growing pension problem. The Bradley Commission, in a searching report on excesses and extravagances as well as genuine needs, had this to say:

> Military service should be treated as discharging an obligation of citizenship and not of itself as a basis for future Government benefits, (which) would be provided only for the significant requirements of veterans that arise directly out of their military service. Veterans' non-service connected benefits should be minimized and gradually eliminated.

Presumably this is the position also of President Eisenhower, who in his 1959 budget message noted the cost of benefits based on non-service connected disabilities. But he has still, four years after appointment of the Bradley Commission, to send to Congress the special message on veterans affairs which he has repeatedly promised.

Every piece of veterans legislation needs to be scrutinized with utmost care and with the long-run future in mind. Nearly 23,000,000 citizens are now classified as veterans by the Veterans Administration and if the families of these veterans are counted as potential receivers of Government benefits the total is 75,000,000—close to half the total population of the United States.

What does the Eisenhower Administration think of the bill pending in the Senate? Is the White House for the bill or against it? What if any changes does it recommend and why? In this non-election year, the President can take a strong stand on the side of fairness and fiscal responsibility. In the 1960 presidential election Congress and his advisers will oppose any stand that will stir up the powerful veterans lobbies.

Protecting the Riverfront

Since developers in the area adjacent to the riverfront park will acquire property at a reduced cost, it is reasonable that the Aldermen should require the approval of the City Plan Commission and the Land Clearance Authority for their plans. As a matter of fact, the City Art Commission already has extensive veto power over structures facing a park. The Aldermen should avail themselves of the services of the Art Commission both in drafting and in the application of the proposed ordinance.

The riverfront memorial with its soaring arch will be one of the sights of the nation, and its appeal should not be reduced by incongruous surroundings. Indeed the nearby buildings' own value would be diminished if they were out of harmony with the memorial.

The proposed ordinance requiring such approval, of course, should not be a bureaucratic dictation of precisely what may be built and how it should look. Instead, it should be a means of co-ordinating this phase of the effort to make St. Louis the city beautiful. As such it should be welcomed by all who are eager to give the riverfront a new—and splendid—look.

Concern for Cuba

When Secretary of State Herter admitted to a serious concern about events in Cuba, he spoke for many Americans who had expected more from Fidel Castro's revolution. One disquieting event was the forced resignation and flight to Miami of Maj. Pedro Diaz Lanz, a former devoted follower of Castro and chief of his air force, now termed a traitor by the man he served so well. The major's crime was to protest against growing Communist influence in the Army. Moreover, the Castro government has just adopted the death penalty for "crimes which damage the national economy or treasury" as well as for subversion and "counter-revolutionary" activity, though these crimes will now be tried by the civil, not military, courts.

The Cuban press also is under fire. The chief of the land reform program threatened newspaper critics as "traitors" desiring a "counter-revolution." The newspaper Avance boldly replied that Castro men were using the label "counter-revolutionary" in much the way former Dictator Batista used the label "Communist." Finally, there are growing doubts about the practicality of Castro's social revolution. The effects of the hasty break-up of sugar estates on sugar production, which accounts for 75 per cent of Cuba's exports, will not be known for perhaps a year. But under the impact of decrees governing wages and rents and imposing new taxes, Cuba is in a depression. Foreign investment and tourism are negligible, construction has dropped by one half or more and a third of the labor force is unemployed.

The North American reaction to this has so far been less antagonism than disappointment. Most Americans sympathized with the Castro rebellion against dictatorship, and this country received Castro in markedly friendly fashion. Our Government has not protested against his actions or intervened in any way, nor objected to expropriation of American property. But the Castro record is not matching expectations.

He promised liberty, freedom of criticism and democratic government. Instead he has shot opponents, shown extreme sensitivity to criticism and postponed elections. He promised industrialization to promote economic independence and land reform to help a rural population which was nearly half illiterate and seldom had milk or meat in its diets. Instead economic chaos is spreading. He said he was not a Communist, but the Cuban situation is almost made to order for the Communist infiltration which his critics charge.

A good neighbor has a right to express concern, as Secretary Herter has done. A continuance of the disturbing trend of the Castro government will damage Cuba's relations with the best neighbor it has had.

And Now to Vote

St. Louisans will decide the earnings tax issue tomorrow in the privacy of their precinct polling booths, and the greater the turnout the better.

The voting actually will be on a Charter amendment permitting the Aldermen to double the levy. Charter amendments require a 60 per cent favorable majority for passage. So for every two votes against, proponents will have to muster three Yes votes. Since nearly every political proposition must overcome the handicap of a certain amount of hard-core opposition, supporters of the increase have their work cut out for them.

One point that city voters ought not to forget is the size of the contribution that will be made by non-residents if the higher earnings rate is approved. It is most substantial. Non-residents pay a third of the total earnings tax yield. For the remainder of this year it would run to $1,500,000 of the $4,500,000 that the higher levy would produce. This is equivalent to the return from an 11-cent levy on property.

Over a full year the 1 per cent earnings rate would bring in some $20,000,000—about a third of the total municipal budget. And of that sum about $6,666,666 would be paid by non-residents who work in the city. This is in excess of 10 per cent of the present budget. More to the point, if it had to be raised in St. Louis alone by a tax on property a levy of about 48 cents would be required.

The Aldermen have already approved a stopgap package of property, sales, gasoline and rubbish charges on city residents that will go into effect to balance this year's budget if the earnings tax proposal is defeated. St. Louisans who want the help of non-residents in financing necessary municipal services will surely not permit that to happen. The way to assure a favorable outcome is to vote YES on the Charter amendment. Polling places will be open from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m.

A Much-needed Measure

The "clean elections" bill approved by the Senate Rules Committee is by no means perfect but, as Chairman Hennings says, it is a great improvement over the 1925 Corrupt Practices Act, which is obsolete and largely ignored. A major omission is the exclusion of primaries from coverage; primaries are in fact elections in the south. Senator Hennings tried to have primaries included but the committee voted 5 to 4 to reject the proposal.

The bill would establish more realistic rules for political spending. It would increase from $3,000,000 to about $12,000,000 the annual spending limit for national political committes and increase from $10,000 or $50,000 or more the limit on spending by a Senate candidate and from $2500 to $12,500 or more limit on House candidates. It would also require stricter accounting of contributions and expenditures.

If approved, the legislation would take effect next Jan. 1. Despite the fact similar measures died in the two preceding Congresses, the committee should push the legislation. This bill, or something like it, is badly needed.

Detroit's Answer on Safety

Detroit's reply to proposals for federal safety standards for automobiles is that the industry can set its own standards, and that more research must be done before any standards are set. This is what auto manufacturers told a House Commerce subcommittee headed by Congressman Roberts of Alabama.

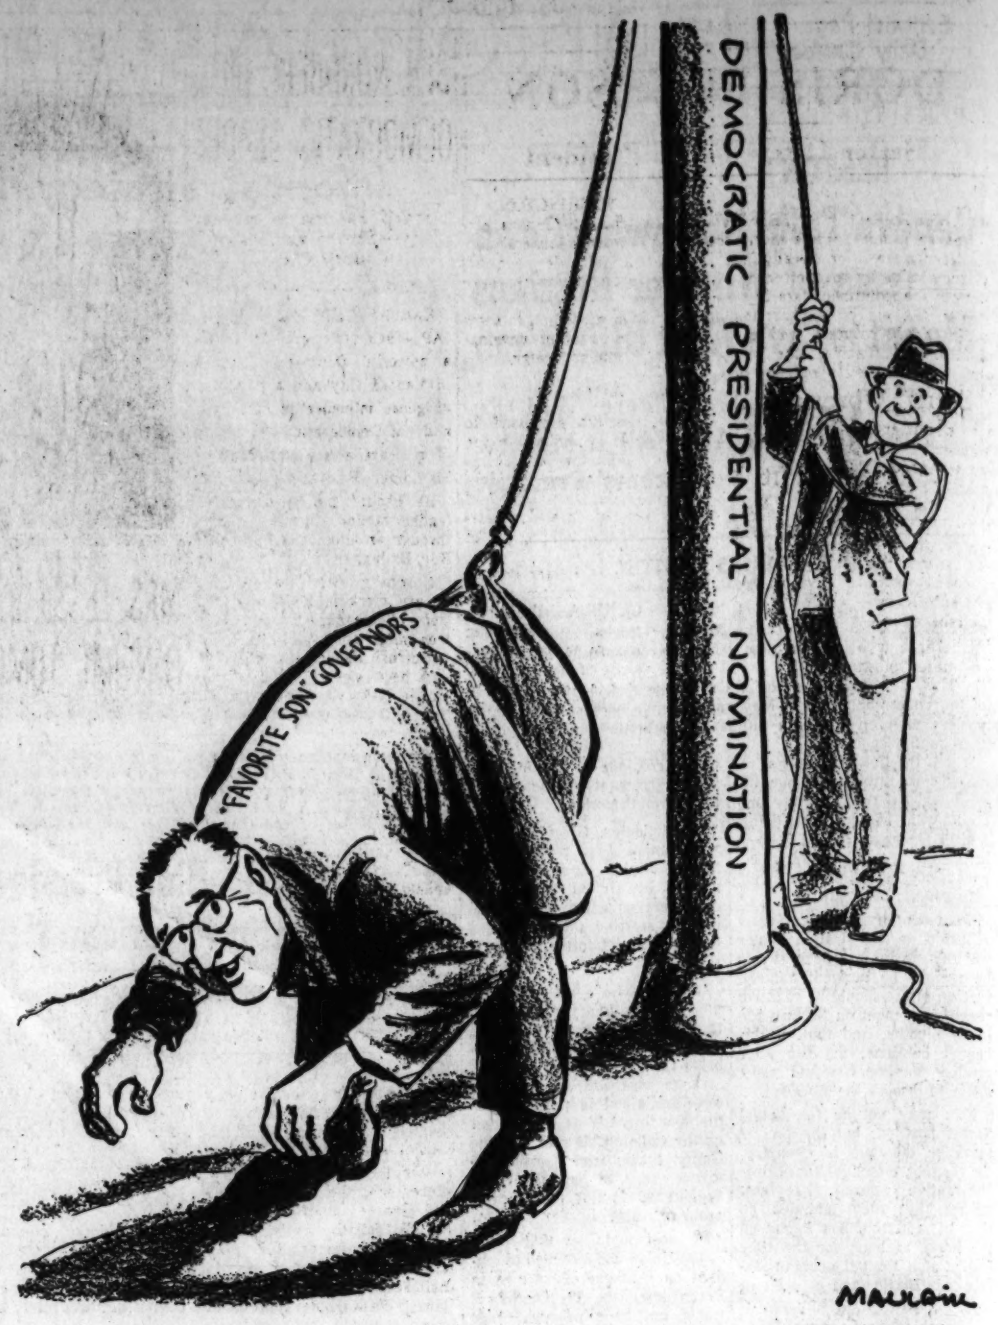

Neither part of this answer is very relevant to the committee proposal. Detroit could set better safety standards, but will it? More research may be needed, but do not engineers and physicians alike already know that lives can be saved by seat belts, contoured seats, padded dashboards, recessed instruments, collapsible steering wheels, roll bars and so on? The industry has not shown much enthusiasm for such safety features, particularly since Ford sales declined on 1956 models advertised for safety.

The bill before the committee would require the Federal Government to buy only cars equipped with proved safety equipment. Congressman Roberts contends that the public would prefer seat belt attachments to higher tail fins. Auto dealers might disagree. In any case, safety need not be left entirely to customer preference or Detroit's habits. Modest and indirect federal standards should help everybody.

A Good Start

Secretary of State Herter seems to have made a favorable impression at his general news conference on Thursday, the first he has held since taking office in April.

The new secretary cannot hope to equal Dulles in forensic skill or in ability to turn a simple question into a lecture on foreign policy, which might be directed not to the reporters present but through them to Congress or some European or Asian capital. He can perform a public service, however, by holding conferences as frequently as possible and by answering questions as frankly as he can within the bounds of prudence. That will help the public understand United States policy, and help him execute it. He has made a good beginning.

An Editorial in The Journal of Commerce

(The following is an extract from a set of uncorrected galley proofs one of our reporters says he found on a street outside the Government Printing Office. It was headed "Congressional Record — Senate, June 4, 1970." We won't vouch for its authenticity, but we do want to repeat the date—1970.)

MR. BROWN: Will the Senator please state just what the purpose of this extraordinary measure is supposed to be?

MR. SMITH: The Senator from Pennsylvania knows very well that the matter of providing adequate storage for the Commodity Credit Corporation's surplus wheat has become a matter of great urgency, especially in view of the bumper crops of the past few years. Despite all kinds of inducements to farmers to reduce acreage, despite nine successive increases in authorizations to dispose of the surplus overseas, the problem of storing the surplus at home remains unsolved. This measure, S.R. 705, is primarily an enabling bill to permit the use of the Grand Canyon for that purpose, and for a restricted period of time, namely for 19 years.

The Mirror of Public Opinion

MR. GREEN: As chairman of the Committee on Public Lands and Surveys I should like to ask the distinguished chairman of the Committee on Agriculture whether, in approving this bill, the committee considered the fact that the Grand Canyon is one of the great tourist attractions, one of the great natural wonders of our American heritage and that——

MR. SMITH: I assure my distinguished colleague that the Agriculture Committee weighed that consideration thoroughly. I am glad to be able to assure him that suitable provision will be made for tourists in certain areas.

MR. BLACK: Mr. President, what is this reference in Section J, line 7, to authorization of expenditures in the amount of $375,000,000 for "river relocation"? Will the distinguished chairman of the Agriculture Committee please explain that, if he can?

MR. SMITH: I shall be glad to. This is an authorization covered in the companion bill, S.R. 706, relating to the diversion of the waters of the Colorado river for the purpose of irrigating marginal lands which are now, unfortunately, capable of producing wheat only in certain years when climatic conditions are especially favorable. This is not a part of the measure presently under discussion, though it will be, of course, necessary to divert the waters of the river in order to store wheat in the Grand Canyon.

MR. SMALL: Will the gentleman yield?

PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE: Will the gentleman yield to the Senator from Rhode Island?

MR. SMITH: I yield one minute to the distinguished Senator from Rhode Island.

MR. SMALL: Mr. President, I have sat here in this Chamber for two days now, listening to this learned debate over whether surplus wheat should be stored in Antarctica, despite the possible international repercussions and the ever-present danger of theft, or in the Grand Canyon. I have been absolutely overwhelmed by the massive presentation of evidence that storage in either place is technically feasible. I want to compliment my colleagues, especially the distinguished chairman of the Agriculture Committee, on the sobriety and statesmanship with which this great issue has been debated from the beginning.

But, Mr. President, are we not still dealing with symptoms rather than with the cause of the disease itself? Should we not go back eight, nine or 10 years to the time when it was still considered possible to discuss — not what to do with a surplus that keeps growing by leaps and bounds every year—but what to do about the crop support system that has nourished it?

We all recognize, I think, that this surplus has now reached such monstrous proportions it is taking up most of the time of this Chamber, poisoning our international relations, applying a crushing burden on taxpayers and——

PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE: The Senator's time has expired.

Can't Somebody Turn It Off?

Lakes Come to the Hills From The Kansas City Star

An economic revolution is taking place in the hill country along the Missouri-Arkansas line and in Northeast Oklahoma. The Table Rock dam is the third of the three major dams on the White river. In the same economic picture you can include the nearby Pensacola dam on the Grand river of Oklahoma. With some reason the people of this area look ahead to eventual comparisons with the accomplishments of the TVA.

Here is a growing source of electric power, flood control and the basis for a tremendous recreation industry. These dams will now supply considerably more than half the output of the Southwest Power Administration that is being distributed from Texas to Northwest Missouri.

Starting next year the agency will supply peaking power to the Kansas City Power & Light Co. It is a major supplier of rural co-operatives. Cheap power has attracted a big aluminum company to northern Arkansas and the Ozark area regards hydroelectric production as the necessary stimulus for future industrial growth.

The comparatively fast White river is a natural setup for hydroelectric power production, yet it was not possible to develop the river for one purpose alone. This is a flood control project to help tame the river all the way to its junction with the Mississippi. And, in the immediate Ozark area, the by-product of recreation may turn out to be as important as any purpose.

Between Book Ends Music Hath Charms

A VOICE THAT FILLS THE HOUSE, by Martin Mayer. (Simon and Schuster, 249 pgs., $3.75.)

Ever since Congreve intimated that "Music hath charms to soothe the savage breast," no better practical application of his theory has appeared than the story of the unnamed baritone-narrator of Martin Mayer's "A Voice That Fills the House."

Martin Mayer

Insulated by the needs and satisfactions of his admittedly successful operatic career, the big singer reports clinically his own marital problems and the outre' doings of the hangers-on who form his immediate circle. As he says, the warmth of rage and the warmth of charity are drained from him, principally by his necessary preoccupation with his own professional problems.

Martin Mayer has written a behind-the-scenes report of artists and dilettantes moving from the San Carlo Opera House in Naples to La Scala in Milan and then to the Met in New York. It is an account of musical discipline contrasted with bizarre sexual indiscipline; and the professionals, trailing clouds of musical glory, come off better by far.

The plot concerns an American baritone who has achieved success in Europe and is now ready to lay siege to the portals of his own country. The baritone has a wife who longs to be a concert pianist, but, since good baritones are unique and good concert pianists glut the market, her place by his side as wife, secretary, courier and luggage-packer is clearly indicated.

Further distracted by the fascination he (apparently without effort or desire) exercises over the group of sexual aberrants who can smooth his professional path, the baritone rises above his difficulties by virtue of merit, training and such an admirable imperturbability to the needs of those closest to him that those needs run ashamedly for cover.

The story is quite possibly weakened by its divergency of plot; it is in the theatrical aspect that Mr. Mayer speaks with more authority. However, the heightening of emphasis achieved by the contrast of professionals with wishful amateurs is effective, and in theory, at least, an unabashed egotist need not apologize providing he has, authentically, the artistry he lays claim to.

DORIS FLEESON

Herter Defers to the President

WASHINGTON.

SECRETARY OF STATE HERTER is returning to Geneva prepared to spend three more weeks at a foreign ministers' conference which he already feels is doomed to fail. He made this plain, almost by inadvertence, at his first press conference here since his appointment late last April.

With the aid of a charming smile, great courtesy and the diplomatic vernacular, the Secretary had fielded a barrage of questions regarding current developments without breaking new ground. Asked then to state in a word how he felt about returning to Geneva, he quipped it would probably be unprintable. A moment later he said he hoped to visit Berlin after leaving Geneva, even though he might not be welcome. Asked why he felt he might not be welcome, he said Berlin perhaps would not like the results at Geneva.

Herter

The result is certain to be renewed demands in Congress that the new Secretary settle down at the Department for more creative and imaginative tasks in the field of foreign policy.

President Undecided.

Herter himself mentioned that he had been out of the country two-thirds of his time since taking office and most of that has been at the unrewarding conference so soon to begin again.

The only apparent reason why the Administration feels it should keep Geneva going is that the President has not made up his mind to meet or not to meet Soviet Premier Khrushchev at the summit.

Perhaps he feels that the visit of his brother, Dr. Milton Eisenhower, and Vice President Nixon to Moscow will bring more hopeful developments.

The Herter conference did not attract the huge turnout his press debut as Secretary was expected to evoke. The negative Geneva aspects had of course been widely advertised already and as Herter has been here so little he was not in a position to comment widely on other developments, domestic or foreign.

The Day After.

Some reporters professed to see a certain symbolism in the fact that while the late Secretary Dulles always met the press on Tuesday, 24 hours ahead of the presidential press conference, Herter was holding his 24 hours later.

It is true that Herter repeatedly deferred to statements already made by the President, but he was actually unavailable Tuesday because he had extended his Fourth of July holiday over that day in anticipation of his "unprintable" return to Geneva.

Nor is Herter another Dulles, and anyway his long legislative experience would incline him to executive deference to the President. The new Secretary must develop other strengths; he has shown that he knows this by his plans to re-constitute some kind of advisory council within the department.

Point for Rebellion.

In addition, a summit meeting will require the active participation of the President, putting his personal strength and skills on the block.

While Eisenhower has shown a disposition to shy away from every decision he could possibly delegate, he has a rare instinct for spotting those situations in which he will be personally judged by the results. When they arise, he decides how far and when to commit himself.

A point will certainly be reached at which the Secretary of State should not be pinned down to the talking-war, as at Geneva, or his prestige will be sadly impaired. Then it will be up to Herter to known when to rebel—as he has already indicated he might.

Sophisticated Audience Cheers Moscow-Bound Fashion Show

© New York Times News Service

NEW YORK, July 13 — The most "sophisticated fashion audience in the world"- applauded and cheered at a preview yesterday of the American fashion show to be presented in Moscow.

The audience, which was so described by the executive director of the fashion industries presentation, Leonard J. Hankin, assembled in the auditorium of the Fashion Institute of Technology. The preview was the opening event of National Fashion Press Week in New York, attended by more than 250 fashion editors from all over the country.

The fashion show, which has 47 American models ranging from twin girls aged 4 to a great grandmother over 60, is intended to show the Russians how Americans dress. Fashions range from a cotton house dress, priced at about $3, to a Russian sable coat valued at $60,000.

The show was staged on an exact reproduction of the V-shaped runway, 75 feet long, which will enable 2000 Russians to see the show in Moscow at each performance, three times a day. The fashion show, privately financed, is to be part of the American National Exposition, and runs from July 25 to Sept. 5.

The show is divided into tableaux, with each "cast" acting out a little scene to show how America goes to business, to a wedding, a barbecue, a coke party, a square dance, fancy dress charity ball, or packs for a trip.

In Moscow, it will be presented in an outdoor setting, under a plastic honeycomb roof. The models include three Negroes, a Filipino dancer from a Broadway show, college girls, a registered nurse, an office worker, an actor and a few professional models.

BEN NORDBERG DIES; DEMOCRATIC LEADER

Headed Faction in Kansas City—Served as Jackson County Clerk.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 13 (AP)—Ben Nordberg, leader of a powerful Democratic faction in Kansas City and a politician of great influence in state and national Democratic affairs, died of a heart attack yesterday at his home. He was 66 years old.

He headed the Nordberg-Gallagher faction, formed in 1952 through an alliance with the late Roy Gallagher.

Nordberg first was elected county clerk in 1942 in opposition to cleanup forces which won most county offices. The powerful Pendergast machine had been swept from the city hall in 1940. He was serving his fifth four-year term at the time of his death.

Nordberg took over all county accounting records shortly after he took office in 1942. For 16 years previous to his move, the accounting office had been under the jurisdiction of the county court. Nordberg's action was upheld by the Missouri Supreme Court.

By United Press International.

Last year Nordberg's candidates won a heavy majority on the county Democratic committee and control of the Jackson county party machinery passed completely into Nordberg's hands.

Mayor William Sermon of Independence, leader of an opposing Democratic combine, and Nordberg had a serious rift earlier this year in choosing a successor to the late Representative George Christopher of the Fourth District.

Nordberg won out and it was largely through his efforts that then Jackson County Judge William J. Randall stepped into the post.

A personal triumph for Nordberg in his political battles was the defeat of a proposed new county charter last year. The charter had been indorsed by Mayor Sermon.

Cards Back Home in Familiar Sixth Place, Tackle Reds Next

Face Wins, Leads 5-4 In Halted Nightcap

By Bob Broeg
Post-Dispatch Sports Editor

The Cardinals came back home today to friendly Busch Stadium and the familiar surroundings of sixth place. Be it ever so humble, there's no place like sixth.

Let the Giants, Braves, Dodgers and those pesky Pirates crowd, shove and push for the first division. The Redbirds seem to be much more relaxed back among the also-rans, where there seldom is heard an encouraging word.

And, to make 'em feel at home—they've been decidedly better in white than in gray—they'll return to action tomorrow night at 8 o'clock against another disappointing and second-division team, Cincinnati. The Reds now are managed by Fred Hutchinson, who could give Solly Hemus chapter and verse in the heartaches of managing the reluctant Redbirds.

Hutch and his Reds, here for three nights, will face the right-handed half of Hemus's two-man staff of established starters, Larry Jackson and Wilmer Mizell.

The failure of the club's young starting pitchers was the most discouraging feature of a six-game trip that ended in the confusion of curfew yesterday at Pittsburgh's Forbes Field, where the pennant-hopeful Pirates beat the Redbirds in a 10-inning opener, 6-5, and then owned a 5-4 edge in the ninth inning of the nightcap.

No. 14 for Fireman Face.

The game will be resumed Aug. 19 at Pittsburgh with one on, one out and Pookie Wally Shannon of the Redbirds facing remarkable Elroy Face, the peerless relief pitcher who gained his nineteenth consecutive victory, his fourteenth this season. For 35 appearances and 60 innings Face has a sensational 0.90 earned-run average.

If Face and the rest of his forward-looking fellows make off with the suspended game as expected, the Cardinals will have suffered their first doubleheader defeat of the season. They had won two and divided seven twinbills before yesterday's.

More significant, demonstrating the difference between a club going somewhere and one going nowhere, Danny Murtaugh's Jolly Rogers have a tremendous record of 12 victories in 13 extra-inning games and, without counting the second contest, 20 triumphs in 30 one-run games. The Cards, by contrast, have won only two of nine in overtime and are 10-19 in games decided by just one run.

Although Pittsburgh committed the most errors in the Sunday doubleheader that drew 25,530 to a spacious park that hasn't housed a World Series crowd since 1927, the most striking playing-field differences were in superior Pirate pitching, starting and relieving, and better Bucco outfielding.

McDaniel Loses Opener.

At Pittsburgh, they're betwixt and between on one thing, First Baseman Dick Stuart, the nonchalant slugger who happens to be the poorest fielder and most powerful hitter on the team. The fans either booed or cheered the defiant giant throughout both games—and often simultaneously.

Stuart singled twice to set up two first-game runs, including the winning tally off Lindy McDaniel in the tenth, as the Pirates collected 15 hits to the Cards' 13. Danny Kravitz led Pittsburgh with three hits and Gene Oliver had three for the Cards, including his fourth homer.

Robert Clemente, driving home the winning run in the first game after tenth-inning singles by Stuart and Kravitz, plus a one-out error by Alex Grammas, sat out the second game because of an aching back or tired blood. As a result, Roman Mejias, hitting just .219, played right field, fielded sensationally and had four straight singles, exactly half the Pirates' eight hits.

For the Cards, also with eight hits, Gino Cimoli delivered his eighth homer, leading off the ninth against southpaw reliever Don Gross, and Stan Musial singled for the second time, bringing Face to the rescue in time to fan pinch-hitter George Crowe before the clock struck 7 and curfew.

Broglio Falters Again.

In the first game Ernie Broglio, failing a tenth time in 12 starts, gave up five runs in the first four innings, bothered by sloppy and inadequate outfielding as well as his own inefficiency. So Harvey Haddix and the Pirates went into the eighth with a 5-1 lead.

Then with two out one of Stuart's errors was followed by four straight hits, scoring three runs and bringing in Face to strike out Crowe. In the ninth, however, the great game-saver gave up the tying run—on Don Blasingame's single, a sacrifice and Bill White's safety—before his and Pittsburgh's extra-inning charm prevailed.

In the second game George Witt, Pirate righthander without a victory, balked home a run in the first inning, but after big Dick Ricketts issued a walk in the home half, White misjudged Bob Skinner's fly for a double and Stuart's grounder hopped high off the hard-surface Forbes Field diamond for a two-run single.

The Cards tied in the second inning on a walk, Grammas's single and Stuart's second error. And they went ahead in the fourth, 3-2, when Musial singled and with two out scored from second as Stuart made a dusty production out of shoveling Grammas's scratch single to Witt covering first.

Pirates Regain Lead.

Pittsburgh went ahead in the sixth when the Pirates seemed to catch Manager Hemus looking ahead to the junior prom. With one out, Bill Mazeroski walked and Don Hoak and Mejias singled for a run. Only righthander Gary Blaylock, one of the more disappointing young pitchers, was warming up as Ted Kluszewski came out to bat for Witt. Southpaw Marshall Bridges hurriedly was warmed up, but he wasn't ready and the lefthanded-hitting Kluszewski combed Blaylock for a run-scoring single before Bridges took over.

In the eighth the managerial strategy was difficult to understand, too. After American League castoff Jack Urban had pitched his third scoreless inning of the afternoon, though he had been hit sharply, a single, sacrifice and intentional walk surprisingly brought to the mound Hal Jeffcoat, who had become low man on the St. Louis staff.

Dick Groat promptly delivered a double that scored an extra run, one the Pirates needed—and still might need—because Cimoli's homer and Musial's single followed. So, unfortunately, did Fireman Face.

A Face-Lifting Job

ALEX GRAMMAS waits with the ball in his glove to tag sliding Pittsburgh runner, DON HOAK, at second base in the third inning of the first game of the Sunday doubleheader. Umpire FRANK DASCOLI ruled Hoak safe, precipitating a rumpus.

SOLLY HEMUS, Cardinal manager, is shown explaining the facts of baseball life to Dascoli, seconds after the call. At left is GRAMMAS, who figured in the play; between Grammas and Hemus is KEN BOYER. Hoak did not score, but the Cards lost, 6-5.

Amazing Face Gives Fork-Ball Ace Page Assist in Success

Elroy Face, fast becoming the most famous fireman ever to give a team pennant hopes, credits carpentry and a former bullpen ace for his excellence as a relief pitcher after gaining his nineteenth straight victory yesterday, a 6-5 triumph over the Cardinals in 10 innings at Forbes Field. The 31-year-old Pittsburgh righthander explained that he had learned his best pitch, the fork ball, from the former Yankee relief star, Joe Page.

Drafted by the Pirates from the Dodgers' farm system in the fall of 1952, Face recalled he put in one poor season in the National League and was told pointedly that he couldn't win without a change of pace.

"I could throw hard, but you can't win just with a fast ball, and not even with a pretty curve," said the 5-7, 150-pound midget of the mound.

"That's when I got lucky for the first time," he added in smiling reference to the fact that he had permitted the Cardinals and four other clubs to tie the score during his sensational 14-0 streak this season.

At spring training in 1954, Page tried a comeback with Pittsburgh. It was then Face learned the fork ball, a difficult-to-master delivery gripped between the first and second fingers, not with the fingers. The fork ball, thrown with a fast ball motion, not only serves as a change-up, but it dips like a sinker, too.

A workhorse in 68, 59 and 57 games the last three years—he has been in 35 so far this season—Face credits his durability and resilient right arm to his winter occupation, carpentry.

"Like Murry Dickson, who went a long time without a sore arm, I definitely believe the active use of the arm hammering and sawing keeps it in shape," he said. "I once relieved nine straight days."

ELROY FACE

Fireman Face has saved 31 games in addition to his incredible winning streak since Memorial day, 1958. If his luck and fork ball hold up, the Pirates well might win their first pennant since 1927 and the little man just might break two remarkable major league records—the 19 straight won in a single season by Tim Keefe (1888) and Rube Marquard (1912) and Carl Hubbell's two-year 24 in a row in 1936-37.—B.B.

Bettor Collects $55,902 in Pool

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, July 13 (UPI)—An unidentified bettor picked six straight winners in the Caliente track 5-10 handicapping contest to win $55,902. The ticket also had seven shares of a $490 consolation award.

King of Basrah closed with a rush in the headliner to win and fill the lucky ticketholder's hand. King of Basrah was ahead of Bern't Fingers, the pace setter almost all the way; at the wire by a neck. Questful Abbey was third.

For the 1:42 4-5 clocking over the mile and a sixteenth, King of Basrah paid $8.20, $6.60 and $5.

Gilhooley, Ex-Cardinal Player, Dead

TOLEDO, O., July 13 (UPI)—Funeral services will be held Tuesday for Frank P. Gilhooley Sr., regarded as one of the fastest outfielders in baseball when he played for the New York Yankees, St. Louis Cardinals and Boston Red Sox in the first two decades of the century.

Gilhooley, 66, died Saturday in Toledo, where he had been a deputy county treasurer for 23 years following his retirement from baseball in 1933.

He joined the Cardinals in 1911, then was sold to Montreal of the International League the following year. He led the league in stolen bases with 68.

Gilhooley joined the Yankees in 1913, remaining as an outfielder until 1919, when he was traded to the Boston Red Sox, where he roomed with Babe Ruth, then a pitcher-outfielder.

Gilhooley spent nine more years in the International League.

In 1929, he managed the Jersey City Giants.

He was elected to the Toledo Baseball Hall of Fame in 1955.

Italy Is Favored In Davis Cup Play

SAN REMO, Italy, July 13 (UPI)—Italy's veteran Davis Cup team is expected to make short work of Spain in the European zone final.

Gerard Pillet saved France from a shutout when he turned back Giuseppe Merlo, 6-3, 4-6, 6-1, 6-4, in the final singles match. Italy's Nicola Pietrangeli rallied to defeat Pierre Darmon, 3-6, 6-4, 9-7, 6-1.

Spain swept its final two singles matches against Britain Saturday to reach the zone final.

The winner of the Italy-Spain series will face the American Zone champion (probably Australia) at Philadelphia, Aug. 7-9.

Thurmers Win, 14-2

The Thurmers downed Chesterfield, 14-2, yesterday in one of the opening games of the St. Louis metropolitan fast pitch softball tournament at Ellisville, Mo. The Barn beat Pacemakers, 8-1; Blase topped MoPac, 8-5, and the Wolverines won on a forfeit over St. John's.

No-Hitter for Simmons

Gene Simmons pitched a no-hit game against Stockham Post as Anheuser-Busch won, 4-0, in American Legion junior baseball Saturday night at Heine Meine Field. He walked two. St. Joseph beat Gardenville-Affton, 10-6.

Colavito Closes Gap In Homer Race With Senator's Killebrew

CLEVELAND, July 13 (AP)—Look out Harmon Killebrew. Forget about Babe Ruth's home run record for the time being. The guy to watch right now is Rocky Colavito.

The Bronx-born slugger of the Cleveland Indians closed within two of Killebrew's major league home run lead by banging his 27th and 28th of the year yesterday.

The pair of four-baggers, Colavito's fourth since the All-Star break, helped the Indians gain an uphill victory over Detroit and a split in their doubleheader. The Indians won the second game, 8-4, after losing the opener, 6-2.

The split left Cleveland with a one-game advantage over Chicago's White Sox, who swept a doubleheader from Kansas City, 5-2 and 9-7. Baltimore's third place Orioles defeated Washington, 5-1, and Boston made it four in a row over New York with a 7-3 triumph.

In the National League, Milwaukee whipped San Francisco, 4-2, and Cincinnati defeated Los Angeles, 4-3. Pittsburgh edged St. Louis, 6-5, in 10 innings of the first game of a doubleheader and led 5-4 in the ninth of the second game, halted by curfew. It will be completed Aug. 19. Philadelphia defeated Chicago, 4-1, after the Cubs had won the opener, 7-6.

54,727 Out at Cleveland.

A Cleveland crowd of 54,727 saw Colavito smash two home runs in the second game, his second coming with two on in the sixth inning to overcome a 4-2 Detroit lead. Killebrew, whose 30 home runs in Washington's 83 games match the pace of Ruth when he slammed his record 60 in 1927, went hitless.

Jackie Jensen drove in four runs with a home run and two doubles and relief pitcher Bill Monbouquette hurled five-hit ball through 6⅓ innings as the Red Sox won their sixth game in eight starts under their new manager, Billy Jurges. The defeat dropped the Yankees under the .500 mark again with a 41-42 record.

Hoyt Wilhelm finally won his tenth game. The knuckleball specialist, who lost four straight after winning his first nine games, hurled a four-hitter for the Orioles. Billy Gardner and Joe Taylor homered off loser Russ Kemmerer and Baltimore outfielders Gene Woodling and Willie Tosby collected three hits apiece.

Rookie Outfielder Jim McAnany hit bases-loaded triples in each game to lead the White Sox to their double victory over Kansas City. He capped a five-run first inning of the opener with a base-clearing wallop off Bud Daley and duplicated the feat in the fifth inning of the second game.

Mathews Bats in Four Runs.

Eddie Mathews batted in all Milwaukee's runs with a three-run homer, his twenty-sixth of the year, and a sacrifice fly. Mathews's slugging helped Lew Burdette gain his twenth triumph. The fidgety right-hander scattered seven hits, including a two-run homer by Jackie Brandt which ruined his shutout effort. Jack Sanford was the loser.

Gus Bell's ninth-inning single scored Johnny Temple with the run that gave the Reds their first victory under their new manager, Freddy Hutchinson. Cincinnati had lost six straight, three under Hutchinson. Bob Purkey hurled a five-hitter against the Dodgers for his eighth victory. Home runs by Vada Pinson, Ed Bailey and Frank Robinson accounted for the first three runs.

Earl Averill sparked a seven-run fourth inning for the Cubs with a three-run homer against Jack Meyer of the Phillies. Ray Semproch gave the Phils a split by hurling a four-hitter in the nightcap. Ed Bouchee's homer, his second of the day, was the decisive blow in a four-run first inning.

Tim Murphy Hurls 5-Inning No-Hitter

Tim Murphy pitched a five-inning no-hitter for Ceresia's Hawks in a 24-1 win over Royal A.C. in the Khoury senior baseball Sam Breadon Memorial League yesterday at Forest Park. In the same league Hampton Village, only undefeated Khoury senion team, stopped Nooter, 7-0.

The Times Beach Rams won their first place battle with the Ballwin Cards, 10-7, in the Travelers League.

The North Side Yanks took over first place in the Missouri League by whipping St. Liborius, 4-2, while the Second Ward Democrats were surprised by Universal Match, 5-3.

The Thomas Giants moved within a game of clinching the Charles Shaw League pennant by downing Twenty-seventh Ward Republicans, 7-3.

In Khoury all-star games at Busch Stadium, Optimist won over Kiwanis, 17-4, in the midget division, while Moose defeated Jaycees, 13-7, in the atom division.

Association Teams in Star Game Tonight

MINNEAPOLIS, July 13 (AP)—The Minneapolis Millers, season-long top guns in the American Assn., face the class of the league's nine other clubs tonight in the 16th annual Association All-Star game.

Miller Manager Gene Mauch said he probably would start Duane Wilson on the mound against a star lineup with .300 hitters holding down the first four slots in the batting order.

Bill Adair of Charleston, manager of the Stars, said he wouldn't announce his pitching selections until he had a chance to look at all of the box scores of Sunday Association games.

McKinney Betters Record

LOS ALTOS, Calif., July 13 (UPI)—Frank McKinney chopped a half second off the world record for the 200-meter backstroke last night to climax a blazing men's National A.A.U. swimming and diving meet which saw a total of two world marks and seven American records toppled.

McKinney negotiated the distance in 2:17.9, bettering the standard of 2:18.4 which Australia John Mockton set last year. It was the second world record set in as many nights by American swimmers who leave Tuesday for a crucial meet with Japan.

Mike Troy, McKinney's teammate with the powerful Indianapolis A.C. which easily kept the team title, cracked the recently established world mark for the 200-meter butterfly Saturday night in 2:16.4. The old mark was 2:19.

Coach Jim Counsilman's Indianapolis swimmers racked up seven first places in 16 events for a total of 102 points. The Los Angeles A.C. was second with 71 and Detroit A.C. third with 53. Counsilman is a St. Louisan.

Manuel Sanguilly, Cuba's defending champion in the 100-meter breaststroke, kept his crown and was clocked in 1:14.6 to lower his own meet record of 1:15.9. Frederick Munsch of New York, was second in 1:15.7 and Tom Peterson of Los Angeles, third.

Dreyfus, McGreevy Win Handball Title

Harry Dreyfus and Bill McGreevey won the doubles title in the Forest Park Handball Club's meet yesterday, defeating Stan Goldstein and Jerry Korn, 21-20, 16-21, 21-18. The Class B title went to Charlie and Fred Calcaterra, 21-12, 21-10 over Paul Mayorwitz and Max Goldberg.

Tom Cheney Hurls Shutout for Omaha

Tom Cheney, who was sent to Omaha by the Cardinals recently, allowed only three hits in a 4-0 victory over Minneapolis yesterday. Omaha also won the second game, 3-2, to increase its Western Division lead in the American Association to two and one-half games.

Swim Marks Fall

PARIS, July 13 (UPI)—Two European records were smashed in the Prix de Paris international swimming meet yesterday at the Tourelles pool. France's Robert Christophe set a new mark of 1:02.2 for the 100-meter backstroke and Italy's Federico Dennerlein broke the 100-meter butterfly record with a 1.01.8 clocking.

Souchak Closes With 65 to Win Western Open Title With 272

Harrison Ties for Seventh

The former Duke University football star won the crown yesterday at the Pittsburgh Field Club course by shooting a five-under-par 65 in the final round and then watching the pre-tourney favorite, Arnold Palmer, blow a three-foot putt on the final green that cost Palmer a playoff spot.

It was a surprised Souchak who exclaimed "I was just shooting for second or third place." He won with a 72-hole total of 272—eight under par. Palmer's 273 netted him $2500 as runner-up.

As it was, Big Mike erased a five-stroke lead held jointly by Palmer and young Joe Campbell of Knoxville, Tenn., going into yesterday's final 18 holes.

Campbell, making his first round on the pro tournament trail, shied to 76 and finished with a 278 and $725 in prize money.

E. J. (Dutch) Harrison of St. Louis, who shot a 63 Saturday, came back with 71 on the final 18 for a total of 277 to tie for seventh place. He collected $950 in prize money.

Palmer and Souchak, playing in the same threesome, were all even and leading the field after 17 holes. But on No. 18, the issue was decided when Palmer's iron approach went into a trap to the right and Mike landed his on the green, 35 feet from the pin.

Souchak two-putted for a par as Palmer blasted to within three feet of the cup. After eyeing his shot for a full five minutes, Palmer pushed his putt just to the right of the cup and took a bogey.

"I hit the ball too hard and too fast . . . I just wanted to get it over with," said Palmer.

After the one-two finishers came George Bayer of Lemont, Ill., with a final-round 66 and a 274 aggregate that paid him $2000. Ted Kroll of Sarasota, Fla., finished with a 67—275 and $1500. Tied for sixth with 276s were Fred Hawkins of El Paso, Tex., and Pete Cooper of Lakeland, Fla., Each pocketed $1200.

The victory in the Western Open was Souchak's second big tournament win this year and boosted his earnings to $38,130. He captured the Tournament of Champions at Las Vegas in April.

Muller scored three times from far out, once at a distance of 100 yards with a difficult angle forehand shot.

SOCCER SHOTS

Dent McSkimming

As the Kutis soccer players went about the pleasant business of defeating the Slovak team of Chicago Saturday night, it appeared that scoring goals and winning the game meant more to the St. Louisans than to the visitors.

Val Pelizzaro, Bill Looby, Tom Julius, Ruben Mendoza and Bob Rooney, playing with greater vigor than most of the others, seemed to place a higher value on success in this national amateur championship tournament. Some of the Chicagoans, too, went all out in efforts to win, but their efforts were neither as forceful nor as sustained.

The 6-1 difference in total goals certainly does not give a true picture of the competition. Seventy-five percent of the play was held between the two penalty lines. But Kutis forwards were more deadly when the scoring opportunity arose.

Kutis, carrying forward a soccer tradition that dates back to 1920, when the Ben Millers were the first first St. Louis team to win a national championship, now face the West Coast champion Nacional team of Los Angeles. Date and place of this western division final have not been fixed.

Condition Tells

Physical condition was an important factor in the outcome of the Saturday game at Public Schools Stadium. The well-trained St. Louis players maintained a fast pace to the very end whereas the Slovaks, schooled in a slower tempo, weakened in the final half hour. The visitors were trying hard at the finish—in fact their only goal was scored seven minutes before the end—but they were not moving so fast.

There were differences, too, in the team structure. Only Ed Murphy, Chicago center forward, and Stan Mihal, the outside left, were really dangerous on occasion; the other Slovak forwards gave no indication of scoring power. Nor was there much evidence of the understanding between players that one expects of a title challenger. Right Halback Steve Dolinsky often gave his forwards good leading passes, but they rarely kept possession.

Playing far better than they did in their last game at the Stadium, when they lost to the San Pedro (Calif.) Canvasbaks, May 3, in the United States Open tourney, Kutis players just wouldn't let the Slovaks get their game rolling.

The ability of Fullback Herman Wecke to take the ball off the foot of Chicago's Mihal was uncanny. Wecke seemed to be able to read Mihal's mind. Left Fullback Julius got equally good results but employed different methods, a bit more brusque. Harry Keough broke up Murphy's game in the center so completely that the Chicago star shifted to the inside position, helping his team's defense, but weakening its scoring potential.

Near Top of Game

Kutis's game was far from perfect but it was very close to being of the same high caliber that won both national titles two seasons ago. Now, Tom Julius is an improved left fullback; Bill Eppy and John Traina are better wing halfbacks; Goalie Leroy Franks has learned a lot in the past year; Freddie Vasquez is finding himself as a right winger, with Pete Traina on hand as a very capable replacement. The squad is so sound that an excellent player, Bob Whitehead, sat it out on the bench, Saturday. Bob's not a specialist at any one position but he has too much talent to remain long as an unused reserve.

Yet, playing really attractive and winning soccer, the Kutis team has been showing to smaller and smaller galleries. Unless the club can find some source of revenue other than gate receipts it may find the national tournaments too costly a venture. Fewer than 600 paid to see the game with the Slovaks.

Kutis North Beats C.A.C.; Kimacks Win

By Bob Posen

If Caito's long blast to right field had happened at any other time in the game he almost certainly would have had a homer, giving him two for Kutis North against Carondelet Sunday Morning Athletic Club. He circled the bases on the hit and crossed home plate ahead of a throw from the outfield.

But because his wallop came with the score tied, 2-2, with a runner on first base and one out in the last half of the ninth inning, and because the ball didn't leave the playing field at Fairground Park, Caito received credit for only a triple. A three-base hit was all that was required to push in pinch-runner Don Mumm with the winning run.

Mumm was the only substitute in the Muny Senior traveling league pitchers duel between Kutis's Dick Loeser and Carondelet's Wally Holder. When old-timer Virg Siemer singled with one out in the last of the ninth, Manager Al Mick called on Mumm to run for Siemer, and Don had no trouble making the score 3-2 on the sock by Caito.

Caito had a lot more trouble scoring himself with the run that tied the score 2-all in the fifth inning. That time he slammed a drive that bounced against a tree on the left field limits. As he headed for home the throw passed him but was wide to the foul side of the base line. Jack made a dive for home plate like a safety man getting the last shot at a breakaway runner. Catcher Larry Smith stretched for the ball, it glanced off his glove and he went down hard, just as Caito did on top of the plate. Both players lay stunned in a rising cloud of dust, but both continued in the game.

McBride Also Homers.

That was the second time Kutis came from behind on a homer. Hal McBride, formerly with C.S.M.A.C., homered to left in the second inning against his old teammates.

Second Baseman Al Hedrick's error on the pivot of a possible double play ball set the scene for Chuck Vogt's handle-hit single that gave Carondelet a 1-0 lead in the second. The next inning C.S.M.A.C. took a 2-1 lead on Rick Lessman's hard single, Don Kettlekamp's perfectly-executed hit-and-run single as Lessman broke for second pulling Hedrick out of position, Marv Stendel's walk and a wild pitch.

Loeser pitched out of that spot and was tough in the clutch the rest of the game. He allowed six hits, struck out two and walked two. Holder gave up eight hits, struck out two and walked one.

Kimacks Beat Printers.

The defeat was doubly valuable to Kutis North and doubly costly to C.S.M.A.C. because at the same time in Carondelet Park the Kimacks beat the Union Printers, 8-7, with the help of homers by Bob Ladd and Ed Schall. The results left Carondelet and Kimacks tied for the South Side League lead and put Kutis three games ahead of the Printers in the North side League. Next week C.S.M.A.C. and Kimacks will meet while Kutis plays the Printers. Yesterday Stan Mann had five hits including a double and triple and Mike Scaglione had four hits for the Printers who scored twice in the ninth to fall one run short.

Ken Sanders, just out of high school, gave up just one hit and one walk in pitching the Hoffmeisters to a 5-0 win over the Slays in the Heine Meine League. It was 2-0 until the seventh when Wally De Baets hit a two-run double and scored on Ed Barry's double. Jim O'Reilly, who pitched Class AA minor league ball for Birmingham and New Orleans, stopped the league-leaders after that.

Rolling Hits Long Homer.

The Villas stayed close behind the Hoffmeisters by thumping the Fendlers, 15-11. Ron Rolling of the Villas hit a home run that traveled 380 feet and struck the light pole about 10 feet above the center field fence.

The sluggers also were active in the Metropolitan League. Wilson McCaskill hit a grand slam homer and Sherman Walker had four hits including a two-run homer for the Robins who pounded the Blackhawks, 16-9, in a game matching the league's top record teams. The Brentwood Cubs downed the St. Louis Cubs, 10-2, in a makeup game from the first half schedule, but St. Louis won their regular second half game, 9-8.

JOSEPH BECKER, one of five St. Louis cyclists who were members of the 1956 U.S. Olympic team, won three straight races for a total of 21 points to retain the senior men's championship in the Missouri State bike meet yesterday at Tower Grove Park.

Becker and Chappuis Retain Bicycle Titles

Twenty-seven year-old Joe Becker, member of the 1956 United States cycle team, won three straight races for a total of 21 points to retain the senior men's title in the Missouri State cycling meet yesterday at Tower Grove Park.

Becker, who led the American riders in the Melbourne Olympics, has been riding in competition for 11 years. He is a graduate of St. Louis U. High and St. Louis University and played on the Billikens' tennis team in 1953 and 1954. He won the Florida state bike title in 1955 while serving as an Air Force pilot.

Other point scorers in the senior division: Erhard Neumann 17, William Lange Jr. 16, James McConnell 10, Chester Nelsen Jr. 6, and Marvin Sunkel 2. Neumann, Lange and Nelsen were other members of the 1956 U.S. Olympic bike team. All of the senior finishers are from St. Louis.

Practically all of the point scorers in the state meet will strive for a place on the U.S. team competing in the Pan-American games starting Aug. 27 at Chicago. The Pan-Am trials are scheduled at Chicago from July 29 to Aug. 2. George Van Meter, another St. Louis Olympic rider, passed up the state meet for a 50-mile race at Minneapolis.

Three riders, David Sanchez, Fred Haefner and Becker were involved in a spill near the end of the first lap of the six-lap last race. Sanchez received a shoulder injury and was unable to continue. Haefner and Becker were bruised on the legs. Both continued in the race for a lap or two before quitting the nine-mile grind won by Neumann.

Gene Chappuis, 15-year-old DuBourg High student, won the Missouri junior division title for his second straight year. Chappuis, who plays soccer in a C.Y.C. league, won all four of the junior races for a total of 28 points. Others: Don Nelsen, son of Chester Nelsen Jr., 18 points; Dennis Stanford 13, Scott Peterson of Kansas City 9, and Dennis Evans 4.

Barbara Cheney of Kansas City retained the women's title by default. Chester Nelsen Sr., the meet's starter, said he found that few St. Louis girls will compete in bike races nowadays.

A 125-mile race takes place Sunday with the start and finish at Riverview and Jennings roads. Starting time will be 6 a.m.

St. Gabriel Gains 8th Straight

St. Gabriel remained unbeaten with its eighth straight baseball victory in Catholic Youth Council senior competition yesterday, and St. Augustine won to tie Holy Rosary for the lead in the Bishop Helmsing League.

St. Gabriel, the only undefeated C.Y.C. senior team, won its Bishop Winkelmann League contest from St. Pius V, 9-8, at Cherokee Park. St. Augustine beat St. Philip Neri, 5-1, at Fairground Park.

Charley Bockskopf hit two home runs, each with a man on base, Don Klein homered and Joe Gaterman had three hits for St. Anthony in a 16-6 win over Resurrection in the Cardinal Glennon League at Cherokee.

In the second game betwen them, won by St. Anthony, 11-6, Phil Rhode had three hits including a homer and Charley Stiebel had three hits.

St. Cronan faced the prospect of being the first team to lose to St. Michael this season, trailing 5-3 going into the ninth, but ended by tying the score, 5-5. Ken Hanneken's triple, Joe Plattner's single and Leo Cliedt's third hit of the game produced the rally.

Stengel Tees Off On Umpires

BOSTON, July 13 (UPI) — Casey Stengel teed off on American league umpires today and said they "should sharpen up and follow the ball."

The New York Yankees manager was still fuming over Saturday's game here with Boston. The Red Sox won it, 8-4, on Don Buddin's tenth inning grand slam homer after the Yankee battery of Yogi Berra and Ryne Duren was tossed out of the game for protesting a call.

Principal target of Casey's wrath was Bill Summers, who ejected Berra and Duren.

"He had a bad day," rasped Stengel, sitting characteristically in the New York dugout, one hand holding a foot on the bench, tugging his Yankee cap off and on, off and on, as he talked.

"Both sides were complaining throughout the game," he said.

"And, brother, when both sides protest you're in trouble."

"Now, if I'd been the umpire, I woulda told Duren: 'Look here, you're gonna stay in this game and pitch. But I'm writing down everything you say and sending it to the president of the league. If you want to take a possible six-day suspension, or a month, or maybe be thrown out of baseball, just keep on talking.'"

Duren, the Yanks' 30-year-old ace reliever, took a brilliant record into the game, having blanked the opposition over the past 28 innings while fanning 37 batters.

Until Summers ruled a borderline pitch ball three to leadoff batter Gene Stephens in the tenth, Duren had been just as impressive over one and a third frames. But Duren exploded as Summers announced the count as 3-1 and threw Berra out for profane language. Duren followed just as quickly.

"The American League is fortunate to have Duren in it," said Stengel in staunch support of the bespectacled 200-pounder. "If the umpiring in this league is up to Duren's ability, then I'll back down, but I don't think it is."

Stengel also took umpires Bill McKinley and Nesto Chylak to task. He said McKinley should have called Boston's Pete Daley out for running "inside of the base line, on the grass" in the eighth inning when the Red Sox scored three runs. Chylak missed a "phony" shoestring catch by Stephens in the ninth, Stengel said, making it clear that he considered the catch actually was a one-hop "trap."

"The league is stronger this year," said Stengel. "It must be. Young pitchers are making records and hitters like that feller in Washington (Harmon Killebrew) are putting balls over buildings. But how about the umpiring? Is that any stronger?"

Cahokia Wagering On Rise

By Herman Wecke

"We always knew he had plenty of speed and now we know he can carry on for a distance," said Edward (Ted) Wortman, trainer of Silver Creek Farm of Caseyville, Ill., as he accepted the winner's trophy following Roman Colonel's victory in the $15,000 added St. Louis Derby at Cahokia last Saturday night.

The Illinois-foaled colt by Ky. Colonel-Roman Grace made a show of his field in the East St. Louis Jockey Club's classic to earn $11,275.

"And don't forget," Wortman told Cahokia officials, "we have a two-year-old, Our Colonel, now running at Chicago, that is even faster than Roman Colonel. If everything goes right we'll probably be back next year to seek a second Derby victory. Our Colonel is a full brother to Roman Colonel."

In the one mile and one sixteenth race over a fast track Saturday night, Roman Colonel, handled by Lois Cook and high weighted at 121 pounds, broke on top and was two lengths in front the first time the field of nine passed the stand. At the three-quarter mark, the son of Ky. Colonel had increased his lead to four lengths; was five ahead entering the stretch and then beat Redbird Wish by six, according to official photos of the race. The Silver Creek Farm entry, favorite in the betting, paid $4.80 for $2, and negotiated the distance in 1:42 3-5, just two-fifths of a second off the track record.

Big Patton Weakened.

Marion Van Berg's Redbird Wish was fourth entering the stretch and then came on to beat Sir Hawley for the place by a head. A. L. Oxford's Big Patton was closest to Roman Colonel for three quarters, then faded and finished fifth.

Roman Colonel, in his brief racing career, has earned $66,006. He has been in the money in 15 of his 20 starts. He won five times as a two-year-old and his Derby triumph was the fifth of his three-year-old career. He'll be shipped back to Chicago for future engagements.

A record $72,661 was wagered on the Derby, bettering the previous high of $71,584 bet on the first renewal of the race in 1954.

Record for One Day.

The handle of $474,472 for the night also was a record for the track. The best previous handle was $470,655, wagered on Derby Night of 1955, when Prince Eric beat Styrunner. The total beat last year's Derby Night handle by $35,569. The 11,117 attendance was the best of the meeting.

A total of $13,471,204, a daily average of $244,931, has been wagered during the 55 days and nights of the meeting. Last year, the total bet was $13,669,517.

The final week of Cahokia's 60-day-and-night meeting opens with a nine race program tomorrow night. . . . The last two events will be over the one mile and three-eighths route.

Homer Beats Mallory

A two-run homer in the top of the tenth by Del Rutz gave the Ironworkers a 7-6 baseball win over Mallory in the Missouri-Illinois Ban Johnson League yesterday. Dan Riley and Mike Hunter also homered for the winners.

In other second half openers, Kutis beat Weber, 11-8, and the Eagles downed Twin Cities, 10-6.

4000 JOBLESS AT CHRYSLER ARE URGED TO MOVE

DETROIT, July 13 (AP)— A United Auto Workers union local president advised 4000 unemployed Chrysler Corp. workers yesterday to seek jobs in other cities rather than rely on the company's forthcoming small car production for jobs.

Pat Quinn, president of Dodge local 3, told a rally of unemployed Chrysler workers that the big Dodge main plant in suburban Hamtramck may end up like the Packard Motor Car Co. or Hudson Motors plants in Detroit. Both were abandoned when Packard and Hudson ceased operations as independents.

Quinn said the Dodge main plant operation will close down in six weeks for model changeover. He said Dodge cars will no longer be built at the main plant when it reopens. Dodge production will be shifted to the East Jefferson Chrysler plant in Detroit or to a new plant in St. Louis, he said.

Chrysler's new small car, the Valiant, and Dodge's small economy car, the Dart, will be produced at Dodge Main, after the first of the year, he said.

A Chrysler spokesman later denied that the company was planning to halt Dodge production in the Hamtramck plant. He said the Dart and Valiant would be produced along with normal Dodge division production schedules.

"If I had seniority less than of 1949, I would go to St. Louis," Quinn said. "That is a new plant designed for today's production."

Chrysler, however, is offering to transfer only 390 workers to the St. Louis plant, but Quinn said he hoped to raise the number to 1000.

"But these new cars are like an 'if come' bet with the bookie," Quinn said, "look at all the hopes Ford had for its Edsel—and look what a flop it was."

Plant Here to Produce Dodges As Well as Plymouths.

Chrysler Corp.'s new assembly plant near Valley Park will produce Dodge automobiles as well as Plymouths, Nelson E. McYeod, manager, said today. He said the bulk of the plant's output would be Plymouths.

McLeod said he was unaware of any definite plans for absorbing part of the main Dodge plant's workers in St. Louis. However, he added that the company's policy was to give such workers priority over new applicants.

The Chrysler assembly plant in the St. Louis area is expected to get into production about Sept. 1. Pilot assembly operations are already going on, McLeod said. The plant will employ about 4000 persons.

SYMINGTON SAYS EISENHOWER AND RADFORD GOSSIP

WASHINGTON, July 13 (UPI) — Senator Stuart Symington (Dem.), Missouri, chided President Eisenhower and Adm. Arthur W. Radford yesterday for spreading "gossip" about alleged improper activities of the "munitions lobby."

Symington, who was Secretary of the Air Force in the Truman administration, said if officials had any proof of improper pressures in the defense procurement field they should "bring them out on the table."

"I don't think the top people in our government should gossip about such things," he said on the CBS television program "Face the Nation."

"They seem willing to talk about them informally," he said. He added that those asked by congressional committees to explain their insinuations declined to give details.

Mr. Eisenhower told a recent press conference that it was obvious some defense purchases were not essential to military security. He indicated they might have been prompted by what has been called the "munitions lobby."

Tells of Encouragement.

Radford, now retired but acting as adviser to Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy, said on television recently he thought some arms manufacturers were encouraging interservice rivalries.

When brought before a House investigating subcommittee last Friday, Radford said no one had ever tried to influence him. He also said that retired officers working for industry had little weight in determining defense purchasing policies.

Symington said in his own experience "I never knew of any case when anybody was successful" in obtaining a defense contract except when he offered "the best goods for the best price."

By the Associated Press.

The Senator said the United States is falling still farther behind in the missile race with Russia and that the American Army is falling to pieces.

Symington said that while earlier this year military planners figured Russia would have a 3-to-1 lead in the missile field, the ratio now planned is an "absolute minimum of 6-to-1."

New Plea for Unity.

"It is wrong to say we don't have to worry because the Russians are falling down too," he said referring to a remark made last week by McElroy.

Symington renewed his plea for unification for the armed forces to eliminate waste. He said this country is not getting what it should have for deterrent capacity. He said thousands of American troops in Europe have equipment dating back to World War I.

During the interview he also:

Said he was not a candidate for the presidency, did not plan at this time to enter any presidential primary but would run for President if asked to be the nominee.

Declined to enter the controversy between Democratic party chairman Paul Butler and party leaders over the party's present policies. He added, however, that at this time he would not suggest, as some Democrats have, that Butler resign.

Said of racial segregation: "It is morally wrong to deny any citizen rights given to any other citizen."

FIRST DIRECT U.S.-EUROPE TELEPHONE CABLE IS LAID

PARIS, July 13 (AP)—A trans-Atlantic cable for the first direct telephone link between the United States and the European continent has been laid on the ocean floor.

The French Communications Ministry announced yesterday the English cable ship Monarch arrived off Penmarch, Frence, with the Newfoundland-France section of the cable. The first of the twin cables was laid from France to Newfoundland last spring.

Still to be laid is the final cable link between Newfoundland and the United States. The new cables are expected to go into operation this fall and will be able to handle 36 simultaneous conversations between the United States and Europe. Up to now telephone communications between the Continent and America have had to be routed through Britain.

HOTEL CLERK IS INJURED IN ELEVATOR SHAFT FALL

Merle Rohloff, a clerk at the Shelby Hotel, 508 Pine street, suffered fractures of the hip and wrist when he fell down an elevator shaft at the hotel yesterday. He is 47 years old and lives at the hotel.

Rohloff told police he opened the door to the service elevator, then went to his desk. When he returned to the open door he failed to observe that the elevator had ascended. He stepped in and fell 15 feet to the basement. The fire department rescue squad was summoned to remove him.

AWARD FOR M.A.T.S. LEADER

Maj. Vere Short, aircraft commander of staff aircraft of the Military Air Transport Service, has become the first flyer of about 50 MATS airmen to receive the 10,000 hour Accident Free Flying pin, it was announced today.

The award was made by Lt. Gen. William H. Tunner, MATS commander. The diamond centered, white gold pin will be presented to all air crew members who have had 10,000 accident free flying hours and have served in MATS or its predecessors for five years.

GIRL ADMITS SETTING FIRE THAT KILLED 7

ELMIRA, N.Y., July 13 (AP) — Fifteen-year-old Jane Shusko admits setting the fire that killed seven members of her family, police say, but she does not know why.

"From her statement, the girl didn't appear to have been mad at anyone of the family, nor was she holding a grudge of any kind, police Capt. J. William Maloney said.

"There is no definite motive. It's a very vague thing."

Her brother and six of her eight sisters died of asphyxiation in their second-floor bedrooms Saturday night.

Jane escaped with her mother, Lillian. The two other daughters were rescued by a neighbor. Michael Shusko, the father, was at work in a milk-processing plant.

The victims were Michalena, 12; Delores, 11; Laura, 9; Donald, 8; Patricia, 6; Sarah, 4; and Christina, 2. Catherine, 13, and Annette, 11 months, were rescued.

Police Chief Eugene Golden said Jane had signed a statement that she had thrown a lighted match onto a pile of papers in a first-floor clothes closet. They said she also admitted having lit two fires the previous day. Both were put out before they spread.

The girl was calm at her arraignment yesterday on a charge of juvenile delinquency but later broke into tears as she was met by her parents.

Malony said she would be held jail to await court-ordered psychiatric tests.

STABBED IN ABDOMEN TRYING TO STOP FIGHT

Louis K. Barton, 133 West Arlee avenue, Lemay, was stabbed in the abdomen Saturday night, he told police, when he attempted to halt a fight in a Jefferson county tavern.

Barton, a tuckpointer, was taken to Alexian Brothers Hospital by a friend with whom he had gone to a tavern on Hollywood Beach road, near U.S. 61. He was wounded, he said, when he stepped between men who started a fight.

'Red Dean' to Geneva.

LONDON, July 13 (AP)—Dr. Hewlett Johnson, "the Red Dean" of Canterbury, flew to Geneva yesterday. He said he was going to try to see the Big Four foreign ministers to present a petition bearing 30,000 names and demanding a summit meeting and an end to nuclear tests.

son's attempts to give him what he wants, why not pass the Democratic program in the first place?" Nothing could have strengthened their hand more against Lyndon Johnson than this latest veto.

Development No. 3 — It occurred in the privacy of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, when Deputy Premier Kozlov was lunching with its members. He was talking about housing, admitted that the United States was ahead.

Then he proudly unfolded a program for Soviet housing considerably more ambitious than the one Mr. Eisenhower has just vetoed. "We have just launched a seven-year program to build 25,000,000 apartment units," Kozlov said. "In addition we are starting for the first time a program for loans to build rural homes, which will permit Soviet citizens to own their own homes, after they have repaid the loans."

Democratic Senators point out that if the Soviet puts this program across, Nikita Khrushchev will be justified in boasting as he did to Averell Harriman, that the U.S.S.R. in a few years will surpass the U.S.A.

Development No. 4 — Rebellious Democrats point out that they have Mr. Eisenhower over the housing barrel. All they have to do is repass the bill he just vetoed and keep on repassing it. Eventually he will have to sign it—if they are tough enough.

The reason he will have to sign it is because the housing bill contains mortgage money authority for FHA upon which the entire construction industry depends.

The FHA has already exhausted its mortgage money and is writing IOUs to keep the building boom going.

So if Congress doesn't choose to pass a housing bill, Mr. Eisenhower's own friends will suffer most. This is the argument being made by tougher leaders of the Democratic liberal bloc. Whether they can get their leader from Texas to be that tough remains to be seen. So far he has believed in compromise.

Scramble for Safety

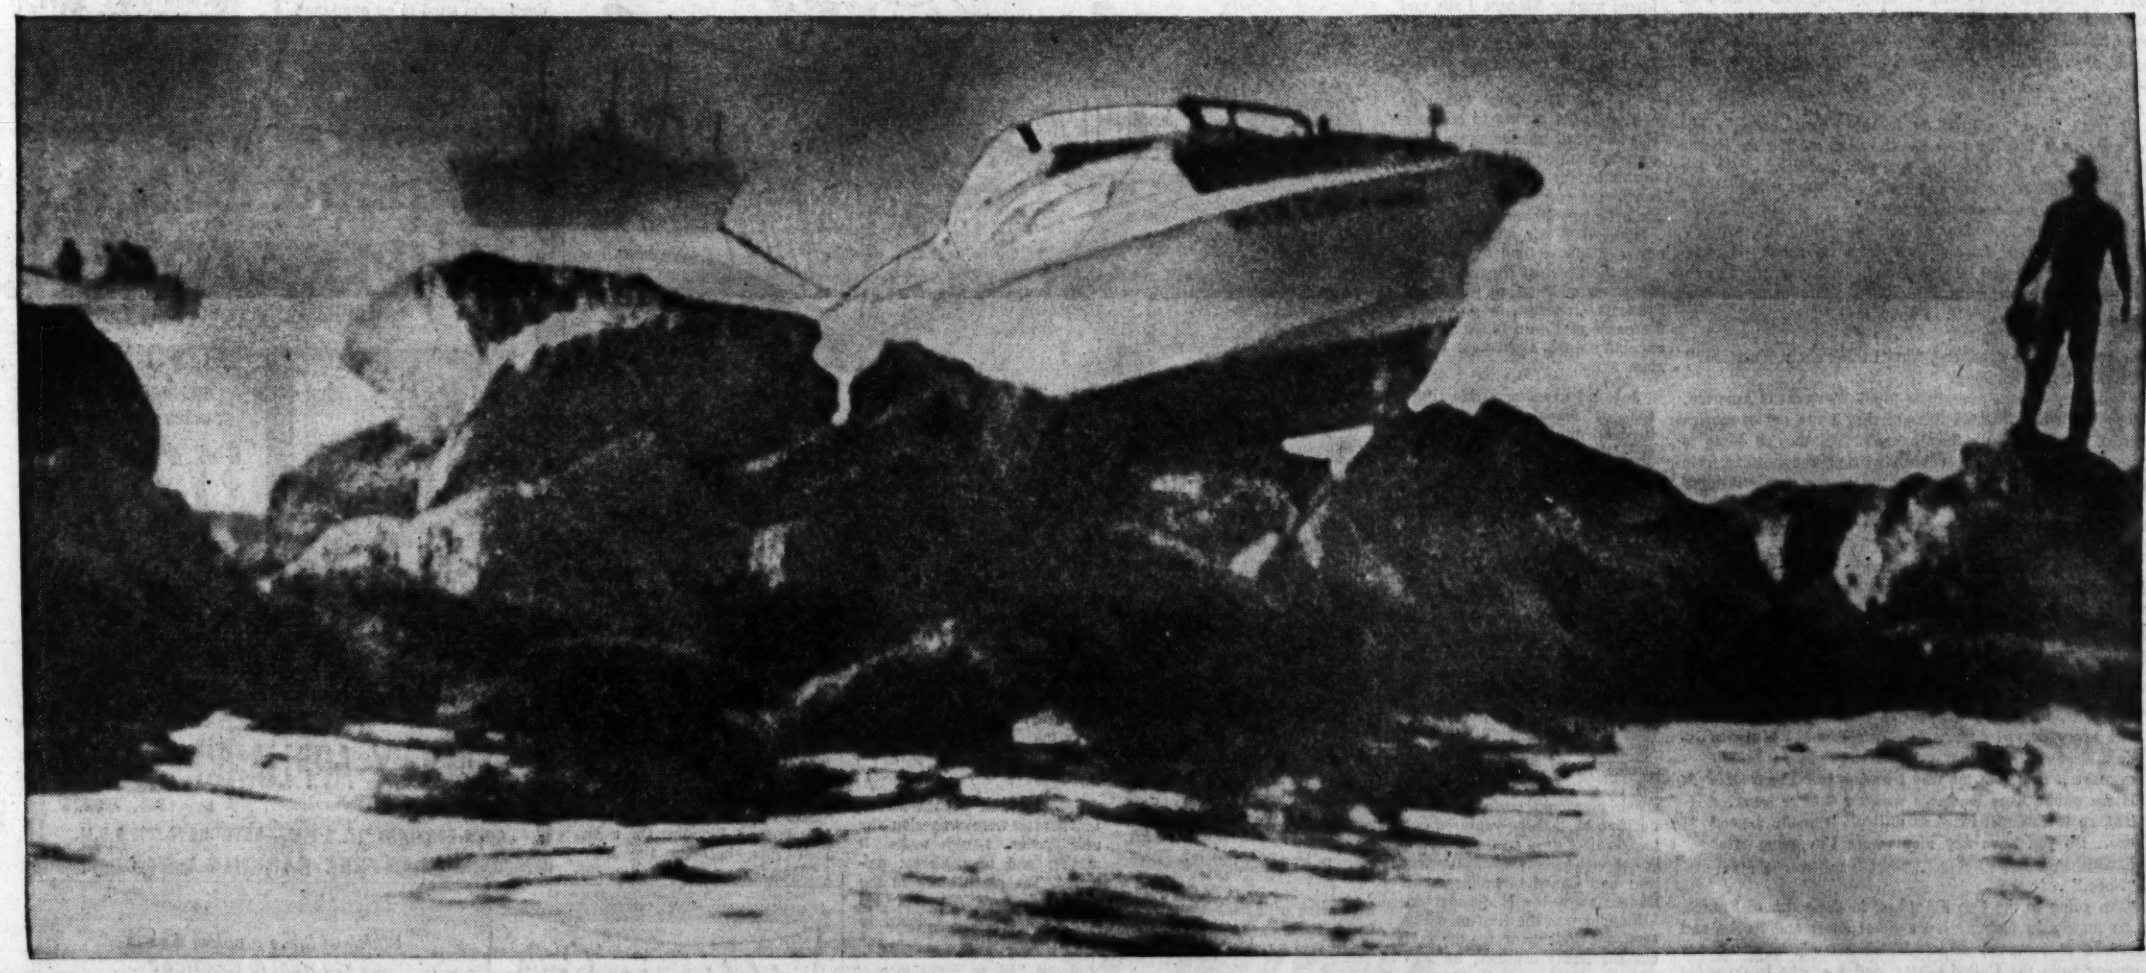

Sailors and spectators join forces to help rescue some of the 50 persons who were plunged into Lake Michigan when a yacht club dock collapsed at Milwaukee yesterday. Those tossed into the water were waiting to go aboard the launch at right which was to have taken them to the cruiser Macon for an inspection tour. There were no casualties.

Sharing Troubles

Overburdened with troubles, 6-year-old Jane Kurzawa finds a sympathetic listener in Mary Pickford, star of silent movies. They were fellow passengers on the liner Constitution which docked at New York Saturday, with the girl's parents getting "lost" in the confusion of landing. Miss Pickford stood by until the parents, Comdr. and Mrs. C. J. Kurzawa, appeared on the scene to carry off the child to the family home at Troy, N.Y.

'Yup' 'Nope' Talk With Gary Cooper

WE SAW GARY COOPER in Paris recently.

"Hi," we said.

"Hello, Art. I just came in town with my wife, Rocky, and my daughter, Maria. I just finished a picture in London called 'The Wreck of the Mary Deare.' Would you like to hear about it?"

GARY COOPER

"Yup," we said.

"It's an advanture picture about the sea. We had to shoot several scenes in London. They have an important naval hearing in the film in which the facts and responsibilities for the wreck are determined. It was cheaper for Charlton Heston and myself to be brought to London than for the English cast to be flown to Hollywood. Would you like to know who else is in the picture?"

We thought about this for a moment and then said: "Nope."

"Well, would you like to hear about the big water scene?" he said.

"Maybe."

Charlton Heston and I have an underwater scene in which we fight the villain and his crew. They have underwater spears and we have nothing except our skin-diving suits. It sounds pretty good, doesn't it?"

"Yup," we agreed.

"I suppose you're wondering what I'm doing in Paris?"

"Nope."

"Well, let me tell you anyway. I'm just vacationing with my wife. I've been working pretty hard lately. Before this picture I made 'They Came to Condura' with Rita Hayworth. It's about an American detachment under Pershing, who is out to find Pancho Villa. I play a major—a coward who is taking back a group of men who have been awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor. I think it's going to be a picture."

"Could be," we said.

"Would you like to hear my opinions about playing against young actresses?"

"Yup."

"Well, I think a man of my age has to be very careful about female casting. There were some people who were resentful over the fact that I played opposite Audrey Hepburn in 'Love in the Afternoon.' Now that admittedly may have been a mistake, but people forget she played opposite Humphrey Bogart in 'Sabrina' and there were no complaints about that. The trouble was Audrey looked too young in my picture. She looked about 17 years old. Maybe it was her hairdo. I think playing against someone who looks 17 is pretty tough, don't you?"

"Sure."

"I don't have the problem in the 'Mary Deare.' The love story isn't that important. It could have been if this was less of a story about the sea and the wreck. On the other hand, Rita Hayworth and I hit it off just fine in 'Condura.' She does a bang-up job in the picture. I think if I play opposite girls that look over 25 I'm all right. It's a funny thing, though. When you play in a Western, nobody is bothered by how old the girl is. Of course, when you hit my age you have to have an adult love story. You can't do the standard boy-meets-girl stuff. I know that."

"Uh, huh," we replied.

I suppose you're wondering what I think about Westerns?"

We didn't say anything.

"Well, they've done everything to kill Westerns in America, but they won't be killed. I thought they'd run out of stories long ago, but apparently they haven't. All they're doing is taking any story that's ever been written and putting it in cowboy dress. It doesn't make any difference if it's 'Hamlet' or Pushkin; it eventually winds up as taking place at Bar Z Corral."

"Yup," we said.

"I've been offered many deals to do a series for TV, but I don't want to do them. I think Westerns should be shot outdoors and look like they take place outdoors. When you reduce them to the size of a television screen, they don't look like much. Do you agree with me?

"Yup and nope," we said honestly.

"Let me finish," he said. "I'm not against movie Westerns, but every script I've been offered sounds like every previous story I've ever done. I'd like to do a Western, but I think I'd have to produce it myself to make it come out the way I want it to. The trouble is the public likes Westerns whether they're good or bad, so it makes it twice as difficult to make a good one. Do you have any idea where I'm going after Paris?"

"Nope."

"I'm going to the Cap d'Antibes, in the south of France, and do some skin diving. It's a great sport and Rocky and Maria are pretty good at it. We've brought over all our equipment from the United States, and we hope to do some underwater photography. Do you like skin diving?"

"Nope."

"Bird shooting?"

"Nope."

"Are you busy now?"

"Yup."

"That's too bad," Mr. Cooper said sadly. "I rarely get a chance to talk to anybody any more."

Youth Parade--Skin Care in the Sun

By Reba and Bonnie Churchill

1. DO YOU FRY, freckle, or flake? The summer sun see-saws skin from golden and silky to parched and leathery. So be extra complexion-cautious, especially when boating or swimming. The reflection of the sun on the water makes the glare a minimum of 35 per cent more penetrating. To look more beautiful than best shaded, screen those ultra-violet rays, as MARY MURPHY illustrates, by smoothing on a block-out cream.

2. A GOAL for the outdoor girl is to be attractive and athletic. Maybe hats and sun glasses interfere with your tennis or sports fun, but don't let skin soak up too much sun. Mary, seen in the Allied Artists release, "Crime and Punishment, U.S.A.," applies a glossy coat of cocoa butter to exposed areas. Now, she can enjoy the game and guard against a leather look.

3. THE MOUTH is the forgotten facial feature during the summer. Many girls dutifully apply cream to face, don sun glasses, but leave lips exposed to sun and wind chapping. Keep them satin soft by applying pomade. It's difficult to pull out a mirror and repair lipstick on the golf greens, etc., but a pat of color pomade can be smoothed on jiffy quick without bother of looking glass or losing score.

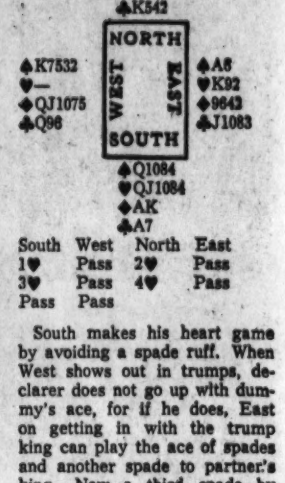

P.S. If you'd like a free summer diet to streamline figure plus a Hollywood sun tan recipe, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to "Youth Parade," in care of the Post-Dispatch. Only those sending stamped envelopes can be answered.

YOU ARE DECLARER of today's four-heart hand, and West opens the queen of diamonds. You win with the ace and lead the queen of hearts, West showing out. Study only the North-South cards, then plan your play.

East-West vulnerable.

South	West	North	East
1♥	Pass	2♥	Pass
3♥	Pass	4♥	Pass
Pass	Pass

South makes his heart game by avoiding a spade ruff. When West shows out in trumps, declarer does not go up with dummy's ace, for if he does, East on getting in with the trump king can play the ace of spades and another spade to partner's king. Now a third spade by West permits East to overruff dummy with the heart nine for down one.

The winning play is to play a low trump from dummy at trick two, letting East take his king. Now if three rounds of spades are led, declarer can ruff in with dummy's heart ace, stopping the overruff and making game.

Seeing Niagara Falls by Tightrope

By Ed Feinen

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (UPI). THE DEEP CHASM that forms mighty Niagara Falls and the Whirlpool Rapids has been a challenge to man since the Indians first laid eyes on its majestic beauty.

Through the years' hundreds of daredevils hoping to conquer this natural phenonmenon one way or another have been lured to this border city nestled in the Northwest corner of New York State facing Canada.

Some died for their efforts; others achieved undying fame.

But the greatest Niagara Falls performer of them all was Jean Francois Gravelet, who, under the name of Emile Blondin, was once the world's greatest tightrope artist.

Just 100 years ago, this slim son of Napoleon's military heroes defied death many times high above the turbulent Niagara and lived to tell every thrilling moment of it. In fact, when he did die, it was quietly, in bed.

Even before coming to Niagara Falls in the spring of 1859, Blondin had long thrilled European crowds with his tricks on the ropes. Feeling keenly Niagara's challenge, he brought along his family and his able manager, Harry Colcord of Chicago, and settled down as a resident of what was then a mere village.

Blondin made his preparations carefully. He even purchased and helped put up the tightrope on which he would perform. Then, on June 30, 1859, he ventured out for the first time on the swaying line stretched between the American and Canadian banks some 180 feet above the Niagara river.

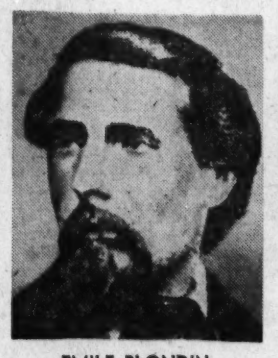

Blondin was the first of many tightrope walkers to try the feat but for sheer courage, he was never duplicated. Performing twice a week before crowds of 25,000 and 30,000 — extremely large for those days—he left his audiences limp with the audacity of his tricks.

The rope, with many guys and a special winch to keep it taut, was installed almost midway between the present Rainbow Bridge and the lower bridges, perhaps a mile below the cataract itself.

Blondin walked, pranced, ran, turned somersaults, walked backwards, sat down, lay down and negotiated the high wire with baskets on his feet. He even walked across the chasm on stilts.

Blondin was the first—and greatest—of the tightrope walkers over Niagara Falls.

EMILE BLONDIN

Blondin, well liked by his neighbors, spent the winter in Niagara Falls and was back at his old tricks the next summer. The Prince of Wales (later Edward VII) and former president Millard Fillmore were among those who lined the banks of either side of the river to watch him.

His tricks included holding a hat out at arm's length while John Travis, a local sharpshooter on the "Maid of the Mist' boat below, put a bullet through it. Another feat was to lower a mug on a string to the boat and then, after pulling the mug back up, drink the water out of it.

He also walked across with a wheelbarrow and ate his lunch at midstream, cooking himself an omelet on a small griddle he carried.

Only once did death come close. Blondin offered to carry someone across the chasm on his back. Nobody volunteered and finally his manager, Colcord, agreed.

Gamblers on both sides of the border were wagering the pair never would make it across, and they almost collected. Too much slack in the rope exhausted Blondin. He stopped and asked Colcord to get down.

Colcord had no experience on the high-wire but he obeyed. Slipping down Blondin's back, he grasped the latter's hips and waited. Once Blondin's strength returned, the little manager scrambled back up to his perch on his shoulders and the pair made it to safety.

Colcord often said later that he trembled and broke out in a cold sweat whenever he thought of that harrowing experience.

Many wire-walkers followed Blondin but they were rank amateurs by comparison. Harry Leslie was the first in 1865. Then Signor Ballini arrived, adding zest to his act by jumping into the water from the cable, using a rubber gadget to make sure he landed feet first and remained upright. On the third jump Ballini took a little too long to bob up to the surface again. That was that.

A woman, Maria Spelterini performed on the high rope in 1876 but hers was a very proper and ladylike act. She made one of her trips with baskets on her feet, one of Blondin's old tricks.

Steve Peere was pretty good too, but no Blondin. On a six-inch rope between the lower bridges, Peere performed creditably for several weeks. Then, one morning, searchers found his crushed body on the rocks at the base of the Canadian precipice. The general theory was that Peere, spurred on by several beverages too many, had attempted a crossing in the dead of night and had lost his footing.

Then, there were the daredevils who tried to go over the Canadian, or Horseshoe, cataract in a barrel. Six persons, including one woman, attempted the death-defying plunge and three lived to tell about it.

Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

A Place for Penicillin

Dear Dr. Molner:

"DO YOU THINK it is definitely a must to continue monthly shots of penicillin to prevent rheumatic fever? My child had three attacks and the doctor never prescribed penicillin. He said there was no history of heart damage so it wasn't necessary.

"But the third attack caused a murmur and I changed doctors. Now I take him to the doctor for a penicillin shot every 30 days, and for a year he has been fine. Why do some doctors say it isn't necessary and others say it is a positive must? MRS. B."

I can't answer your question as to why people do what they do. Who knows? But I will say this: As of now, I believe you'll find the medical profession in agreement that monthly administration of penicillin of a long-lasting type is wise after a child has once had rheumatic fever. I thoroughly approve of it.

Rheumatic fever, not as much publicized as some other diseases, is a serious thing. The first attack may not do much harm, but we know that after the first attack, the patient is many times as likely to have subsequent attacks. Each time the damage is worse. Eventually it adds up to a damaged heart.

Rheumatic fever (we don't know exactly why or how) is always the result of a streptococcus infection.

Penicillin, while not to be given for every little ailment, (nor should it be used for every cold that comes along), can prevent or minimize strep. Hence, a series of long-lasting shots (good for about six weeks, so monthly shots give a margin of safety) can prevent subsequent attacks, once the first rheumatic fever is known to have struck.

Living It Up in Home of the Rich

CARMEL, Calif., July 13.

THE SUN SHINES BRIGHT on the former home of Muriel Vanderbilt. We are in the valley of Carmel this morning. In the very home where the rich Vanderbilts clipped their coupons. Or whatever the rich do for amusement.

STAN DELAPLANE

The home has now become a resort, Los Laureles Lodge. It has been remodeled a bit, naturally. But we people who are still working at getting rich don't mind. It is enough to live like the rich.

Across the road, the Vanderbilt stables have been remodeled into a house. I would like to live there, too.

We are lying beside a pool that is the color of Chinese coolie pants, it is that blue. Reflecting on the fact that we shall never be rich probably.

The only coupons I clip are in the back of magazines: "Send only $1. Your money refunded if not satisfied."

I am rarely satisfied with anything. But I send my $1 with high hopes. I get whistles that only dogs can hear. Rare items that catch fish. Books on ventriloquism. Things like that. Anything that you send only $1 for, I will go.

Meanwhile, I live in the Vanderbilt home. I live pretty good.

I return to Carmel valley like a sailor home from the sea. Matter of fact, I once came here direct from sea.

I came to get rich.

I signed off a ship in San Francisco. The Old Man said, "I thought you were signing on again. We'll ship you quartermaster next voyage."

I told him no. I said it was time to go ashore and make my fortune before I got too old. I was exactly 21.

They paid off in gold, four twenties and a ten. I bought a car for $30 and drove right to Carmel. I put off getting rich right away. Because a man with that much gold IS rich.

Somewhere along the line, I lost my momentum and have been spinning my wheels ever since.

Well, this is no time for regrets. "The rich aren't really happy," said my grandma. "Money cannot buy happiness."

This may be true. But I would like to give it the old college try. I think if I tried real hard, I could be happy though rich. It would be an interesting experiment. I would buy a place like this, like Los Laureles. A Carmel valley ranch house with pepper trees and palms and a swimming pool with water reflecting the blue Chinese pants sky. I would clip coupons and roust the help around and keep horses that ate gold-plated oats. I would give a memorial wing to the hospital and new dimes for tips.

I would give interviews to the papers.

"The rich are not really happy. Money cannot buy happiness."

Because there is not enough money for everybody to be rich. I would give such interviews to discourage other people from trying to get MY money.

In the meantime, I practice by living in rich surroundings. Los Laurels is not an expensive resort. It is within my present means. But you cannot argue but what it was the choice of the rich originally. The choice of the Vanderbilts.

Such ideas set me up considerably. Like putting out your little pinkie when drinking tea. It is a fine thing to reflect on during vacation.

Vacation is the only time I have the time to think about getting rich.

The rest of the year I work at it.

This is where I came those years ago, with gold pieces in the pocket, to make my fortune. And here I am again with the same idea. You cannot beat that for trying anyway.

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann:

A CERTAIN WOMAN who works energetically in one of our organizations is so aggressive she's actually a pain in the neck. She's the type who likes to be generous——with other people's money.

This is what she does: Whenever the smallest excuse arises she goes around collecting money from the club members. Weddings, funerals, anniversaries, new births and graduations are her specialty. She calls on the phone and says "Mrs. Schnickelfritz's daughter is getting married. Several of us are chipping in $3 to buy her a silver tray. Of course you want your name on the list."

More often than not I don't know Mrs. Schnickelfritz well enough to buy her daughter anything, but I don't want to look cheap, so I say yes.

The "organizer" makes herself a big woman with all this activity. She puts the names of the donors on the card and at the bottom she adds: "Idea conceived and carried out by Mrs. ——— (herself)."

What do you call such a person——and how can I protect myself against her?——OUTMANEUVERED.

Dear Outmaneuvered: There are many descriptive nouns in the English language, but the word that BEST describes her is a German word——"kochleffel." It loses a lot in the translation, but it means "cooking spoon."

The best way to cope with a kochleffel of this variety is to simply say "I hardly know Mrs. Schnickelfritz and I'm sure she'd think it strange if my name appeared on the list. Thank you for calling, but I'd rather not."

Dear Ann Landers:

SHOWERS ARE GIVING ME arthritis of the bank-account. I know you're not a doctor but perhaps you can come up with a cure for this ailment. Just for the heck of it I've kept a record of the number of showers I've attended since Sept. 1. The actual count is 22! Every shower means a gift. You can't get away under $1 and sometimes it runs as high as $3.50 —depending on the closeness of the friend or relative.

The girls who had the wedding showers last year are having the baby showers THIS year. I know I'm not the only one who is fed to the gullet. I'm sick of being soaked and I heartily recommend that you put in a pitch for a nice long dry spell. Thank you.—D. FUNCT.

Dear D.: I've been up and down this mountain before, and the readers invariably inform me that they "love showers because they're such fun and how else can you get to go to so many wonderful parties for $1?" So—to those of you who "love showers," blessings on the brides and the babies. To those who feel you're getting soaked, why don't you just say "No"?

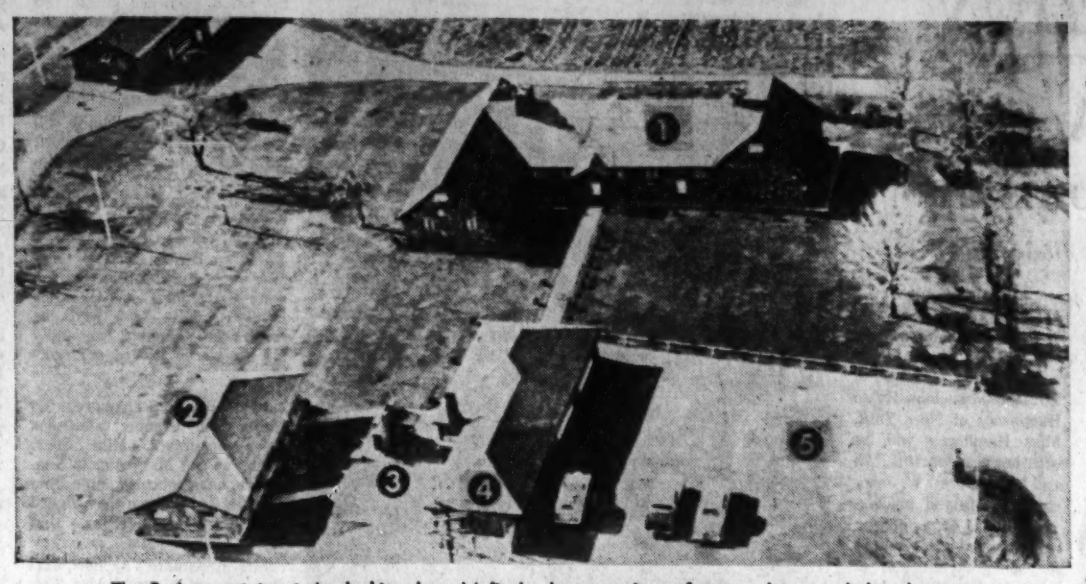

To learn the knack of feeling comfortable with the opposite sex, send for Ann Landers's booklet, "How to Be Date Bait," inclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Brotherhood of Evil

One Man's War With Mafia

By Frederic Sondern Jr.

The Barbara estate at Apalachin where Mafia leaders were in conference when rounded up by state police. Building No. 1 is Don Guiseppe Barbara's $130,000 residence. Building No. 2 is the garage. No. 3 indicates the barbecue pit where steaks were being broiled when officers took the gang leaders by surprise. No. 4 is the summerhouse and No. 5 is the parking lot which was filled with Cadillacs, Lincolns and Chrysler Imperials.

EDGAR CROSWELL of the New York state police had waited 13 years for Don Giuseppe Barbara to make a serious mistake.

The detective sergeant, a tall, spare, quiet man with gray hair and a narrow face set in lines that are severe and forbidding —until he smiles, had been assigned as a detective of the Criminal Investigation Bureau to the Vestal substation of the state police, near Binghamton, for only a short time before he suspected that there was a formidable adversary in the neighborhood.

In the course of routine investigations into illegal gambling, the manufacture of illicit alcohol and the sale of faked rye and scotch whisky, Croswell kept running into the name of Joseph Barbara. The shady elements in and around Binghamton — particularly those of the large Italian colony—seemed to regard him with not only respect, but awe. The sergeant grew curious about the background of the elusive, obviously wealthy man who owned the prosperous Mission Beverages Co. of Endicott and the big house on the hill at Apalachin.

And then Croswell, in 1944, happened to meet Joe Barbara personally. On a routine patrol one evening, the sergeant—he was still a trooper then—drove by a parked truck and noticed a man coming out of the bushes. Croswell stopped him and discovered that he was the driver of the big Mission Beverages trailer. The inexperienced thief blurted out that he had taken two five-gallon cans of gasoline from the truck's reserve and hidden them in the woods. Croswell arrested him, took him to the station and called Barbara. A fuming, squat, bright-eyed little man arrived shortly. "I'm Barbara," he announced. "Why did you arrest my man? He ain't done nothing wrong." Trooper Croswell tried to explain. "But, Mr. Barbara, he was stealing your gas, and it's hard to get these days." And then Croswell noticed a bulge where the little man's coat covered his hip.

"Are you carrying a gun, sir?" he asked quietly.

"Sure I carry a gun," was the reply. "Gotta license."

Croswell stared. "May I see it, sir?" Barbara complied impatiently, producing a pistol permit issued by the ranking judge of Broome county. "Now you release my man, see?" he barked.

Croswell's reaction to this scene was a lasting one. The pistol permit in the possession of a man of Barbara's reputation, his arrogance and obvious disdain of the police, the fact that he thought nothing of an employe stealing precious gasoline and his having—despite his record—a liquor distributor's license and a gun permit, made trooper Croswell angry at first, and then patiently inquisitive. He gradually pieced Mr. Barbara's unusual history together.

Giuseppe Maria Barbara was born in 1905 in the small town of Castellamare on the western tip of Sicily, a historic stronghold of the Mafia to this day. At 16, he came to the United States.

At 31, he was already known as Joe the Barber in the bootlegging, prostitution and gambling rackets of the flourishing Wilkes-Barre-Scranton - Pittston district and as a power to be reckoned with.

There followed a series of arrests and police histories characteristic of an enforcer, as the underworld calls the skillful Mafia gunman. All of them involved disputes within the brotherhood and the punishment of those who offended against it. In 1931, bootlegger Calomare Calogaro—a Sicilian—was shot by two men in Wyoming, Pa. As Calogaro lay dying, he finally gasped that a Tony Morreale had been one of his attackers; he was apparently about to breathe the name of the other when he died.

After the police had added up all their information, they were almost certain that Joe the Barber had been the second killer; he also was taken into custody. The court was not convinced, however, and Barbara was released.

In 1932 he was arrested again, this time in Scranton, after two minor gangsters from New York had been mowed down on a back street, one fatally. The other, believing that he was dying, named Joe the Barber. It looked like a strong case. But the victim-witness made a remarkable recovery, discovered that he was not going to die, and from his hospital bed steadfastly refused to identify Barbara when confronted with him.

Joe the Barber came close to disaster once more, the next year. The body of Albert Wichner, a local bootlegger who specialized in hijacking, was found by the Scranton police stuffed into the back of his own car. He had been murdered in a peculiarly cruel way; he had been forced to strangle himself by means of sashcords noosed around his neck and tied tightly to his ankles, which were doubled behind him. This is an ancient Mafia method of executing particularly hated enemies.

The Scranton detectives worked hard, and then harder as the case became clearer and more positive. Wichner's wife, tight-lipped and savage, told them all she knew. Her husband hijacked liquor from out-of-state gangs for Joe the Barber and two associates. He had, she knew, cheated them out of many thousands of dollars and she had warned him that they would inevitably find him out.

Along with Mrs. Wichner, the police had found a witness whom they thought would clinch the case. A young man happened to be driving by the car in which Wichner's body was later found. He had noticed it because, as he swung around the corner near it, two men had suddenly begun walking away from the car across the roadway. His headlights caught them full on. His identification of the car, of Joe Barbara and Angelo Polizzi, was positive. And then the usual sequence of events began which so often baffles police officers who tangle with influential mafiosi. Mrs. Wichner's memory suddenly became hazy. The young man's recollections, so clear before, also grew contradictory. Barbara and Polizzi were discharged.

At this point, Joe the Barber decided on a change of scene. He knew that the Pennsylvania State Police, now convinced and infuriated, were determined to get after him. A few months later Joe Barbara had quietly come back to Endicott, N. Y., across the border. Always an extremely able business man, he quickly did very well. For a small sum he bought a modest but lucrative soft drink bottling plant from an elderly Italian. It expanded rapidly. Despite his record, the State Liquor Authority, usually strict, granted him a license to distribute beer, and the Canada Dry firm a franchise to bottle its products for the area. Barbara's outlets and his fleet of trucks grew with remarkable speed.

Croswell, having learned all this, settled down for his long period of watchful waiting. On one occasion, Croswell and another officer were taking pictures of the house and grounds for possible future reference. They thought that no one was at home. Suddenly the door of the main residence flew open and a furious Mrs. Barbara dashed at them, flanked by several dogs.

The sergeant firmly if nervously stood his ground, and thinking quickly, introduced himself as a representative of House and Garden. The magazine, he said, was doing a series on the finest houses in various parts of the state. Mrs. Barbara's angry frown vanished abruptly. The men could take pictures of anything they wished.

The more Croswell saw and heard of the Barbara household, the more interested he became.

Croswell had little to go on. The U. S. Treasury Alcohol Tax Unit's agents in the area had reason to believe that Barbara was diverting sugar which he bought for his bottling plant to stills which he financed in the neighborhood for the production of untaxed alcohol. This sort of bootlegging is today a big business in many parts of the country.

Croswell knew that the $15,000 which Barbara officially drew as salary from the bottling company was not nearly enough to maintain his establishment. Investigation revealed that ever since he left the Scranton-Pittston area, he had received a loan every year of between $25,000 and $50,000 from one of his old friends in Pennsylvania — without interest or security.

This is one of the methods of private banking common in the fraternity, and it is brilliantly simple. It is predicated, of course, on the fact that a mafioso's word and handshake is as good as a bond. One racketeer sends the proceeds of his illegal operations, which he cannot declare and explain without the danger of eventual police reaction, in cash to a trusted friend of the same echelon. The second puts down this money in his returns as earned from one of his own legitimate enterprises, pays the tax on it and returns the balance to his friend in the form of a loan.

Much of this was still in the back of Sgt. Croswell's mind when he and his partner, trooper Vasisko, stopped by the Parkway Motel in Vestal late in the afternoon Nov. 13, 1957. A Cadillac pulled up to the door. Croswell happened to look up, glanced through a window and saw who was getting out of the car.

Joseph Barbara Jr., cocky and pompous at 21—he looks and acts much like his father did—strode in. (Barbara Sr. died last month.)

"We want three double rooms for two nights," he announced. "The best you got. I'll take the keys with me; the people may be late."

Good policemen develop an instinctive something that they themselves often cannot explain. A bell began to ring for Croswell. "Come on," he said to his partner, "I've got a feeling." Four big cars were parked in the Barbara driveway. One belonged to Patsy Turrigiano, the convicted illegal still operator from Endicott. One was from New Jersey, one from New York, one from Ohio. Croswell jotted down the numbers.

The State Police teletype had still not reported on the Ohio, New York or New Jersey cars at Barbara's. Croswell later drove to the motel again. The Ohio car was parked outside one of the sections. "There are two of them," reported the proprietor. They're very tough guys. They said Joe Barbara would take care of everything. I don't like their looks. I think we ought to throw them out." If the two ex-convicts, Giuseppe DiMarco and Giuseppe Scalisi, could have heard what followed, they would not have been there the next morning or have slept very well. "No," said the sergeant. "Leave them alone and don't say anything."

Finally, at 3 a.m., Croswell went to bed, tired and disappointed. His hunch, he felt, had probably been wrong. He said as much when he called Inspector Robert Denman, his superior, to report the next morning. Neither knew of the extraordinary meeting of the clans that was already under way.

Croswell, Vasisko and the two federal agents who had joined them started with the motel. Four more of Barbara's guests had arrived very late at night.

As Croswell's car climbed the rise up to Barbara's, his heart suddenly leaped. There were a dozen Cadillacs, Chrysler Imperials and Lincolns on the apron in front of the garage and 25 more in the field, many with the special license plates which denote political influence.

As it happened, the garage and then a wing of the house screened Croswell and his colleagues from the gay and busy company around the barbecue pit until, notebooks in hand, the jolicemen were almost finished jotting down the license numbers. At this moment a group of strollers, talking animatedly, came around a corner of the garage. Seeing strangers, they stopped in their tracks. For a moment they exchanged glances.

Then shouts in Italian and excited gestures brought a dozen others. They, too, stopped and stared. There were more shouts followed by a general panicked retreat. It was clear to Croswell, Vasisko and the treasury agents that they had come across a rather unusual convention.

"So what do we do now?" one of them asked. "We have no authority, no warrant, no nothing."

Croswell's mind had been racing. He knew now that he had been right. "We have plenty of authority," he said, "off Barbara's property; on the public highway." Tactically, it was fairly simple. Only one road from Don Giuseppe's house led to U. S. Route 17 and away; two others were impassable because of bridges destroyed by floods. After 13 years Crosswell was about to hit the jackpot.

Martha Carr's OPINION

A Too-Friendly Neighbor

Dear Martha:

THIS MAY SEEM like a foolish question but please help us. My husband and I are in our 60s. A young woman has just moved in next door and she has just taken over. She drops in any time of day or evening. She advises us about our garden. She's as friendly as a puppy, but we are both rather reserved and we don't like it. I think what upsets us most is that she has started calling us by our first names. We are both pretty old-fashioned and weren't brought up this way. We don't want to hurt her but what would you suggest?

NEIGHBOR.

Readers are requested to keep their letters short when writing to Martha Carr. For a personal reply inclose a self-addressed stamped envelope with the letter you send to Martha Carr, in care of the Post-Dispatch. Letters of a medical or legal nature cannot be answered.

You should be complimented. To her, you aren't a couple of old fogies, but her contemporaries with whom she wants to be friends. If you honestly resent her first-name calling and feel it is disrespectful, you either can ask her not to do so or you can continue to call her Miss or Mrs. So-and-So. She'll take the hint, but she also may be hurt in the process. Is it worth it?

Dear Martha:

I AM 42 YEARS OLD, divorced, fair looking and very lonely. About a month ago, I was in a little restaurant for a cup of coffee between busses and a real good looking man was there. He started to talk to me and we liked each other right off. He asked for my address and phone number and said he would call me and we would go out to a dance. He told me where he lived. He never has called me and I wonder if it would be all right to write to him. I thought maybe he had lost my address and didn't know how to get in touch with me. What do you think, Martha?

LONELY.

Don't waste the 4-cent stamp. He hasn't lost your address. He has just lost interest. A pick-up date's memory is usually pretty short.

Dear Martha:

WHAT DO YOU THINK about this problem? My fiance works in a shop where he doesn't have to dress up, so he has a lot of sports shirts. Now he simply refuses to wear a coat and tie even when we go to parties. It embarrasses me when all the other men are dressd up but I don't want to hurt his feelings. What could I do?

ANNE.

It may seem like a small problem now, but actually it's pretty basic. He may argue that it's his affair if he wants to go informal, but it really shows that he's thoughtless of you and more concerned with comfort than convention. At least talk it out before you marry him and take a chance on having a fight before every party for the next 50 years.

Eleanor Roosevelt

Tennis Club Snobbery

HYDE PARK, July 13.

I DON'T KNOW how other people feel about the story last week on the refusal of a swank tennis club in Forest Hills, L.I., to permit Dr. Ralph Bunche's son—who has been taking tennis lessons at the club from the pro—to become a member and play there. I can only say I felt horrified that in the North we still have a club, the West Side Tennis Club, which is not ashamed to say that it bars Jews and Negroes from membership.

The members of this club may think themselves better than people of other races, and they may think that in their club and in their homes they can be justified today in refusing admittance to people on a basis of race, color or religion. But I would like to point out to them that bombs do not discriminate in this manner.

When these people have helped the rest of us to lose the uncommitted areas of the world where two-thirds of the world's population exist, which are largely non-Aryan race and of many religions and many colors, then perhaps they will realize what they have done to give us a Communist world—if not to destroy our civilization completely.

I hope that no Negro champion and no Jewish champion will play tennis at this club again.

Of course, this kind of discrimination will not hurt the Bunches. They have too many open doors to feel a slight of this kind. But how can we in the North ask of the South the sacrifices that we are now asking if we countenance this kind of snobbish discrimination?

I thought the past few years had done away with snobbery in our country. I thought we had learned to respect people for what they are and for what they have accomplished, not for themselves alone but for their country and the world.

I wonder how many people in the West Side Tennis Club, when they stand before St. Peter, will be able to give as good an account of their motives and their achievements as Dr. Bunche and his children!

If you can't play tennis with Negroes, how come you are willing to let them be drafted into your army and die for you? I am ashamed for my white people. I am one of them, and their stupidity and cruelty make me cringe.

John Keasler

About Male Vanity

Are you annoyed by a multitude of vexing little problems which are difficult to solve? Mail them to George, in care of the Post-Dispatch, and let him consolidate them into one big problem which will be impossible to solve.

Dear George:

MY FIANCE goes overboard about sports outfits. I could take the Bermuda shorts, but not his latest. How can I get the idea across to him that he looks sort of funny in baggy plaid golf knickers and a beret?—M. BARRASSED.

Dear M.: Male vanity is a touchy thing. Take a subtle approach. Meet him half way. Show up wearing clown shoes and a putty nose. If he doesn't take the hint, get a good theatrical agent—who knows? Worse acts have ended up headlining the Palace.

Dear George:

I HEARD some "neavies" discussing your pithy column recently and, by their scowls, I suggest you buy some insurance. By the way, do you believe in insurance?—MARTY G.

Dear Marty: Yes, I think insurance is delightful. It has sustained me through many a trying time in this vale of tears. An elderly grouch in-law relative of mine took out one of those policies which guarantee that at the stroke of 60 he could retire, draw $550 a month and spend all his time fishing. Now, when I feel low I just go down to the dock and watch him and think how much worse off I could be. Boy! Does he hate fishing!

Dear George:

WHAT'S THE SOLUTION to the problem of a wife who's on a gracious living kick, George? I come home tired every night and hungry and have to eat by this damnable candlelight. As sort of a gag the other night when we had company, I flashed a little light around on the potatoes and things—but she didn't think it was funny. Is there a solution to candlelight guesswork?—IN THE DARK.

Dear Husband: Send 25 cents for our do-it-yourself kit for phosphorescent lambchops.

'Corky' Kelly's Route to West Point

By United Press International.

A TALL, slender, serious redhead of 19 has disappeared into anonymity along with 732 other young men who last week entered the United States Military Academy at West Point.

Corky and his mother, now Mrs. J. Watson Pedlow of Chester Heights, Pa., have spent the past 17½ years trying to dodge the limelight forced on them by a gracious act on the part of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Corky's father then a captain and pilot of a Flying Fortress bomber, was the first hero of World War II. He was awarded the distinguished Service Cross for his participation in a bomber raid on a Japanese battleship on Dec. 10, 1941.

The medal was handed to Mrs. Kelly by President Roosevelt at the White House on Dec. 17, 1941. The President wrote a famous letter, now in the National Archives in Washington, addressed "To the President of the United States in 1956." It asked the future President to "consider the merits of a young American youth of goodly heritage —Colin P. Kelly III—for appointment as a cadet in the U. S. Military Academy at West Point."

Slim, pretty Marian Kelly got a job in Washington and did her best to avoid the continual pressure for interviews and photographs. Eventually she met Pedlow, at that time with the Navy in Washington.

They were married in 1943 and after the war they moved back to Pennsylvania, Pedlow's home state, where he took a position with a chemical company in Marcus Hook, Pa. By that time Corky had a half-brother, John Jr., now 16 years old. Gregory Pedlow was born in 1946.

COLIN P. KELLY III

Mrs. Pedlow has for some years been women's editor of a Chester radio station.

The family found it easier during those years to dodge the limelight in their big, old, Pennsylvania-Dutch-style country home set in the Delaware county hills. But as the years passed and as the time came closer for Corky to decide whether he wanted to go to West Point, the requests for pictures and interviews increased.

Corky was a bright student. After attending a Quaker school in Westtown, Pa., he enrolled at Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa., to continue his studies until he became old enough to seek appointment to West Point.

He enjoys music and was a member of the Dickinson Glee Club. He was an Eagle Scout and while still at Westtown won the coveted God and Country Award.

Although President Eisenhower said he would carry out President Roosevelt's wishes and appoint Corky to the Academy, the boy decided he would go after the appointment on his own.

Last May 6, on his nineteenth birthday, Corky telephoned his mother from Carlisle, Pa.

I've just received the greatest birthday present a fellow could wish," he said. "The Army just notified me of my appointment to West Point."

And so, on July 7, young Corky Kelly, a boy of goodly heritage, joined 732 other young men of goodly heritage in the daylong procedure of admission to West Point.

The 'Mountain Headdress'

By Ramon Coffman

A YOUNG WOMAN told me that she liked to wear high-heeled shoes, even during a long walk. I was astonished to hear this, and she explained:

"In my teens I had ballet lessons for a long period, and the bones of my feet were affected. To this day, I have trouble if I wear low-heeled shoes."

It is a change from the natural when girls or women adapt their feet to shoes with high heels. Doctors have told me that such shoes lead to all manner of foot troubles. Often the troubles are of a painful nature.

While thinking about feminine fashions, however, I have come to the conclusion that there has been a big improvement over days gone by. The garments of women are far more healthful than they were early in the present century. For the most part, tight corsets have gone to the scrap-heap.

As we look over fashions of the past, we observe amazing facts about the garb and customs of both men and women. Perhaps I shall write a series in that field within a few months. Today I shall describe the "mountain headdress."

About 200 years ago, many women in Europe, especially in Paris, built up their hair in a remarkable manner. A wire framework was placed on the head of a lady of fashion, and the hairdresser filled it with false hair or bits of wool.

So far as possible, the lady's hair was draped around the frame. If there was too little natural hair, false hair was added. The next step was for the hairdresser to powder the "mountain headdress."

Sometimes the high headdress rose to a height of 15 inches or more above the head. Doorways were made higher in various homes to permit the ladies to pass through without misfortune.

Price Tag on A Husband

MANCHESTER, England, July 13 (UPI).—

A JUDGE here has solemnly ruled that the cash value of a "wonderful" husband was worth exactly $10,500.

The wonderful husband was Matthew Tavlin. He was 46 years old when a runaway wagon ended his life. His widow, Mrs. Margaret Ann Tavlin, the memories of her ideal marriage still painfully fresh in her mind, took her problem to court.

She told Justice Hinchcliffe that Matthew was "my wonderful man." She said he: Did not drink or smoke; repaired the family's shoes; decorated the house; mended all electrical faults; fixed the television set when it went wrong; worked overtime to save money for family holidays, and never had a day's illness in his life.

"He was wonderful," said Mrs. Tavlin. "There'll never be another like him."

And to prove it, she said she had rejected an offer of $14,000 compensation.

"I think I did the right thing by taking the case to court," she said. "I just had to."

Justice Hinchcliffe pondered the problem. Then he translated the ideal spouse into terms of hard cash. The value, he ruled, was $10,500.

Then he learned of the $14,000 offer.

Said he: "Oh, dear! A most generous payment. And I tried to be as fair as I could."
